After a Late Party.
How to Live Long.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 14.

MR. LITVINOFF from Russia, at Mount Vernon, stood before Washington's tomb, head uncovered, and showed in his face that he knows what kind of man lies buried there. Washington, also, got rid of a hereditary ruler.

Litvinoff did not leave a wreath at the door of the tomb, and that is a good omen.

Gentlemen from abroad, contributing large wreaths to the tombs of George Washington and the unknown soldier, have usually borrowed money from us, and always failed to pay it back.

LLOYD GEORGE says that war excitement and danger of war in Europe are subsiding, Germany would not and could not wage a war, a "cooling blizzard of pacific propaganda is sweeping over Britain," and Britain would not countenance any French attack on Russia, and:

"The French peasant has had enough of fighting for a generation."

ALL THAT is encouraging, for Lloyd George, who, with Clemenceau, saved the Allies in the big war, is by far the most intelligent man in Great Britain.

How the British fawned at his feet when he was winning the war for them. The ingratitude they now display proves that Britain really is a republic.

AFTER AN "all night party," an airplane was hired by four young men—Adam Rowinski, Henry Rockabowski, Louis Kuhn and Stanley Kopkowski. The last, 19 years old, acted as pilot.

Flying over Brooklyn, one wing of the plane struck the steeple of the Church of Our Lady of Lourdes, the plane "brushed an elevated railroad structure, skimmed along the roofs of houses and treetops, crashed into a tenement, fell into the street."

Three were killed; the fourth, the pilot, probably will recover.

THERE is no suggestion of intoxication connected with the disaster, but an "all night party" is a bad prelude to a flying expedition.

Flying machines and automobiles possess great educational power. They impress on the mind that consequences cannot be escaped.

The automobile truck helps to eliminate old-fashioned brutality. The driver cannot take vengeance for his own stupidity by lashing his engine, as horses used to be lashed.

EDWIN MARKHAM, the rugged "Man with the Hoe" poet, 82 years old, says:

"First I chose the right father and mother. I didn't pick one of those young 'squirts' that stand around on street corners to be my father.

"And I didn't pick a painted young flapper for a mother. I chose a vigorous mountaineer for a father and a strong, energetic, outdoor woman for a mother."

ONE WAY to live long is to live carefully, starting at forty-five or even younger.

The famous Italian, Luigi Cornaro, given up to die at forty-five because of many excesses and foolish living, changed his ways, wrote his book when past ninety, mounted his horse without assistance at ninety-five, died when well past one hundred and wrote to the bishop in Venice:"

"I had to live to be ninety to know this world is beautiful."

Cornaro ate twelve ounces of solid food and drank sixteen ounces of new wine daily. Francis Bacon and many others write about him.

UNITED STATES editors remind the NRA administration that the first amendment to the Constitution guarantees freedom of the press, and request that this guarantee be maintained in any newspaper code.

Such a request should be unnecessary. It is hard to imagine any invention, however desirable, suddenly wiping out a provision of the Constitution.

In addition, many editors in the United States would undertake to maintain freedom of the press on their own account, regardless of anything of a change in the Constitution. And if such a change came, not a few would move to Canada or some other country with freedom still remaining.

NAPOLEON SAID:

"If I allowed freedom of the press my government would not last six weeks," and again, "I fear three newspapers more than a hundred thousand bayonets."

Napoleon's power didn't last long, anyhow.

Had he allowed freedom of the press, some editor, speaking for French soldiers, might have prevented the stupid expedition and failure in Russia, and kept the emperor from taking his final beating at Waterloo.

Wendell Phillips, worth several Napoleons, said:

"The penny papers of New York do more to govern this country than the White House at Washington," and "We live under a government of men and morning newspapers."

THIS COUNTRY lives under a government not of newspapers, but of tens of millions of newspaper readers, who base their opinions, as they must, on the contents of newspapers.

In George Washington's day a certain Irish editor made himself offensive by repeatedly warning Washington against making himself king of the United States. Some believe

CAFE RESTRICTIONS EASED IN RUM BILL

U. S. SHIELDS NAZI PLOT WITNESS

Mysterious 'Mr. X' In Congress Quiz; Police on Guard

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Hearing a witness identified only as "Mr. X," a committee of Representatives today opened an investigation of alleged propaganda activities in this country with testimony about a letter purporting to deal with Nazi plans to further their cause.

At the direction of Chairman Dickstein (Dem.), of New York, the witness read from a translation of the document bearing what he described as the signature of "Walter Haeg," an assistant to Heinrich Spanknoebel, reputedly a member of the Nazi movement.

Dickstein announced that Clarence A. Hathaway, editor of the Daily Worker in New York, had advised the committee that he would bring the original letter before the group.

HEARING DELAYED

Start of the hearing was delayed while the chairman conferred behind closed doors with members of the committee, Crowe (Dem.), Indiana, and Focht (Rep.), Pennsylvania, and with Representative Delaney (Dem.), New York, invited to sit in the hearing, and A. Dana Hodgdon, of the State Department.

A special detachment of police was stationed in and around the crowded committee room.

In putting "Mr. X" on the stand, Dickstein made no effort to qualify the witness or to identify him. The witness spoke with a guttural, foreign accent and said he was familiar with some phases of the organization known as the "Friends of New Germany," which, he said, had offices in New York City.

He said he had traced the authenticity of the letter by the type on the typwriter which had been, until five day ago, at No. 1 Madison avenue. He said the letter bore the "counter initials" of the Spanknoebel now "a fugitive from justice" and up to 10 days ago was in New York City.

QUESTIONED NAZIS

He testified that he had questioned several New York Nazi members and that they had "neither confirmed nor denied the authenticity of the letter."

Questioned by Representative Crowe, the witness said he thought 75 per cent of Nazi members in the United States were aliens or naturalized citizens, adding that many Nazis had been smuggled into this country in recent months from ships.

Asked by Representative Focht (Rep.), Pennsylvania, if Americans were being "lured" into the organization, the witness replied in the affirmative and added under further questioning that the purpose of the movement was "to establish an absolute dictatorship in the United States."

Snow and Ice Peril Traffic; Mercury Drops

Observer W. S. Brotzman predicted that the temperature would fall to 20 tonight, the lowest mark of the season, with the snowstorm continuing today and tonight. Skies will clear tomorrow.

While Western Pennsylvania along with the eastern half of the country was stormbound, California reported two deaths from dry winds and temperatures in the southern part of the state of 110 degrees.

ICE ON HIGHWAYS

The Automobile club of Pittsburgh reported all roads in Western Pennsylvania in a dangerous condition as a result of the film of ice covered with snow.

The Lincoln Highway from Pittsburgh to Chambersburg was slippery, with snow falling. The William Penn Highway was reported particularly bad between this city and Blairsville.

Other highways were slippery, as previous snow and ice had not been entirely removed.

Many minor accidents were reported.

In one an auto upset at the doorway of 400 Parkfield street, spilling its nine occupants, pupils of the Connelley Trade School. Stephen Flaherty, 17, was the driver. They escaped injury.

SKID INJURES FOUR

Four persons were injured, two seriously, when their automobile skidded on the street car rails and crashed into a pole in Seventh avenue, West Homestead, early today, police reported.

Mrs. Anna Bowser, 31, of near Verona, driver, suffered undetermined head injuries and facial lacerations. Mrs. Sue Holden, 28, of 2115 Fifth avenue, McKeesport, was cut about the face and head by flying glass. Both are in the Homestead Hospital.

MEAT STRIKE PARLEYS LOCKED

Strikers Score Fagan; Cattle Stampeded By Sympathizers

The NRA Labor Board's negotiations with meat packers and striking members of the newly-formed Packing House Workers' Industrial Union, some of whose leaders are said to be Communists, were deadlocked today, with the strikers refusing to return to work until their demands for more pay and shorter hours are met.

This was the development from the first meeting between the board and representatives of the strikers and packers held late yesterday in the Chamber of Commerce. Declaring the board would continue efforts to "find a basis for the men to return to work," A. C. Jewett, executive secretary, said today:

"The strikers, headed by Harry Reich, insist upon their demands and are not disposed to go back until all negotiations are finished. We feel, however, that they should return to their jobs while a settlement is being arranged."

FAGAN CRITICIZED

Reich criticized P. T. Fagan, member of the Labor Board and president of District No. 5, United Mine Workers, for addressing the meeting "as if he was the boss of our strike." Reich explained:

"We refused to let Fagan speak for us, because our members remembered past experiences with the American Federation of Labor and recalled that in 1903 and 1919 men had been sold out."

Edward Stohl, president of the Packing House Workers' Union, estimated that 2,00 workers are out, representing "practically 100 per cent in the city."

CATTLE STAMPEDED

Meanwhile, strike sympathizers were blamed for the stampeding early today of a herd of 250 cattle being taken from Herrs Island onto East Ohio street.

The herd, which scattered throughout the North Side, was rounded up by 20 policemen, including several motorcycle officers, radio cruisers and patrolmen under Capt. John Flavin, after a two and one half hour chase.

The "carry" system was in effect today by retail meat dealers as packing houses ceased deliveries owing to a general strike of workers.

Private automobiles were used by the retailers in obtaining their supply, as pickets were on the lookout for trucks.

Deputy sheriffs and police were guarding many plants.

SUPPLIES AMPLE

Distributors of Western packers said they were getting fresh supplies of meat each day and there was no likelihood of a shortage.

The walkout of truck drivers and other workers had affected virtually every packing house today, following a meeting last night in Moose Temple at which several hundred workers voted to call a general strike.

Nearly 100 employes of the East End plant of Armour & Co., who announced their intention of remaining at their tasks, were taxied to hotels in the district by the management last night to prevent strikers from molesting them.

Nine taxicabs filled with the workers took 25 or 30 pickets by surprise this morning and dislodged their passengers at the Hamilton avenue plant without interference. Fifteen police were on guard to provide protection.

FIVE PINCHOT MEASURES PUSHED

Pass First Reading In House; Battle Seen on Control

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, Nov. 14.—The first disjointing of the Pinchot liquor control bills occurred today when the Judiciary General Committee of the House struck from the liquor bill the provision that only restaurants with 1,000 square feet of space could dispense whisky and wine, changing the figure to 500 feet.

At the same time an amendment was inserted stipulating that seating capacity for only 60 patrons is required, instead of 75, as was in the bill as introduced.

These changes, which would make practically all of the taprooms now serving beer eligible to license for the sale of liquor, were inserted without argument, but it is understood do not meet the approval of the Governor.

MORE CHANGES INDICATED

With the exception of this amendment no alterations were made in any of the Pinchot bills, but Representative Morton Witkin, of Philadelphia, made the significant statement after the committee meeting:

"Further study may indicate that more amendments may be desirable in the interest of the greatest number."

Five of the six bills in the Pinchot program, including the establishment of control and taxation, were passed on first reading today without objection. No barrier will be raised to them on second reading tomorrow, it is predicted, but before final passage there will be a fight on the floor of the House.

Because of the amendment, the bill dealing with direct liquor control will not come up until tomorrow. If the House remains in session Thursday, as is intended, five of the bills, those dealing with taxation and alterations in the beer law, will be passed finally on that day.

The control bill, however, the biggest point of controversy, will be fought out in the House next Monday night.

Today's amendment was the result of widespread opposition from taproom keepers throughout the state, who now are selling beer. Under the beer law a minimum floor space of 300 feet is established, but most places probably

EX-TREASURER SCHOOLEY DIES

Funeral services for Roy D. Schooley, former city treasurer and once a powerful leader in the Republican city organization, who died last night in his home at 4740 Maripoe street, East End, will be held at 1 p. m., Thursday.

The services will be held at the Homer E. Leslie funeral home, 7135 Bennett street, where the body was taken last night. Burial will be in the Smithfield Cemetery.

Mr. Schooley had been ill since his retirement under fire from the treasurer's office two years ago. He declined rapidly during the past two months and four days ago lapsed into a coma. He never regained consciousness.

Republicans Seek To Place Foes 'On Spot'

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, Nov. 14.—If a way can be found to do it under the Pinchot call, a Pittsburgh city manager bill will be introduced in this special session of the Legislature.

The proposal was discussed last night in Harrisburg by some Republican leaders, among them being numbered some of the same group which slaughtered similar legislation when it was introduced in the last regular session by Senator Frank J. Harris, Republican, and Representative John J. Kane, Democrat.

Since the last legislative session the political picture in Pittsburgh has changed. Beginning January 1 the city will be ruled by a Democratic Mayor, and four councilmen will be of the same party, Kane being one of them.

Republicans who are discussing introducing the bill now assert they will test the sincerity of the Democrats, determining if they are willing to act favorably when success for the city manager plan

HEINZ FORGES INTO LEAD

John Heinz, Democrat, moved into the lead for sheriff over Frank I. Gollmar, incumbent, at noon today.

And at the same time, Judge Ambrose B. Reid ordered the election board of the eighth district, Seventeenth Ward, to tabulate the votes left behind by the armed bandits who stole several bunches.

He further ordered the board to submit to the return board such tabulation, with a note attached explaining the hold-up. At that time he will decide whether or not they will be added to the official count, he said.

PICKS UP VOTES

The spurt which sent Heinz ahead of Gollmar for the moment at least, was in the Eleventh district of the Twelfth Ward. Heinz picked up 100 votes there not recorded for him on the unofficial

Repeal Puts Raskob Out of U. S. Politics

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14. —(INS.)—John J. Raskob, who ran Alfred E. Smith's presidential campaign in 1928, is out of politics for good.

With prohibition repealed, the only reason Raskob ever entered the political arena has been removed, the former Democratic chieftain revealed to International News Service today.

Nude Boy Flees Home in Towel

A 14-year-old youth, whose only protection against the snowy and chilly blasts is a turkish bath towel, was being sought by police today.

The youngster escaped from the Juvenile Detention Home early today while an attendant was preparing him for a bath. He had been taken into custody by police a short time before for the alleged theft of a bicycle from Jack Baum, of 408 North Highland avenue.

SMITH MEETS ROOSEVELT

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt and Alfred E. Smith meet today at the White House for the avowed purpose of having a social chat.

But the politically-minded nevertheless held the meeting was more significant than that. They took that position despite agreement by White House officials and Smith that they were wrong.

Their reasons, said the doubters, were numerous.

First, and newest, was the fact that neither the President nor Smith took public part in the recent New York mayoral election in which John P. O'Brien, Tammany Democrat, was roundly defeated.

At the same time, it was recalled, James A. Farley, President Roosevelt's good friend and Postmaster General, backed Joseph V. McKee, Recovery candidate, who lost to Fiorello LaGuardia, Fusionist, but ran ahead of O'Brien.

Some held the Roosevelt-Smith meeting might develop talk about a reorganization of the New York City Democratic line-up.

Smith, John J. Raskob and Dr. Raymond Miller, of New York, were invited to the capital to attend a dinner of Catholic University trustees.

Bus Station Looted Of Cash and Tickets

A rear window of the Nevin Bus Station, 1011 Liberty avenue, was jimmied early today by thieves who escaped with $85 from a cash drawer and an unestimated amount of bus tickets.

Heir's Horse Bolts On Fifth Avenue

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—(Universal.)—When a horse runs away on New York's main street its news, too.

Woolworth Donahue, heir to 10-cent-store millions and cousin of the Princess Mdivani; Thomas Shevlin and Frank Rediker, young men about town, were given a shaking up when the horse attached to one of those ancient hanson cabs which still haunt the upper 50s, suddenly dashed wildly down Fifth avenue for six blocks.

Rembrandt Stolen From Art Collector

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Robbers last night stole the famous Rembrandt "Jeremiah Mourning Over the Destruction of Jerusalem" from the home of M. H. Rasch, art collector.

Although offered 600,000 kroner picture, the owner had refused to picture, the ownerhad refused to sell because he had given the picture to his daughter when she was 3 years old.

Veteran Seeks Wife Missing Since 1918

A war veteran today asked the Bureau of Missing Persons to help him find the wife who disappeared when he joined the Army in 1918. He said he was Santa L. Stanfill, that he has searched the country for his wife, May Stanfill. All he wants, he said, was to have her sign a waiver allowing him to collect $1,266 which Uncle Sam deducted from his pay for her.

Tex Guinan Leaves Estate to Mother

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—(Universal)—By the terms of a will made nine years ago, Texas Guinan left her entire estate to her mother, Mrs. Bessie Guinan, the former night club hostess' attorney Walter Solinger, announced yesterday.

The value of the estate was estimated at "more than $10,000" and Solinger refused to elaborate.

Wife Finds Kimono, Divorces Undertaker

Testifying she had separated from her husband eight times since their marriage, in April, 1931, Mrs. Dora S. McCabe, of 238 South Winebiddle avenue, was granted a divorce today from Frank P. McCabe, funeral director, of Penn Hall. Describing her return from Florida a year ago, Mrs. McCabe said she found a kimono draped over the stairway and her bedroom slippers on the stairs, adding:

"My perfume and powder had been used, and there were bottles scattered all over the tables."

McCabe, she testified, refused to sign adoption papers for a little girl she had taken from a home unless she would give him "all that I had." Their final separation occurred last September, when McCabe kicked the baby's carriage after becoming angry over a meal, Mrs. McCabe told Judge Samuel H. Gardner.

Mrs. Robert Clark, a neighbor, testified she heard the baby's screams and heard McCabe threaten to choke his wife.

Cold Balks Herron's Trip to Washington

Mayor John S. Herron, who was scheduled to leave tonight for Washington to attend a conference with the Public Works Administration, was at his home today with a severe cold.

Councilman W. Y. English, chairman of the city finance committee, probably will represent Herron at the conference.

LONG BEACH, Cal., Nov. 14.—(AP.) — Two slight earthquakes occurred here at 1:22 p. m. yesterday. There was no damage. The disturbance was felt in Los Angeles and Pasadena.

Crippled Newsie Fined In Numbers Protest

A crippled newsboy's complaint to Morals Court Magistrate Thomas D. Jones that if police "would open their eyes they would find hundreds of numbers writers" got him a $25 fine today. A 17-year-old companion received a similar fine, both on the charge of having numbers slips in their possession.

Arrested yesterday by plain-clothesmen at Liberty avenue and Smithfield street, they were docketed as Michael Mongalise, 17, of 18 Crawford street, and Wilbur Knipling, 33, of 316 East Lacock street. Police produced about 100 slips which they told Magistrate Jones the boys tried to hide under their newspaper piles when the officers approached.

Knipling said they were numbers given to him by his customers. He admitted that he played some of the "tips." Complaining bitterly to Magistrate Jones, he declared:

"Why do they put me on the spot? It looks like someone is trying to railroad me. If the police would open up their eyes, they would find hundreds of writers in stores and every place."

MURRAY CHARGES NEW FRICK SCALE EVADES PEACT

UNION LEADER HINTS REVOLT OF MINERS

Labor Board's Agents Return Here to Run Pit Elections

Philip Murray, international vice president of the United Mine Workers of America, today charged that the H. C. Frick Coke Company, by its new wage rate, posted Sunday, has evaded the President's pact and established the lowest wages paid by any coal operator in the state.

The increase, according to Frick figures, was approximately 16 per cent, and purported to bring the captive mines of the Frick company up to the Appalachian scale.

Officials of the Frick company denied its wage rates were lower than the Appalachian 40-cent agreement.

MAKE MORE MONEY

One official said:

"The men will shovel more coal and make more money by having the coal prepared and the timbering done—and more men will get work—which seems to be the whole idea of the President's agreement."

Meanwhile, Jesse I. Miller, assistant to the chairman of the National Labor Board, and his aides arrived in the city this morning and re-established headquarters in the William Penn Hotel. Mr. Miller asserted that he would have an announcement, within a day or so, concerning the elections of representatives at the various mines. He spent the week-end conferring with Senator Robert F. Wagner, chairman of the board, in Washington.

MURRAY'S CHARGE

The statement by Murray read:

"The H. C. Frick Coke Company by its statement yesterday has made nothing short of a bold and deliberate attempt to violate the provisions of the Presidential pact. The tonnage rates which they have posted, according to their statement, represents the lowest rate paid by any coal corporation, captive or commercial, in the State of Pennsylvania.

"I am quite sure that the employes of the Frick Coke Company will sense this evasion of the Appalachian agreement and repudiate it when they have an opportunity to designate their representatives for collective bargaining purposes at the elections to be held under the supervision of the National Labor Board."

FRICK SCHEDULE

The new Frick schedule specifies 32 cents a ton for mining coal, an increase of 4.5 cents over the old scale of 27.2.

Frick company officials explained that the eight cent differential took care of explosives, drilling, timbering, and preparing the coal for the miners. It meant, from a company viewpoint, higher production.

From the men's viewpoint, it meant that miners loaded more coal and had more money in their envelopes, and that the drillers and others added to the number employed, officials said.

It's at least and in some places exceeds the wages paid under the Appalachian, the company declared.

FURNISHES EXPLOSIVES

When the men returned to work last week, the scale was 40 cents, but the men had to furnish materials, such as dynamite and caps. Under the new plan, the company pays 32 cents and furnishes the explosives. The company notice said the caps, powder, etc., brought the 40-cent rate down to 27.2.

Disputes over the elections, which took the labor mediators to Washington, were reported to concern whether, on the ballot, representatives of the United Mine Workers would be labeled as such. The company objected, it was reported, to such labeling, but the miners maintained that the President, when he met the committee and Gen. Johnson, agreed to such a stipulation.

that, without that Irish editor, this country might have had a king.

Not a few, by the way, believe it would have been better if we had had one, in place of the ups and downs of elections. They forget that the accidents of royal birth would be more harmful than election accidents because royal accidents last longer.

WASHINGTON, gradually raising the price of gold that it is buying, raised the price yesterday to $33.45 an ounce, up 13 cents.

The price used to be under $21. What will Uncle Sam do with his big pile of new gold after he gets it? He won't let Americans have gold, and his own dollar is paper, and down to about 60 cents.

That question will interest the public when the time comes to let the people know what is being done with their money, and why.

MRS. PINCHOT'S SPEECH BARRED

VANDERGRIFT, Pa., Nov. 14.—Once more the militant wife of Gov. Pinchot has been refused permission to speak in Vandergrift.

Ten days ago Mrs. Pinchot asked the Vandergrift School Board for permission to use the high school for a speech on the NRA under the auspices of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers. Today this telegram, signed by R. W. Dunmire, president of the board, was sent her:

"Reconsideration of request for meeting is respectfully refused."

Burgess S. S. Baldridge, to whom Mrs. Pinchot made a similar request, notified her that the high school was not under his government.

A month ago the Burgess granted Mrs. Pinchot permission to use the Municipal Hall to make a speech for the Amalgamated union. But at the eleventh hour he changed his mind and the meeting was switched to Griffio Park, outside the town.

U. S. Sends Probers To Anthracite Pits

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Three men experienced in handling labor controversies start investigation of miners' difficulties in the Pennsylvania anthracite fields this week.

Senator Robert F. Wagner, chairman of the National Labor Board, last night named Charles P. Neill, Elmer F. Andrews and Dr. Hugh S. Hanna to the fact-finding committee which he promised the Anthracite Miners of Pennsylvania would be sent into the hard coal region.

RAIDER NAMES M'CLURE IN FIX

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Firing the government's last broadside of testimony in the six-weeks-old trial of 75 Delaware County liquor conspiracy defendants, Edgar A. Davis testified today that State Senator John J. McClure was the active head of the alleged "protection" ring.

The witness named Eugene F. White, chief clerk of the state House of Representatives, and John F. Bauer, personal secretary of McClure, as other leaders. Ward by ward, he recounted what he said as the ring's setup for "protection" collections from law violators.

He testified that McClure personally paid him as a private detective to raid lawbreakers who refused to pay.

Davis is regarded as the last "big gun" in the government's battery of more than 200 witnesses.

Former Judge Bolts Party Over Farley

PORTLAND, Me., Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Former Superior Court Judge Joseph E. F. Connolly, who on Saturday criticized Postmaster General Farley and Maine Democratic leaders, today erased himself from the party rolls.

COUNCIL TO ACT ON SUNDAY LAW

City Council today will act on the ordinance which would license all football and baseball games played on Sunday within the city.

Under the terms of the ordinance the City Treasurer would issue the licenses on games played between 2 and 6 p. m. on Sundays. If no admission fee is charged or no collection taken the license would be issued without charge.

The license fee for any one game is not to exceed $50.

Sunday football games will not be taxed in McKeesport this year.

Councilman John D. Evans pointed out at a Council meeting yesterday that the football season is nearly over and asked that the tax matter be ignored for the present. Council agreed.

Solicitor Harry M. Jones said that a city ordinance prohibits Sunday sports, but it was superseded by the city's vote in favor of Sunday games at the recent election.

Siam Still Fights To Quell Revolt

RANGOON, Burma, Nov. 14.—(INS.)—With most of Siam under martial law and a strict censorship, the situation in King Prajadhipok's country was described as extremely grave in dispatches today.

The government still is attempting to suppress the revolt which first shook the monarchy several weeks ago.

QUIZ SINCLAIR ON 'GIFT' OF $300,000

Millionaire Oil Man On Stand in Senate Stock Probe

U. S. May Abolish Exchange—Gore

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—(INS.)—The New York Stock Exchange may be abolished by Congress, unless its "abuses of public confidence" can be eliminated, Senator Gore (Dem.), of Oklahoma, warned today at the Senate banking inquiry.

Gore declared Congress was trying to locate abuses so as to legislate against them.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Harry F. Sinclair, millionaire oil man, was questioned by Senate investigators today about the payment of $300,000 to a rival oil operator in 1929 from pool profits of $12,000,000.

Sinclair testified after Ruloff Cutten, New York broker who executed orders for the gigantic pool in Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation stock, hod told of the pool operations.

LIGHTS HUGE CIGAR

The oil man, who went to jail for refusing to answer the questions of a previous Senate investigating committee, lighted a huge cigar as he began replying to questions of Ferdinand Pecora, committee counsel.

He was called for questioning about th $12,000,000 profits to him and others through pool operations in the Sinclair stock. He was chairman of the Sinclair Corporation in 1928 and 1929.

Particularly the committee called him about the payment of $300,000 of these profits to William S. Fitzpatrick, president of the rival Prairie Oil Company.

Cutten, smartly dressed young cousin of Arthur Cutted, noted trader and manager of the pool, had told of large short sales by the pool in which Sinclair was a participant.

Cutten also gave evidence that when the pool signed the contract to buy the stock at $30 a share, the market price was more than $35, representing an immediate paper profit of more than $5,000,000.

Pecora told newspapermen:

"Here we have an example of where the law of supply and demand is interfered with at the pleasure of market operators.

"We are showing how far syndicates interfere with the law of supply and demand which Dick Whitney says creates prices. That's all rot."

Pecora was referring to a statement by Richard Whitney, president of the New York Stock Exchange, that the law of supply and demand prevailed on the market.

FORD RESUMES STEEL-MAKING

International News Service.

DETROIT, Nov. 14.—(INS.)—Henry Ford today began to make his own steel in a move that was interpreted as his answer to rising steel prices.

The Ford Company let it be known today that it has re-opened four of its nine open-hearth furnaces and one blast furnace.

The furnaces, idle for more than a year and a half, will not go on full-time operation.

Ford steel has risen $10 a ton within the last few weeks.

The furnaces now in operation comprise about 20 per cent of the steel production capacity of the Rouge plant. Full operation of all of Ford's furnaces (which range from 100 to 400 tons capacity) would supply Ford with all the steel the Rouge plant needs, except sheet and strip metal.

ALLIANCE HEADS FIGHT ON RUSS RECOGNITION

American and Soviet Officials Pursue Separate Studies

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Making ready for the agreement to be attempted before President Roosevelt heads southward on Friday, Soviet and American officials today pursued their separate studies on questions of recognition and subsequent relations.

Opposition to recognizing the Moscow government, meanwhile, headed up in a campaign announced by "The American Alliance" to defeat Senate confirmation of any ambassador that is designated by Mr. Roosevelt.

CAMPAIGN UNNOTICED

No notice of the impending campaign has been taken by the government. There was a possibility of conversations between the Soviet Commissar, Maxim Litvinoff, and State Department officials, being resumed late today.

Organized three years and headed by Mark L. Hersey—a retired major general—the American Alliance has arranged with Representative Fish (Rep.), of New York, to open its campaign by radio Saturday night.

CLEARING HOUSE

Walter L. Reynolds, secretary to Fish and secretary of the Alliance, described the organization as a clearing house for 1,500 groups interested in combatting Communism.

Reynolds said the conversations between Roosevelt and Litvinoff have brought to the White House thousands of protests against recognition. If recognition should be granted before the Alliance speeches begin, he said the talks will be adapted to the situation then existing.

LITVINOFF MAY HAVE KIN HERE

While Maxim Litvinoff prepares to leave the United States for his homeland, Mrs. A. M. Rosenberg, of 5500 Wellesley avenue, wonders if the Soviet official is related to her.

Upon reading a brief biography of Litvinoff, Mrs. Rosenberg found that the Russian envoy's birthplace is the same as hers, and that the correct family name of Litvinoff is identical with that Mrs. Rosenberg's grandmother.

Litvinoff, whose correct name is Vollach, changed his name, in keeping with a common Soviet custom, upon attaining high government ranking.

According to Mrs. Rosenberg, the name Vollach is not a common one, and the town from which she and Litvinoff came is not a large one. Mrs. Rosenberg believes it probable that they are in some way related. She said:

"It's 33 years since I left Russia, and my birthplace is thousands of miles away, so I've lost track of my relatives."

James Roosevelt Not To Seek Governorship

BOSTON, Nov. 14.—James Roosevelt has effectually quashed rumors that he would be a candidate for governor of Massachusetts next year. The President's son said:

"I'm not running for anything. In the first place, I'm not constitutionally eligible, seven years of residence are required and I have officially only five years."

tally. A gain on Gollmar of 27 brought Heinz's lead to 73.

How the bandits stalked into the polling place on election night and grabbed approximately 174 split party ballots and made off with them, was related to the court by John Schmidt, Republican judge of elections.

The courtroom was filled with lawyers and politicians.

SPLIT VOTES

As far as he could recall, he said the ballots stolen were 147 split Democratic votes, split mostly in the judge fights, and 27 split Republican votes. How these last were he could not recollect, he stated.

John A. Boehm, Democrat minority inspector, agreed with Schmidt's statements.

Women fainted amid the confusion that followed and the men rushed around hunting smelling salts, members of the election board said.

Husband Fined $25 On Wife's Charge

Charged with beating his wife and accused by his daughter with being an habitual drunkard, Fred Kury, 58, of 3060 Merwyn avenue, was fined $25 with the option of 50 days in jail at a hearing today before Magistrate Thomas D. Jones in Morals Court.

C o uncilman-Elect Smiles on Visit—Others Don't

Huston stepped into Council Chambers during the afternoon for "a visit." President of Council Harry A. Little invited him to sit in the President's chair "just to get its feel."

The Democratic Councilman-elect refused the chair. He did, however, shake hands all around. He was smiling. Some others weren't.

2 FOES OF LONG CITED FOR CONTEMPT

Senate Probe Ruling Greeted With Catcalls

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Amid hoots and catcalls from the spectators, Edward Rightor, counsel for former Senator Edwin Broussard, and Francis Williams, New Orleans political leader, today were cited for contempt of the special Senate committee investigating the election of Senator John H. Overton by the acting chairman, Senator M. M. Logan (Dem.), of Kentucky.

Trembling with emotion, Senator Logan shouted for United States marshals to get the names of the disturbers and bring them before the bar and he would cite all of them for contempt for their "shameless conduct."

No names were obtained, however, and the hearing went forward in a tense atmosphere.

READS STATEMENT

The outbreak came after Mr. Rightor had read a statement on behalf of his client, Senator Broussard, saying that "they had lost confidence in the committee" and were withdrawing from the investigation, as they had become convinced that the inquiry had "degenerated into an effort to purify Huey P. Long and whitewash this investigation."

Senator Long, whose political organization had supported Senator Overton, had just left the witness stand when Mr. Rightor took the floor.

Frequently interrupted by shouts of "liar," from his political opponents, Senator Long had told how he kept his "political fences" repaired in Louisiana.

$25,000 SPENT

Long told the committee that "between $25,000 and $30,000" was spent in electing the Long congressional slate in 1932.

Mrs. Hilda Phelps Hammond, chairman of the women's committee seeking to unseat both Long and Overton, jumped up to call Senator Long a "liar" when he said her husband had held two state jobs before he "kicked him out."

GRAU ARRESTS CUBAN EDITOR

HAVANA, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Col. Fulgencio Batista, army chief of staff, ordered the arrest of Guillermo Martinez Marquez, director of the newspaper Ahora, early today, apparently in line with the government's policy of curbing what it considers false news.

Marquez, detained in the office at the police station, said he did not know why he had been arrested unless it was because his paper published reports of unrest in the interior.

Reports from the interior continued to indicate scattered rebel bands were roaming the countryside and two disturbing incidents occurred in the city overnight.

Firing broke out in the Dragones Barracks early today after Sergt. Antonio Ramos was reported to have shot and killed Capt. Gil Abad Ferrer following a personal quarrel. Ramos was gravely wounded, as was Pvt. Paul Falcon. A short time before, a bomb exploded at the Atenas Club, wounding an aged man passerby.

Recall of Welles From Cuba Sought

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—(INS.)—Demands for the immediate withdrawal of Sumner Welles, ambassador to Cuba, are being received at the State Department both from Havana and from congressional circles here.

Senator King (Dem.), of Utah, the latest protestant, told assistant Secretary of State Caffery he believed Welles should be withdrawn and the Grau San Martin government recognized.

MOTHER TAKES STAND FOR ACCUSED ORCHARD SLAYER

DEFENSE OPENS IN KILLING OF JOBLESS MAN

Companion of Victim Says Owner Fired Without Warning

William R. Bryant, 36, railroad conductor, on trial today in the killing of John A. Drab, saw his 75-year-old mother take the stand today as the first move of the defense to save him from the law.

Mrs. Mary Bryant, who lives on their farm in the Jacks Run road, where Drab was shot fatally August 21 while taking some pears, talked not of her son, but the orchard. She explained it was not abandoned, as had been charged, but was a good orchard. With that statement she was allowed to leave the stand.

FATHER OF SIX

The trial is before Visiting Judge J. Frank Graff. Drab, 45, was an unemployed mill worker, of 3 Stieren street. He left his wife, Catherine Drab, and six children.

A jury of 10 men and two women late yesterday heard Joseph Kotich, of 127 Preble avenue, testify that he and Drab went to a mill early on the morning of the killing, to see if there was work. There was none, so they went to the old orchard to get pears for their families, Kotich said. They met four boys leaving the trees with some of the fruit, and set about gathering some for themselves.

Kotich said while Drab was on the ground putting pears in a bag, Bryant approached with a rifle, and, when 20 feet away, without warning, fired at Drab. Kotich said Bryant then told him to "get out."

BRYANT'S DEFENSE

County Detective Thomas Calig testified that Bryant had told him he saw the two men under the pear tree and had fired to frighten them, not intending to hit them.

Mrs. Drab revealed, while waiting her turn to testify, that Drab had been a hard working, industrious husband, and that their older children had been well educated. Two of the daughters, Selma, 22, and Phillamenia, 20, are nuns. Phillamenia is nursing in Mercy Hospital. The oldest son, Joseph, 24, was graduated from Duquesne University and is studying in Detroit to be a missionary. Josephine, 16, has just obtained a position at St. John's Hospital, and the two youngest, Bernard, 9, and Anthony, 7, are with their mother.

Marriage of Girl, 11, To Man, 67, Annulled

Child Involved In 'Daughter Swap' Back at School

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Dorothy Holsel, who is 11 years old, goes back to her first grade schoolbooks today, free of the ties that made her the wife of a man six times her age.

"This marriage was so low down I hate to think about it."

That was the comment of District Judge R. P. Hill, who annulled the union here yesterday after Dorothy, nervously hugging a new muff, indicated with a vigorous shake of her head it was not of her choosing.

She was taken last summer from her tenant farmer husband, T. J. Holsel, 67, when reports of a "daughter swap" by Holsel and J. T. Taylor, Dorothy's father, were investigated by Mrs. Mabel Bassett, State's Commissioner of Charities and Corrections.

Taylor died last August, shortly after the double ceremony at Tulsa in which he was wed to the 15-year-old Holsel girl and Holsel married Dorothy.

Mrs. Bassett, who seeks a permanent home for Dorothy, said the child was making unusual progress in her first grade studies, attending school under another name. She now is staying at a children's home here.

Investigators have been unable to find legal grounds for prosecution in the case.

SEWER DEATH HEARING SET

Roy Mull, his wife, Grace, and their son, Elmer, are to be arraigned Thursday before Alderman Thomas Flanigan on charges of murder growing out of the slaying of Margaret Schwickrath, October 10.

Defense counsel and Chief of County Detectives George W. Murren agreed upon the date today.

The body of the girl was buried in Haydenville, near Greensburg, yesterday. More than 50,000 persons viewed the body in the morgue before it was identified.

County detectives today believed they had sufficient evidence against the prisoners to have the parents held for court. They said the son might be released.

MISSING GIRL RETURNS HOME

Miss Mary Agnes Wires, 18, of 622 Knapp street, reported missing October 26 by the Missing Persons Bureau, today had returned to her home.

She was thought at first to be the murdered girl who was found in a storm sewer, but her mother, Mrs. Bertha Wires, with the aid of a family doctor, failed to identify the victim as Miss Wires.

An argument with a boy friend caused her to visit friends in Cleveland, where she obtained a job, Miss Wires disclosed.

One Killed, 1 Hurt In Kittanning Crash

KITTANNING, Pa., Nov. 14.—(AP.)—One man was killed and another injured seriously in the collision of an automobile and a truck near here. John Pierce, of Freeport, died instantly. Frank Pierce, of West Freedom, is in a hospital.

SLEEP MALADY KILLS BOY HERE

Sleeping sickness, which caused several score deaths in a recent Midwest epidemic, has claimed another victim in the Pittsburgh district today. Edward Dobas, 13, of 616 Third street, Clairton, a seventh grade student in the Fifth Avenue Junior High School, died in St. Francis Hospital last night.

Relatives said the boy became ill after attending school last Friday. He was placed under a physician's care and, when he became steadily worse, was removed to the hospital. He died three hours after admittance.

Dr. J. C. Greenfield, of Clairton, said that, while his illness had all the symptoms of sleeping sickness, laboratory tests alone would determine the exact cause of death.

Physicians said the malady which claimed several lives in the Pittsburgh district differs slightly from encephalitis, or true sleeping sickness. They termed it a "twentieth century" variety of the malady.

DOCTORS CLASH AT CALLAHAN DEATH TRIAL

Wife at Side Despite Detectives' Story Of 'Love Nest'

Two doctors, testifying for the commonwealth today in the trial of Richard Callahan, 25, of McPherson boulevard, charged with the murder of Mrs. Marcella McCarthy, differed as to the extent and nature of the 38-year-old widow's injuries, sustained, according to the state's contention, at the hands of the defendant.

Dr. Louis Ignelzi, general practioner of 109 Shetland avenue, testified he attended Mrs. McCarthy August 22. He said she was suffering from the effects of a "drinking bout" and numerous bruises, including a severe jaw injury which had become infected. The injuries, he said, were from a week to 10 days old.

Dr. Dominick DeSilvio, another general practitioner of the East Liberty district, testified he had examined Mrs. Callahan two days previously and found her only injuries bruises in the pit of her stomach. He said there were no evidences of the jaw injuries his predecessor had testified to.

Marcella Wurmb, Mrs. McCarthy's 24-year-old daughter, testified to an argument between her mother and Callahan on August 10. Jumping up from the dinner table, she testified Callahan yelled:

"By God, I'll kill you."

He did not strike her at this time, she admitted under cross-examination. Dr. Ora W. Bell, dentist, of 3269 West Liberty avenupe, and Leo M. Coffeey, Carnegie, coroborrated the daughter's testimony and Coffeey further testified that he saw Callahan strike Mrs. McCarthy on at least one other occasion as she lay in bed.

BARBARA GETS MILLIONS

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—One-third of the Woolworth millions automatically became the property of Princess Mdivani today as the former Barbara Hutton celebrated her twenty-first birthday anniversary.

The young heiress married Alexis Mdivani, a Prince of Georgia under the Russian czars, last June in Paris.

Princess Mdivani is the granddaughter of the five-and-ten-cent store merchant, F. W. Woolworth, who died intestate, leaving an estate estimated at $58,000,000. A share in the estate fell to her at her mother's death.

Barbara's share, it is estimated, is between $10,000,000 and $20,000,000. Her father, Franklyn L. Hutton, said today she will have "partial control" over her inheritance. He would not state its size.

Jurist to Address Fathers and Sons

Judge Ralph H. Smith will be guest speaker at the father-and-son banquet of members of the Concord Presbyterian Church, Knoxville, tonight. Judge Smith spoke yesterday on "Human Misery" at the opening of the Welfare Fund drive of the University of Pittsburgh, and last night addressed members of the Ambridge and Rochester Rotary clubs at their joint banquet in Ambridge.

MAYOR-ELECT WILLIAM N. M'NAIR . . . . HE CHOOSES TO SIT IN CITY HALL'S LOBBY

McNair to Put Mayor's Desk in Lobby, He Says

Wants to Be Where Everyone Can See Him

William N. McNair, the Democratic Party's mayor-elect, is going to set his desk in the lobby of the City-County Building after his inauguration in January.

He's going to travel between home and office in a streetcar and he's not going to be a stuffed shirt. He says so himself, this way:

"I don't want that big fifth floor office—I want to be right out there where everybody can see me. How do you like that? What would I do with a limousine or a chauffeur? I've been riding streetcars all this time and I'm going to keep it up. Yes, sir."

Meanwhile, the mayor-elect concentrates on the single tax and sheds appeals for patronage like a duck sheds water.

RIGHT HAND SORE

A long procession of wellwishers and job seekers passes through Bakewell Building corridors all day long—men and women, strangers and friends.

The Mayor complains because the idealists don't want city jobs. And the ward leaders and politicians who've at last come into their own, keep coming and going, shaking hands and admiring their new Mayor-to-be.

And as they go into the office McNair presents his left hand to shake, for they've shaken his right hand sore.

And he thanks them for their congratulations and tells them he's busy and that it's too early to bother about patronage.

'THE BIG PARADE'

So they parade out again and F. W. Maguire, 82-year-old white-bearded and hearty stops them in the hall and hands them tract on the single tax. And they don't understand it, but they take it anyhow and go home to read.

Meanwhile, McNair looks forward to a mass meeting in Turtle Creek Friday night as the big moment in the near future. There he and other devotees of the single tax will educate the audience in the principle of single tax and will urge the passage by the Legislature of an act laying 5 mills taxation on land to 1 on buildings throughout the county, saying:

"That'll start a building boom so landowners can profit from highly taxed land. And unimproved land and farm land will revert to the county."

Meanwhile, Democrats talk of Cornelius D. Scully, McNair's campaign manager, for City Solicitor; James F. Malone for Director of Property and Supplies.

Munhall Man Held In Death By Auto

John W. Whitelaw, 25, of 3850 Outlook drive, Munhall, was committed to the County Jail today to await action of the grand jury on a charge of manslaughter following a coroner's jury verdict.

The verdict was rendered in the inquest into the death of Gabrielo Mastromonao, 64, 7531 Susquehanna street. Mastromonao died in Columbia Hospital October 19 as the result of injuries received when struck by an automobile driven by Whitelaw on June 24.

LINDY TO MAKE NEW SEA TOUR

CALDELAS DE TUY, Spain, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh said today he is thinking of making an exploration tour across the Atlantic Ocean by the southern route, similar to his recent stage-by-stage flight of the North Atlantic, and has no thought of a nonstop flight.

Col. Lindbergh who with Mrs. Lindbergh stayed aboard their seaplane last night after they were forced down by fog on a flight from Santona, Spain, to Lisbon, was taken ashore today by the launch of the Spanish gunboat Pradera and he and Mrs. Lindbergh were entertained by village authorities.

They said the prevailing fog and coastal storm would keep them here until tomorrow at which time they hoped to continue their trip to Lisbon toward which they set out from Geneva Saturday.

POLICE TO WAR ON MOTORISTS

A "no quarter" campaign against reckless automobile drivers was launched by police today under orders of Safety Director Harmar D. Denny, Jr.

After a conference with Police Supt. Franklin T. McQuaide and Traffic Engineer Lewis W. McIntyre, Denny directed that a general order be sent all police stations for a drive on careless drivers during November and December.

With advent of cold weather auto accidents increase, Denny pointed out, and extra caution is necessary. State and county police and state highway patrolmen have promised to co-operate, Denny asserted.

Denny issued these warning to motorists:

"Use chains when highways are slippery or covered with snow."

"Be careful in turning corners, curves and crossing bridges."

"Watch stop-light signals."

"We will give no quarter to anyone arrested for reckless or careless driving."

Petroleum Group Will Convene Here

The mid-year sessions of the American Petroleum Institute next May will be held in the William Penn Hotel, according to the decision of the executive committee.

F. A. Leovy, president of the Gulf Production Company, invited the institute to meet here.

TUBERCULOSIS 'CURE' MEETS SKEPTICISM

Expert Tells of Way To Break Down Germs

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—It is a "far cry" to the tuberculosis "cure" forecast last night by Dr. Stephen J. Maher, says a report of the information bureau of the New York Academy of Medicine today.

Dr. Maher, chairman of the Connecticut Tuberculosis Commission, announced experiments in which tuberculosis germs had turned into harmless bacteria (coccoid bodies) which produce an acid lethal to the tuberculosis germ.

ACADEMY'S REPORT

The academy here says:

"The coccoid bodies reported by Dr. Maher sound very much like the dissociated bodies which have been known to be found in old-standing cultures of tuberculosis bacilli.

"The origin of these coccoid bodies is still somewhat doubtful, although it is believed that they are degenerated or involuted forms of tubercle bacilli.

"It is a far cry from the finding of such bodies to the production of a specific cure for tuberculosis. There is nothing at this time which warrants the belief that we are finally on the trail of a specific cure for the white plague."

'PROMISE OF CURE'

SHELTON, Conn., Nov. 14.—(AP.)—The promise of "a specific cure" for tuberculosis was held forth today by Dr. Stephen J. Maher, international authority on the disease, and was hailed by his colleagues as "epoch-making."

Dr. Maher announced to a meeting of physicians, called by the Connecticut Tuberculosis Commission, of which he is chairman, that he had developed a technique for breaking down the tuberculosis germ into a harmless cell. He said:

"This new field contains, in the opinion of some of us, the long-sought and greatly needed specific cure for tuberculosis."

Well into the second hour of the meeting, Dr. Maher read his 10,000-word paper, telling the story of his work in transmuting the acid-fast tubercle bacilli into the harmless, non-acid-fast cocci and diplococci. These produced an acid, he explained, which is harmless to themselves, but full of harm to the germs from which they are derived.

Bank Bandit Gets Long Prison Term

GREENSBURG, Pa., Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Alex Zeberick, the last of six men implicated in the holdup of the Vandergrift Savings and Trust Company and the theft of a $75,000 payroll in 1925, pleaded guilty today and was sentenced to from eight to 16 years in Western Penitentiary. He also was fined $1,000.

Zeberick was arrested in Cleveland last August. He formerly lived in Monongahela City.

Secrecy Cloak Of Diplomats Has Worn Thin

—By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER—

If you try to follow that European tangle you will wind up as drillmaster for a neat string of paper dolls.

All we know is that Hitler got 40,000,000 votes and demanded a recount.

Premier Mussolini runs his elections a little different. He doesn't care who's elected so long as he gets the office.

America, Germany and Japan are all out of the League of Nations. France is still on the gold standard, and that trouble in Austria is no doll fuss.

We are as friendly with the Russians as the language will permit. It is a non-aggression pact. But may start the feathers flying in a fan dance.

It's remarkable how transparent the diplomatic world has become. Only a layer of cellophane prevents it from being a nudist colony.

Elliott's Ex-Wife Pays Visit to Roosevelts

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Mrs. Elizabeth Donner Roosevelt, divorced wife of Elliott Roosevelt, arrives at the White House today for a two-week stay.

With her will be her infant son, William, who will join "Sistie" and "Buzzie" Dall, his cousins, in the White House third floor nursery.

Mrs. Roosevelt told her press conference that Mrs. Donner Roosevelt might accompany her on a trip to Groton, Mass., Friday, or, if she prefers, might stay at the White House for a visit from a sister.

Mrs. Roosevelt will not accompany the President and his mother, Mrs. James Roosevelt, on their start for Warm Springs, Ga., Friday, but will join the President there for Thanksgiving Day.

That holiday will see the Roosevelt clan widely scattered. The President's mother will return to Hyde Park, where she always spends Thanksgiving. The President and Mrs. Roosevelt will be having their Thanksgiving turkey with between 200 and 300 people whose special interest is the cure of infantile paralysis at Warm Springs.

Mrs. Anna Dall, the Roosevelts' daughter, and her two children, "Sistie" and "Buzzie," will remain at the White House. Franklin, Jr., at Harvard, and John, at Groton School, will join Mr. and Mrs. James Roosevelt at Boston.

Bride Injured in Crash Phones Count in Chile

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—The former Merry Fahrney's latest thrill, it was revealed today, was $120 worth of telephone conversation with "Count" Giorgio di Giorgio from her bed in a hospital here to the man she says she still loves in Santiago, Chile.

Recovering from serious automobile injuries, suffered during her surprise elopement with Frank Van Sands Eiszner, the young Oak Park heiress talked with Di Giorgio and made plans to meet him at Cristobal, Canal Zone.

The new Mrs. Eiszner was discovered at the Edgewater Hospital last night, where Dr. Maximilian Kern, family physician and noted surgeon, said she had a slight concussion of the brain and three fractured ribs.

The mystery surrounding the many denials of her marriage to Eiszner was set at rest by Dr. Kern, who said that the girl confided to him that she married Eiszner, but that she is still engrossed with the prospect of meeting Di Giorgio.

Dr. Kern said:

"I know her perhaps better than anyone else. She seems to be misunderstood. She will do anything for a thrill. Merry is a nice, sober girl, but a victim of impulses.

"Since she recovered consciousness, her whole thought has been for Di Giorgio."

VOTES MISSING, U. S. CHARGES IN TRIAL

Many Democratic ballots were missing from the ballot box of the Ninth District, Third Ward, the government charged today, in opening its prosecution of alleged vote cheaters at last year's congressional elections.

Five members of the election board and an election constable were placed on trial in Federal Court, charged with conspiracy to violate the election laws, before Judge F. P. Schoonmaker.

First Assistant United States Attorney James I. Marsh threatened to ask for a postponement of the trial to avoid paying fees to more than 100 witnesses unless one of the defendants, Louis D. Petty, clerk of the election board, appeared for trial.

Petty did not respond to summons yesterday. His counsel explained he was convalescing from an operation and was not able to stand the strain. Today Petty's physician testified he believed Petty was sufficiently improved to stand trial. Petty entered the courtroom an hour and a half late and the case opened.

CHARGES VOTES MISSING

Prosecutor Marsh told the jury in his opening address:

"The Democratic ballots in the box were far less than those cast. The government also expects to show that ballots were altered by placing X marks other than those placed by the voters."

Special Prosecutor Earl F. Reed kept out of court yesterday by a counsel table today and conducted the examination of witnesses.

The defense was represented by Attorneys Charles J. Margiotti, Sebastian C. Pugliese and Robert M. McWade.

IDENTIFIES BALLOTS

John P. Wilson, clerk in the prothonotary's office, the first witness, produced return sheets and other records showing that 113 Democratic and 138 Republican votes had been cast for congressional candidates. Two hundred and seventy-six ballots had been used, he testified.

Edward Gearing, chief clerk of the Pittsburgh Registration Commission, identified vote and ballot check lists. Ray C. Deever, former ballot box custodian for the County Bureau of Elections, testified to producing the ballot box before the federal grand jury. Since then it has been locked up in the Federal Building.

In the Thirty-second Congressional District, of which the Third Ward is a part, M. J. Muldowney, Republican, was declared the winner over Mrs. Anne E. Felix, Democrat. The latter contested the election and her charges of fraud resulted in a federal probe.

JURY DRAWN

The following jury was drown to decide the case: Walter R. Breiding, bank clerk, 55 Knox avenue; Harry Rosenhamer, merchant, Coalport, Clearfield County; William J. Russell, clerk, Sheraden; John D. Ward, insurance, Eichler road, Bellevue; F. S. Dorn, salesman, Brookline; George Coles, mechanic, 2401 Osgood street; A. J. Bradley, retired, Altoona; H. C. Kunkle, farmer, Shelocta, Indiana County; James Smart, glassworker, Fallen Timber, Cambria County; H. B. Rhule, retired, Edgewood, and Harry Dick, farmer, Hadley, Mercer County.

HENRY RETAINED IN VOTE CASES

Attorney John M. Henry is back on the county payroll, representing the County Commissioners in prosecution of vote fraud cases in Federal Court. He was named a special assistant solicitor at $250 a month.

Several months ago Henry was appointed to this job, but resigned to devote himself to his campaign for the Democratic mayoralty nomination.

Chairman C. C. McGovern said the commissioners were anxious to keep posted on the Federal Court prosecutions. He said Henry would report on fraud practices to build up safeguards against future election violations.

THREE PETITION FOR RECOUNTS

Three petitions were filed in Common Pleas Court asking for a recount of the ballots cast in as many districts, to settle local disputes.

Attorney A. F. Yunker petitioned to have Kennedy Township ballots recounted on the suspicion of fraud.

Petitions also were filed by Attorney Donald M. Ralston for a recount of the First District, Second Ward, Harrison Township, and by Attorney Leo Kostman, for one in the First District of the Second Ward, Braddock.

METEOR FOUND IN ARIZONA

International News Service.

TUCSON, Ariz., Nov. 14.—A huge fireball, which hurtled through space centuries ago to unearth near Winslow, Ariz., the largest crater of its kind in the world, is believed to have been located, it was announced today by Robert E. Heineman, research investigator for the Arizona Bureau of Mines, at the University of Arizona.

In a report filed with Dr. G. M. Butler, bureau director, Heineman said that two shafts which had been sunk into the vast basin of earth had struck fragments of a meteor which were so dense that drilling was impossible. He declared that this "seems to prove that the main body of the meteor is not far below."

After more than a quarter of a century of scientific controversy, in which many noted scholars figured, this is the first time that definite proof has been found that a meteor caused the great abyss which stretches almost a mile in diameter from rim to rim and sinks to a depth of 600 feet.

J. V. THOMPSON PAPERS PUZZLE

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Lawyers face the task of determining the rightful ownership of the great mass of papers, family records and documents which the late J. V. Thompson, millionaire coal operator, collected over a period of years.

They began yesterday to assort the papers, part of which will go to the Piedmont Coal Company, a creditor, and the rest to Mrs. Stillwagon Thompson, the coal king's third wife and widow.

Creditors are selling the effects and art treasures of the one-time wealthy operator who died in poverty recently.

'Jigger' Shrunk Forever by 'Speaks'

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—The "jigger" isn't going to be so large under repeal as it used to be before prohibition, and that, according to various glassware makers, is the speakeasy's doings.

Lawbreakers of the arid era were served for the most part with "jiggers" of whisky somewhat smaller than in ante-anti decades. Makers of whisky glasses, now engaged in increased production to meet a growing demand, were agreed today that the one and one-and-a-half ounce sizes which the speakeasies used will be retained.

SLEUTH OUSTED IN M'KEESPORT

Police Lieut. James Gray, suspended September 20 from the McKeesport force, today stood dismissed by the McKeesport Council.

Gray was suspended after he was charged with inciting to riot at a Third Ward voting precinct in McKeesport at the September primaries.

Commenting on Council's dismissal, Lieut. Gray said:

"I just picked the wrong man."

He supported H. S. Arthur, defeated mayoralty candidate, in the primary campaign.

Better—because Orasol Tablets contain a remarkable new antiseptic—DIHALAL—harmless to use—yet 18 times more powerful as a germ-destroyer than Phenol—the standard by which antiseptics are judged.

Better—because Orasol gives your mouth and throat a 5-minute antiseptic treatment—the time it takes for a tablet to dissolve. Mouth washes and gargles have only a few seconds contact with infected areas.

Better, too, because you can carry Orasol Tablets with you and use them when you need an antiseptic most. They're pleasant-tasting—and harmless to everything but germs.

MUSMANNO VOTE SETS RECORD

A comparison of election statistics of previous years with returns of this year's election reveals that Judge M. A. Musmanno, with a total vote exceeding 300,000, smashed every record for vote-getting in Allegheny County.

The nearest approaches to this mark were made by Supreme Court Judge James B. Drew in 1931, when he received 250,193 votes, and County Court Judge Sara M. Soffel, who drew 267,095 votes.

Judge Musmanno said:

"I am deeply grateful to the people of Allegheny County for their most kindly attitude toward my candidacy and my political philosophy."

Railing Wrecked By Skidding Auto

Thirty feet of railing atop the Pennsylvania Railroad abutment on East Ohio street was knocked down onto the railroad tracks early today when an automobile driven by Nathan Herr, 39, of 607 Sandusky street, skidded in the snow. Herr was arrested.

SELECT SECOND KAMONS JURY

CLEVELAND, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Eleven persons today had been tentatively selected for the jury to hear the second murder trial of Louis J. Kamons, convicted Pittsburgh arsonist, on charges growing out of the Ellington apartment fire in June, 1932.

Kamon's first trial a few weeks ago ended in a mistrial after the jury had been selected and one member admitted he had talked with a co-defendant in the Ellington cases.

One of the interested spectators in the courtroom yesterday, Kamons' daughter, Lenore, took notes as each prospective juror was questioned. She heard state's attorneys ask each veniremen if he opposed capital punishment, indicating the state would ask the death penalty for her father.

Twelve persons were burned to death in the Ellington fire June 7, 1932. The state contends that Kamons, alleged head of a Pittsburgh arson ring, conspired with Ray I. Turk to burn Turk's barber supply store in the Ellington building to collect insurance.

Laundry Snatcher Held for U. S. Trial

Joseph McDermott, 34, alias Joseph McDonald, arrested Monday, for alleged theft of a mail sack, containing a parcel post package, from a loading platform in the Pennsylvania Railroad station, was held for court yesterday by the United States commissioner. The parcel post package contained laundry sent by a student at Yale University to his mother, near Cleveland, O.

TREMENDOUS SALE OF

Italian Oriental Rugs

We held a little guessing contest on the selling price of these rugs before we decided to advertise them tonight. The rug buyer kept mum while the rest of the store dignitaries (good, sound merchandisers they are, too) went all the way from 19.95 to 39.95. Of course they didn't know that the rugs were woven of cotton and not wool (but neither will anyone who sees them in your house). They judged solely on the soft warm colors, the exquisite Oriental patterns reproduced, the fringed ends and thick, soft pile. And they really are lovely! When you see them you won't leave a bare spot of floor space in your home uncovered. You can afford to buy them by the half dozen, too, at this price. They've been more, of course. This is a very special offer, just until we sell the 150 on hand.

RETAIL COUNCIL MEMBERS NAMED

Immediate administration of the general retail code in Pittsburgh and surrounding territory was assured today as the first 12 members of the local Retail Trade Council were announced by the Chamber of Commerce in cooperation with the Retail Merchants' Association.

This council will not only interpret the code but also will receive and act on all complaints of code violations, reporting to the Pittsburgh District Compliance Director, Wilson K. Ray. However, decisions of the Pittsburgh council will be subject to review by the National Retail Trade Council in Washington.

Authorized by the NRA, the council will serve without pay, but may, with the consent of the NRA administration, raise money for rent, clerical help and special assessments payable to the National Retail Trade Council. Eventually the local council's authority will be extended throughout the Pittsburgh metropolitan district as defined by the 1930 census, according to Frank C. Harper, secretary-manager of the Chamber of Commerce. This comprises Allegheny County and parts of Washington, Fayette, Westmoreland and Beaver counties.

The 12 council members appointed today are Irwin D. Wolf, Kaufmann's; Jacques Blum, Gimbel's; W. H. Burchfield, Horne's; B. B. Croup Boggs and Buhl; A. J. Mansmann Company; Hugh McKnight, hardware trade; Al Schmidt, shoes; W. B. Hamilton, C. C. Mellor Company, music; Raymond Price, Will Price, haberdashers; Leo Lehman, May-Stern, furniture; Dr. Boris Emmett, Sears, Roebuck, mail order houses, and David P. Berman, women's apparel speciality shops.

Other members will be added, according to Harper, to represent the 5-and-10-cent stores and stores in McKeesport, Braddock and other outlying communities.

Florists, jewelers, druggists and food and grocery stores are not included in the list because they operate under their own specific codes.

NRA ECONOMIST QUITS POST

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—The office of Dr. Alexander Sachs said definitely today that the New York economist had submitted his resignation as chairman of the research and planning division of the NRA. Sachs himself made no public comment. He said:

"I am making no statement in Gen. Johnson's absence. Upon his return he is the man to make a statement on the matter."

Sach's office described him as now "spending most of his time in New York," although it was indicated that he might continue to serve the recovery unit in Washington for at least two weeks longer in an advisory capacity only.

In Washington, NRA officials in the absence of Administrator Johnson said no change had taken place since a revision in the working period of Sachs early in the fall and they denied his resignation.

CURB ON RADIO BY NRA DENIED

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, national recovery administrator, today turned toward Washington and the problems awaiting settlement there after declaring the recovery act is "the people's law" and is most concerned with "the little fellow," in the final address of his tour of the Mississippi basin.

Speaking before more than 10,000 persons and interrupted several times by applause, Johnson in his speech last night denied that NRA "has censored the radio" and said the public is not being misled "by the tom-tom beating of powerful people whose own purposes are crossed" by statutes such as the NRA.

Johnson said American Federation of Labor figures show that 4,000,000 men have returned to work since the recovery administration began operations. The NRA, he continued, "perhaps bears heavier on some groups than on others, but that is not new in our history."

FARMERS BACK ON PICKET LINE

International News Service.

DES MOINES, Ia., Nov. 14.—Renewed activity in two states marked the national farm strike today with Minnesota County authorities appealing to Gov. Floyd Olson "to condemn violence."

Voting to start a nonbuying, nonselling movement immediately, 60 representatives of holiday associations in seven southern Minnesota counties joined the National Farmers' Holiday Association strike. Arrangements were made for organized picketing.

The farm strike in Wisconsin got off to a new start with the announcement by Walter M. Singler, co-operative milk pool president, that picketing on a broad scale would begin again today after a period of half-hearted activity. The milk pool has fostered three strikes this year.

Authorities in Dane County, Wis., were combatting strikers who have resorted to hurling glass containers filled with kerosene into loads of market-bound milk.

MISS PERKINS DEFENDS NRA

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins yesterday said "a new technique, another refinement of the program," will be needed in the future to get "the full stimulation that is necessary" in President Roosevelt's recovery program.

Miss Perkins, in an address before the Merchants' Association of New York, said the industrial balance provided in the recovery program would be a factor in carrying it to success.

After terming the NRA a practical method which has already achieved a great deal of good, Miss Perkins said:

"The recovery will be spotty. We shall have to worry about that, and wonder about it, and devise a new technique, another refinement of the program, in order to get the full stimulation that is necessary."

COAL DECLARED CHEAP HERE

H. L. Hudson, executive secretary of the Retail Coal Merchants Association of Greater Pittsburgh, said today that coal prices in Pittsburgh are lower than those in most cities.

Replying to reports that an investigation of price increases throughout the country was being made by the National Recovery Administration, he said retail prices had been raised because mine costs of domestic lump had jumped approximately 144 per cent since last spring.

The average price of domestic lump coal today is $5 per ton, he said, while in 1929 it was $5.50.

Price-Fixing Contested In Wholesalers' Code

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Twenty-seven wholesale trade groups today presented to NRA a master wholesale code which immediately drew fire for proposing means of establishing price levels for direct sales from manufacturers to retailers and consumers.

The code plan was that, in any trade division in which manufacturers sell to other groups as well as to wholesalers, the code authority for the particular distributing division "may," subject to approval of the federal administrator, establish price differentials between the various types of buyers "which shall be fair and reasonable."

Arthur D. Whiteside, NRA division administrator, observed:

"This is a lifetime opportunity for wholesalers and several provisions might be included in this section of the code to strengthen it."

The National Association of Manufacturers, however, filed a protest, saying this in effect authorized a boycott, and that "the executive department of the government can not, under any law now existing, authorize wholesalers or distributors or other functional groups to initiate and practice boycotts against other groups."

The protest was joined by the Consumers' Advisory Board of NRA, whose spokesman argued this would prohibit economies from reaching the consumer and "freeze" the present distribution system. The National Retail Dry Goods Association likewise argued that price concessions based on volume of purchases are legitimate, but that charging a chain of department stores more than a small wholesaler would be "unsound economics."

Phila. School Man Quits Under Fire

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Criticized for "gross negligence," Edward Merchant voluntarily terminated 42 years' service as an official of the Board of Education. Under fire in connection with school real estate transactions, Merchant yesterday announced he was not a candidate for re-election as secretary and business manager and the board named Thomas A. Hughes as his temporary successor.

NRA HELD PERIL TO CIVIL LIBERTY

Civil liberty has no meaning when mere membership in an organization which has committed no overt act is held to be a violation of the law, Miss Mary Van Kleek, of the Russell Sage Foundation, told members of the Hungry Club in the Fort Pitt Hotel yesterday.

She used the deportation case of Frank Borich, an organizer of the National Miners Union, as an example.

The speaker warned that the NRA might be used to prevent the exercise of civil liberties, and predicted such a course "is headed straight toward revolution." She said in part:

"If we are to be prosecuted for opinions, then the last vestige of democracy is gone. The NRA is a threat of autocracy, its course must be anticipated and guarded against.

"The National Recovery Act is an effort to reconcile the interest of private corporations in raising prices and stimulating production with the necessity for raising wages and shortening hours for workers.

"The administration of the act gives responsibility for the making of the codes to trades associations, while insuring to workers freedom to organize and to bargain collectively."

Miss Van Kleek spoke on "Economic Planning and the Workers' Standards of Living" in the Chatham Street Y. W. C. A. last night.

Farley Plans First Vacation in Europe

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Postmaster General Farley said last night that he expected to leave on a vacation trip to Europe some time before the first of December.

He will be away three or four weeks, and probably will visit Rome, Paris, Brussels and London. Farley said it would be the first real vacation he had ever taken, and that in the past two or three years he had been working almost constantly.

Hunters Find Man Hanged to Tree

The body of Andrew Frajt, 55, of 176 Milford street, Duquesne, was found hanging to a tree in Versailles, a half-mile from the Boston Bridge, late yesterday, according to a coroner's report.

It was found by two hunters, Charles Carnahan, of 323 Wood street, and Charles Klug, of First street extension, both of Versailles. Frajt was despondent over unemployment, Deputy Coroner Roy Addlesburger was informed.

U. S. WILLING TO RESUME ARMS TALK

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Norman H. Davis reiterated to newsmen today that the United States would not participate in any European political discussions but was ready to talk disarmament with any nation.

The ambassador-at-large, who has just returned from the Geneva disarmament conference, said the future of this meeting would depend upon the crystallization of public opinion and that the disarmament cause was not hopeless by any means.

He said talk of war in Europe frequently heard two or three months ago had diminished considerably before he sailed and attributed the change to the reflection of public sentiment in European governments.

Davis expressed the views gained as chief of the American disarmament delegation to President Roosevelt at luncheon, after conferring at length with Under-Secretary William Phillips, of the State Department, and Pierpont Moffett, chief of the Western European division.

Declining to set any time limits on the future of the Geneva conference, Davis declared he could not forecast which nation might take the initiative in the present situation.

Asked about the statement of Arthur Henderson, of Great Britain, who has threatened to withdraw as president of the conference, Davis recalled that Henderson previously had said he would not be able to continue if the conference was not concluded by Christmas.

FRANCE CALLS ON NAZIS TO TALK ARMS

By WILLIAM PARKER
International News Service.

PARIS, Nov. 14.—France today invited Germany to enter into direct negotiations for a disarmament agreement which would allay Europe's fear of war.

In a speech in the Chamber of Deputies, Foreign Minister Joseph Paul-Boncour extended the olive branch to the Hitlerite regime, fresh from an overwhelming victory in last Sunday's elections. After expressing a desire to collaborate with the Nazis in the interests of peace, Paul-Boncour declared:

"France is ready to listen to concrete German proposals to that end."

Germany is re-arming after her withdrawal from the League of Nations and the Geneva Disarmament Conference, said Paul-Boncour, and, he added:

"The only serious guarantee against German re-armament is a disarmament convention."

Britain Seeks German Return to Parley

LONDON, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—On the heels of the threat by Arthur Henderson to resign as president of the disarmament conference came a report in the Daily Mail today that the British government is taking steps to call a further parley elsewhere than at Geneva—with Germany represented.

The Mail's political writer, in a story that was not immediately confirmed by other sources, said the British government has not given up hope of getting Germany back into some kind of disarmament talks.

It was added that no place for such a meeting had been decided upon.

Henderson's threat to quit unless governments change their "attitude" toward arms discussions was read to the House of Commons last night. His personal message said:

"No results are likely to be achieved by the attitude adopted by the delegations at a recent meeting, and it is useless for me to remain here (at Geneva) for months unless the attitude changes."

Germany Waits Move On Arms by Rivals

BERLIN, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Germany was believed today to be looking expectantly for a friendly gesture from abroad in matters of international politics—especially disarmament.

The threat of Arthur Henderson, of Great Britain, to resign as president of the Disarmament Conference unless nations change their "attitude" regarding arms was interpreted here merely as Henderson's personal disappointment in regard to disarmament questions.

As plans for radical changes internally were discussed, the population continued its celebration today of the Nazi triumph when voters indorsed the government's foreign policy stand Sunday.

One of Chancellor Hitler's first moves is expected to be in the direction of massing the federated states under Berlin's complete central authority.

It also was learned that Hitler is likely to approve a political amnesty soon. More than 90 concentration camps gave the Hitler cause an overwhelming vote Sunday.

Duquesne Heights Wants Tower to See Downtown

About 150 residents of Duquesne Heights want the city to purchase a strip of property at Grandview avenue and Republic street, on which to construct an observation tower overlooking the downtown district.

A petition signed by the residents was introduced in Council yesterday afternoon.

CRUCIFIX FACES NAZI BAN

BERLIN, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—The crucifix will disappear from Protestant churches in Germany, if Dr. Reinhold Krause, chief of the Berlin section of the Nazi German Christians, has his way.

Addressing a mass meeting here last night, he declared:

"The crucifix is to be discarded. Everything that sprang from the alien spirit must be removed from the German people's church—be it ever so old and apparently venerable.

"The holy places of Palestine must not be visited, but instead those of Germany.

"The Old Testament must be excluded and palpably misrepresenting or superstitious reports of the New Testament stricken out.

"In the German church, men of alien blood have no place—either on or under the pulpit."

GARAVINI RITES TOMORROW

Funeral services for Andrew Garavini, 37, slain William Penn way hacker, will be held tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock in St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church, Fernando street, with the Rev. Cherubino Viola, pastor, in charge. Burial will be in Calvary Cemetery.

Garavini died in Mercy Hospital early yesterday of peritonitis and pneumonia, resulting from two bullet wounds in the abdomen received in a fight at the Grant street entrance of the William Penn Hotel.

Irwin (Izzy) Swartz, racetrack bookmaker and former husband of Mrs. Margaret Garavini, widow of the slain man, was charged with Garavini's murder by the Coroner. Garavini and Swartz are said to have quarreled over Mrs. Garavini.

Four New Buildings For Marine Hospital

Ground for the last of four new buildings to be erected at the Marine Hospital, Fortieth street and Penn avenue, will be broken within a few days, officials said today. The cost of the new units will be about $157,000.

The hospital, started in 1842, is maintained by the United States Public Health Service.

CATARRHAL DEAFNESS MAY BE OVERCOME

If you have Catarrhal Deafness or head and ear noises or are growing hard of hearing go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength), and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has catarrhal deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial.

NUDIST CAMPS GET BOSTON O.K.

Universal Service.

BOSTON, Nov. 14.—In Boston, of all places, the seal of official approval has been placed upon nudist camps.

That is, of course, if the practitioners keep their nudism to themselves.

Brig. Gen. Daniel H. Needham, commander of the state police, announced he would not interfere with the operation of the winter camp for nudists at Otis, at an isolated spot in the Berkshires, and the decision brought joy to several Harvard aristocrats, doctors, actors and actresses and at least two clergymen who will live at the camp regularly on weekends.

The clergymen—the Rev. Isley Boone and the Rev. Henry S. Huntington—are among the founders of the retreat. They said that sincere nudists from other cities would be welcomed at Otis, which they believe will be most elaborate and complete nudist center in the United States.

EAGLES' EDITOR GETS PARDON

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt today granted a pardon to Frank E. Hering, of South Bend, Ind., just as he was about to enter prison to serve a four months' sentence for conviction of violating the anti-lottery law.

Hering was editor of a magazine published by the Order of Eagles and was convicted with Conrad Mann, of Kansas City, of violating the anti-lottery law in administering the affairs of the Eagles.

Mann who received a similar sentence is still under consideration from executive clemency.

Although relieving Hering of his prison sentence, the President stipulated he must pay the $2,000 fine levied against him.

SINGERS MERGE INTO CHORAL

The United Christian Church choir of 170 voices which sang at the recent international convention at Syria Mosque has formed a permanent organization to be known as the Christian Church Choral Club, it was announced today.

The new organization is under the direction of W. A. Davies, of Carnegie Institute of Technology.

New Bishop Feted; Boyle at Reception

The most Rev. Hugh C. Boyle, bishop of the Pittsburgh Diocese, will be among the 42 Roman Catholic prelates and two cardinals who will attend a reception tonight in the Mayflower Hotel, Washington, in honor of the Most Rev. James H. Ryan, rector of the Catholic University of America. Monsignor Ryan was recently created Bishop of Modra by Pope Pius XI.

How sad! Sallow complexion, coated tongue, poor appetite, bad breath, pimply skin and always tired. What's wrong? Chances are you're poisoned by clogged bowels and inactive liver. Take this famous prescription used constantly in place of calomel by men and women for 30 years—Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. They are harmless yet very effective. A compound of vegetable ingredients. They act easily upon the bowels, help free the system of poison caused by faulty elimination and tone up liver.

Rosy cheeks, clear eyes and youthful energy make a success of life. Take Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets, nightly. Know them by their olive color. 15c, 30c and 60c. All druggists.

Chickens and Dog In Bedroom Lead To Divorce

Charging that her husband kept three chickens and a dog in the bedroom of their home, Augusta Sampson, of 512 Suismon street, today was granted a divorce by Judge William H. McNaugher from Patrick Sampson, taxi driver, of 2728 Penn avenue.

Mrs. Sampson said they were married January 5, 1932, and went to his home to live with his mother.

She said her husband drank, called her vile names and made her keep an account of everything she bought at the stores. They lived together about two months, she said.

Movie Actress Divorces Producer

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Mary Jacobs, known on the screen as Barbara Barondess, got a divorce yesterday.

She testified her husband, Irving Jacobs, motion picture producer and distributor, called her a "rotten actress," objected when she sent to her parents money she earned by acting, and sat in a corner and read while she entertained guests.

TITLE REVEALED BY DEATH

For almost 30 years, Count Thor Stgernklo Lillienberg, of 327 Swissvale avenue, Wilkinsburg, had worked under the name of Charles Lillienberg because he wished to conform to the democratic ideals of the country to which he had immigrated.

Neighbors and fellow workers today learned of his titled rank as funeral services were being held from the Eaton funeral home, 733 Ross avenue, Wilkinsburg. Count Lillienberg died Saturday.

He was proud of his family, ennobled in 1705, which still retains its titles in Sweden. But like his sister, Mrs. Fredericka Morsing, of Sewickley, who came to this country in 1882, he believed titles had no place in a republic.

King Carol Names Liberal Cabinet

BUCHAREST, Nov. 14.—(INS.)—A Liberal cabinet was named by King Carol today to succeed the ministry of former Premier Alexdandru Vaida-Voevod, resigned.

Jon Duca was named premier and Nichola Titulescu, former ambassador to London, minister of foreign affairs. Simu Bratianu was appointed finance minister.

PARADE TO OPEN YULE SEASON NOV. 25

Urging a revival of the old-fashioned Christmas spirit, Mayor John S. Herron, in a proclamation yesterday, designated Saturday, November 25, as the official opening of the Yuletide season here, and indorsed the plan of civic and business interests of the city to hold a "Santa Claus" parade on that day.

The Mayor will extend official welcome to "Santa Claus," who will be one of the principal features of the parade that will move through the downtown district the morning of November 25.

The event will be under the direction of the Pittsburgh civic parade committee, and will be different from anything of the kind ever attempted here, with attractions appealing to both children and adults. Participation in the parade is open to any resident of the city or outlying districts.

Thirty-one prizes have been offered by the parade committee for the most striking costumes to be worn in the line of march. Although there will be six bands in the parade, four prizes have been set up for non-professional bands and drum corps which make the best showing.

Contestants for the awards have been asked to register their names and the type of character they intend to depict at the headquarters of the Pittsburgh Civic Parade Committee, 1915 Oliver Building.

In addition to the bands and costumed marchers, there will be a dozen or more floats in the parade. The demonstration was conceived as a plan to support President Roosevelt's plea for confidence in the administration drive toward economic recovery.

Workman Crushed By Casting Dies

George Mann, 41, of South Twenty-seventh street, died last night in South Side Hospital from injuries suffered when a casting fell on him in the South Side plant of the Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation, where he was employed, the Coroner's office reported.

The accident occurred early yesterday.

Hit-Run Truckman Sought After Crash

North Side Police today sought the driver of a truck who, they said, failed to stop after it struck the trailer of another truck in West General Robinson street, near Corry street, last night.

The trailer was knocked against a Duquesne Light Company pole, which was snapped at the base, bringing wires down in its fall.

"Why did they put VITAMIN A in SMITH BROTHERS Cough Syrup?"
"Doctors have found that it leads to faster COLD and COUGH recovery and fewer re-infections"

Since last winter an astounding advance has been made in the treatment of coughs, colds.

The way has been found to use Primary VITAMIN A . . . the "Anti-Infective" vitamin. It is the weapon that Nature herself uses to fight coughs and colds.

Smith Brothers Cough Syrup now contains this Primary Vitamin A.

Now Smith Brothers Cough Syrup not only gives you fast, pleasant cough relief. Its Primary Vitamin A aids Nature in DRIVING the cough and cold out of the system faster. And it raises your resistance against re-infection.

The only cough syrup giving you the priceless benefits of Vitamin A is SMITH BROTHERS'.

STARVATION BIG CRIME SOURCE, JUDGE SAYS

It will cost the taxpayers of Allegheny County $800,000 a year to operate Criminal Court until the standard of life is raised for those living on a half-starved basis, according to Judge James H. Gray.

He was addressing the Retail Credit Men's Association in McCreery's dining room, saying he wanted to burn that thought into everybody's heart and added:

"We will not get rid of vice, crime and disorder simply by punishing them. That perhaps is a deterent but we are going to continue to pay the $800,000 a year until we recognize that the vast majority of persons who get into Criminal Court are nearly on the verge of want.

"Lack of moral stamina will continue until life is made better for everyone. That means to give all an opportunity to maintain a decent life through an adequate wage."

Judge Gray contended there is little crime among people who have had some spiritual culture. He favored applying the credit rule to persons who buy stocks, saying:

"No one should be permitted to buy more than he is able to pay for."

Followings Judge Gray's address, David H. Goldman was inducted into office as the association's new president.

Others to assume office were Felix Weil, R. W. Philips and C. G. Kaessner, vice presidents; C. Guy Ferguson, secretary; J. A. Brown, treasurer, and Mr. Brown, W. E. Morgan and C. E. Willis, directors.

Col. Franklin Blackstone introduced the speakers, including Joseph A. Beck, who spoke in the interest of the Welfare Fund. J. B. Lindberg, retiring president, presided.

First Black Bear Bagged in Somerset

SOMERSET, Pa., Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Clyde Legerson returned to his Glen Savage home proudly displaying the fruits of the hunt—the first black bear killed in Somerset County this season.

The bear, weighing almost 200 pounds, was shot by Legerson while he and a party of friends were hunting in Fair Hope Township yesterday.

DYING HUNTER AIDED BY DOG

INDIANA, Pa., Nov. 14.—(AP.)—As Florio Kluchorsky, 17, lay in a snow-covered field, dying from a shotgun wound accidentally inflicted, police say, by a hunting companion, his faithful dog stood by and finally attracted searchers by his barking.

The story was unfolded yesterday at a Coroner's inquest at which Mike Elko, 16, of Dixonville, was ordered held on a charge of manslaughter as officers asserted he fled panic-stricken after the shooting, leaving Kluchorsky, a fellow townsman, to die.

A statement submitted by the District Attorney and attributed to Elko said he first planned to get aid after his shotgun discharged, sending a fatal charge into Kluchorsky's back, but that he became frightened and went home.

CHILD PIANIST HAILED IN N. Y.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—The music critics told in superlatives today the story of 8-year-old Ruth Slenczynski's Town Hall piano recital.

Child prodigies come in time to be commonplaces, but the little California girl with the long name and short legs which barely reached the pedals jolted the critics into rapturous notices.

"A musical phenomenon," and "this amazing child" were expressions used by the Herald-Tribune critic in reporting her performance.

"What fire!" said the New York Times, devoting nearly a column to the Sacramento-born prodigy whose hands, barely adequate to span an octave, raced through a program of Bach, Beethoven Mendelssohn and Chopin.

The American said:

"The performance given by this 8-year-old girl calls for a high degree of astonishment on the part of even a hardened professional reviewer."

Last night's recital was Ruth's first in America, except only a recital on the Pacific Coast two years ago.

Radio Patrolmen Will Attend School

Lieut. Dan McGreevy, in charge of emergency and scout cars, will present Supt. Franklin T. McQuaide a schedule tomorrow by which radio officers will be assigned to classes in the newly-formed police revolver school.

Members of the automobile squad of the Detective Bureau under Lieut. Edward O'Rourke also will enroll as students in the school. After the first of the year, the superintendent hopes to have all city patrolmen assigned to classes.

TRIBUTE PAID DR. WOODFIN

The Rev. Dr. William M. Woodfiin, resigned pastor of the Third United Presbyterian Church, was honored by more than 75 civic and business leaders of Squirrel Hill at a meeting in the home of Oliver C. Hurst, Bartlett street.

Speakers were the Rev. Dr. John Ray Ewers, of the East End Christian Church; the Rev. Dr. J. S. Payton, of the Asbury Methodist Episcopal Church, and the Rev. Dr. H. H. Forsythe, of the Sixth Presbyterian Church.

LANGLEY HIGH BOY VANISHES

The Missing Persons Bureau today was searching for Herbert Krueger, 16-year-old Langley High School student, who disappeared yesterday from his home, 1233 Berry street, Sheraden, after leaving a note saying the school's band leader had sent him on an errand downtown.

The boy's mother, Mrs. Mathilda Krueger, found the note when she returned home. At the school she learned the band leader had not asked her son to run the errand.

Herbert is five feet, 10 inches tall, weighs 130 pounds and has brown hair and brown eyes. He was wearing an oxford gray suit, a brown overcoat and cap and black shoes.

Fewer Auto Tags Sent Out This Year

Do as your dentist does—
when he cleans your teeth

Powder Cleans and Whitens Teeth
—as nothing else can

THERE is nothing known that will clean and polish teeth so quickly and leave them so gleamingly white—as POWDER.

That is why your dentist, when cleaning your teeth, as you know—always uses powder.

As it is only the powder part of any dentifrice that cleans, a dentifrice that is ALL POWDER just naturally cleans best.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is ALL POWDER—100% cleansing properties. This is more than twice the cleansing properties of tooth pastes.

Dull Teeth Become White

Dentists everywhere recommend Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder, because—teeth simply cannot remain dull and film coated when it is used.

It cleans off all stains and tartar, and polishes the teeth in a harmless and practical way that leaves them sparkling—many shades whiter.

No Grit—No Pumice

Free from all grit or pumice, Dr. Lyon's cannot possibly scratch, or injure the softest enamel, as years of constant use have shown.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder keeps your teeth REALLY CLEAN and clean teeth mean—firm, healthy gums, freedom from pyorrhea and the least possible tooth decay.

Lasts Longer—Costs Less

Once you use Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder, you will never be satisfied to use anything else. It leaves your teeth feeling so much cleaner, your mouth so refreshed, and your breath so sweet and pure.

Dr. Lyon's is not only doubly efficient, but it costs only half as much to use. Even a small package lasts twice as long as a tube of tooth paste.

CHARGES MADE OVER WINDOW CLEANER PAY

Charging he withheld parts of wages due them, four employes of the National Window and Office Cleaning Company have filed informations against D. E. Heckman, manager.

They are Jack Crawford, of 411 Ella street; James Siters, 16 West Stockton avenue; John Saloum, Midway, Pa., and Samuel G. Meyers, 212 Kaercher street.

Alderman Thomas Geary held hearings yesterday on the charges by Crawford and Siters but postponed decisions until Friday. Hearings on the other two charges have been set for that day.

The men said deductions from their weekly pay envelopes by Heckman amounted to more than money advanced them. They charged they were forced to sign pay slips before Heckman wrote in the deductions.

In answer, Heckman says:

"The charge they have filed against me is a criminal charge of failure to pay wages and the men themselves admit that we have paid them wages—every cent that was due them for the work they did.

"They are all strikebreakers, men we hired during the window cleaners' strike settled last month. After their second week of work, we told them that the picnic was over, and that they could work on the same basis as all our other men."

LYSLE ASKS TAX PENALTY CUT

A bill to reduce the interest rate on delinquent taxes was offered to McKeesport Council yesterday by Mayor George H. Lysle.

The bill calls for a six per cent interest rate on all unpaid taxes up to and including the year 1933 instead of the present penalty rate of 12 per cent. The Mayor said:

"I feel that a reduction in the penalty would cause a payment of a large amount of these delinquent taxes."

Beware the Cough or Cold That Hangs On

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, and attacks the seat of the trouble.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Your own druggist is authorized to refund your money on the spot if your cough or cold is not relieved by Creomulsion.

Do Continued 'Dutch Treat' Dates Spoil Boys?

How about Dutch treat dates? Are they crazy? Or will it spoil the boy friend if you pay your own way?

And now? But we'll let her tell it.

Dear Elsie:

Do "Dutch Treat" dates spoil a fellow? I never used to think so, but I'm ready to believe it now.

When I first started going out with my Boy Friend, it was always he taking me out, although not to expensive places. I enjoyed going out, and always tried to do my part to make the evening pleasant for him.

Well, finally Jack lost his job, and we didn't go any place for the longest time, even a movie, because he wanted to save what money he had, which wasn't much.

I finally talked him into letting me pay my own way, because I hated not going any place. He didn't like the idea, but he did agree to it finally. So for one year he never spent a cent on me. I didn't mind that, because he still wasn't working, and I thought that if he did have any money he wouldn't let me pay my way. We enjoyed each other's company, and had good times.

But at last he found a job. Yet our dates are still "Dutch Treat." He isn't getting a big salary, but it is more than I am getting. Even now I wouldn't think anything about it, if we went to expensive places, but we don't. Even if we only go visiting, I pay my own carfare. If we get a bag of candy I pay my share.

DISAGREES

It's beginning to get on my nerves. It is not the money itself that bothers me. It's the idea that he should still expect me to pay, when he has a job. I feel that if he would only spend 50 cents on me, to go to a small show, I would feel different. It gives you an altogether different feeling, to have a fellow invite you out and take you places as his guest, than it does if you pay your own way.

Some time ago I read a letter from a boy named Paul, who seemed to think all girls should pay their own way. I don't agree with him. He seemed to think that a girl was "getting away" with a lot, when she went out with a fellow and didn't have to pay for any of the fun.

But boys don't realize that girls do their part, in other ways than handling the B. F. the money to pay for their half of the evening. How about the times the girls have the gang in for a feed, and buy all the eats? They don't ask the boys to pay half then, do they? Or when they come home and dig up a "light lunch" after a show? Or make fudge? The boys don't seem to realize that those things cost money, too.

WOULD PAY FOR GUEST

And, personally, if I invited a guest out, I'd feel cheap not paying for all the entertainment. I like to entertain, and I like to be entertained. I'm getting tired of the way things are going.

So what I am really trying to find out is how I can make Jack see what he is doing to me without hurting his feelings. I don't want to just stop offering my money. I want him to be man enough not to expect me to pay.

Of course I know it isn't all his fault. I talked him into it in the first place. But after all, when I did it I supposed it was for "Depression Only," and not for keeps, and now that the depression is over for him, I want him to be the man I always thought he was. Instead, he seems to take it for granted that this is going to keep up always. I am wondering—is there something wrong with him? Did the "Dutch Treat" idea spoil him?

MISS TWENTY.

Who's right? She, or Jack?

Do You think the Femmes should pay their own way? If so—Why?

Beauty Not Always an Unalloyed Treasure, Observes Fay King

I'M SICK OF BEING TOLD I'M PRETTY. DOESN'T ANY ONE THINK I AM CLEVER ALSO?
SURE THAT LEERING OLD VULTURE WOULD HELP ME — BUT I KNOW WHAT THAT WOULD MEAN!
SO — THEYVE PICKED HER — BECAUSE SHE'S YOUNGER AND BETTER LOOKING FAY KING

By FAY KING

Real beauties are born, not made.

Of course, every girl can and should improve what looks she may have, but true beauty is perfection from birth.

Every woman would wish to be beautiful just to be more pleasing to those she would please.

Yet, strange as it may seem, we have heard the beautiful express envy of those who are plainer.

The beauty resents always hearing her good looks more praised than her good work.

The danger of beauty in distress is much greater. Beauty too often appeals most to those who would protect it least.

Beauty without merit succeeds more easily than merit without beauty. But it also fails more quickly when beauty fades, while merit will survive.

Given in Marriage

A Sequel Heart Of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

New Threat to Youngsters' Happiness Seen

As Philip Veritzen tossed his verbal hand grenade into our midst, he leaned slightly forward in his chair, for all the world, I told myself, as if he were gauging the force of the explosion and its effect upon each of us.

Only Noel betrayed any disturbed reaction to his father's astounding request that Avis Arlen be permitted to act as bridesmaid to Mary at the hurried, informal, home wedding we were planning for our two "love birds," as Harry and Dicky persist in calling them. But I was sure that his father, looking from one face to another with an amused, slightly sardonic little smile just touching the corners of his mouth, was well aware of the consternation which the exploding of his little bombshell had caused in each of our breasts.

"Avis Arlen?" Noel stammered. 'Why! I thought she was in St. Louis or Chicago—out West somewhere."

"You haven't been keeping very much in touch with me lately," his father said, with a touch of smiling reproof in his voice, "or you would have known that she and her mother came back to New York not quite two weeks ago, and that Avis is employed, for the present, in my office."

GROUP PUZZLED

I saw Lillian's eyebrows arch ever so slightly at that phrasing "for the present," which had affected me much as a sudden icy draft of wind might have done. Was that the way he meant to punish the girl for the theft of the letter from me to him, telling him of the date of Noel's marriage—the theft of which I had refused to give him any proof, even though I held the purloined letter in my bag at the very moment of his questioning?

But, if his wrath were roused against his old friend's daughter to a degree permitting him to rob her of her only means of livelihood—granting that her story of her mother's losses were true—why should he be planning at the same time to upset all the arrangements for the wedding, in order to gratify a mere whim of the girl's?

There was a dusky-hued gentleman hidden in the woodpile somewhere, I told myself, although I had not opportunity now either to locate him or to establish his identity. But, with the conviction that something was distinctly amiss, I resolved to watch Philip Veritzen's actions and reactions closely until the wedding—and afterward.

Mary, with her characteristic fearlessness, was the first of us to speak.

"Working! Avis Arlen?" she said. "I hope Old Man Depression hasn't reached out and grabbed her."

DISREGARD OF TRUTH

She was sparring for time. I knew that by the flippancy of her tone, and I did not know which emotion was strongest within me, pity for Mary in having to accept a girl she loathed as one of her bridal attendants, anger against Noel's father for forcing the question upon her, or fear of what might lie behind this unusual proposal.

Philip Veritzen's expressive eyebrows narrowed.

"Her mother has lost a great deal of money, she tells me," he said. Again I had the sensation of some hidden meaning behind his words. "I, of course, found a place for her in my organization until I can find out what can be done about her mother's finances; but I fancy they are in rather bad shape. That is one reason why I wish to indulge the child's whim to be one of your bridesmaids. She was tremendously thrilled by the news that you were to be married."

I looked at him in astonishment at his utter disregard of the truth. Avis had stolen the letter containing the news of Noel's wedding, and of course had dared say nothing of it to Philip Veritzen until he, himself, should tell her of it. She had fled from the office right after my 'phoned message, and I was certain that she had had no conversation whatever with him upon that subject or any other. He was spinning this particular tissue of falsehood without any foundation of thread.

"But all this is beside the mark," Mr. Veritzen went on smoothly: "You have not yet answered my question. Are you willing that Miss Avis shall be one of your bridesmaids"

Hints for the Household

Georgette is often spoiled through careless laundering. Squeeze the garment gently in a warm lather of good soap flakes, putting the hands under the material to prevent any strain. Rinse in several waters, squeeze and roll in a Turkish towel to dry.

Whenever packing away bundles of clothing, blankets, furs, etc., to be used at some future date, label the outside of them so that they need not be unwrapped to find out the contents of the package. It will save you so much trouble at some future date.

Don't forget to be around when the paperhanger is packing up after his work is done so that you can ask for some samples of the various papers he has used. It is the only way you will be prepared in case of an accident to the paper later on.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

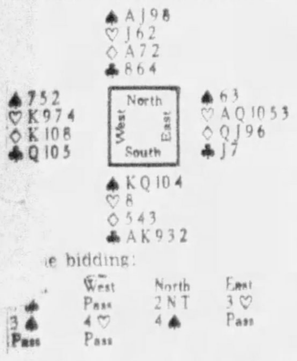
Establishing the Dummy

One of the least understood methods of play is that of establishing the Dummy as the master hand and the Declarer's cards as the supporting hand. This principle, important as it is, assumes an even greater importance when the Declarer has early been shortened in trumps in his own hand and finds that he cannot draw the adverse trumps and then establish low cards as trick winners because of the lack of entries.

Mr. Lew Weber, of Cincinnati, O., recently played in an important tournament the hand below, in which faced with that unusual situation, he was the only player to find the method of winning the greatest number of tricks at the final contract.

South, Dealer.

North and South vulnerable.



The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	2 N T	3 ♡	3 ♠
4 ♡	4 ♠	Pass	Pass
Pass

Most players would prefer a spade response with North's hand to the Opening bid of one club. East's bid of three hearts, even not vulnerable, was not a good one as it made certain that the hand would not be played in notrump—though, as a matter of fact, it probably would not have been in any event. South's Rebid of his hand was fully justified, but West's Raise, not vulnerable, might easily be badly penalized. The final bid of four spades by North is, of course, self-evident.

The Opening lead was the heart King and another heart was led, which South was forced to ruff at once, thus reducing his trump holding to three. Mr. Weber now laid down his spade King, overtaking in Dummy with the Ace, and then led one round of clubs, which West was permitted to win with the Ten. At this point West continued with another round of hearts and this Mr. Weber ruffed with the Queen. He now returned his last spade, the Ten-spot, overtaking with the Knave in Dummy in order that the adverse trumps might be drawn. One more round exhausted the trumps, and then a club was led from Dummy. From that point on there were no more tricks for East and West.

Thus the contract of four was not only fulfilled, but an overtrick was made as well, a result which could not have been attained had not South at once decided to make the Dummy the master hand and permit the cards he held in the closed hand to play a subordinate but no less important role.

Fashion Flashes

Take time out in the form of a new bag with a cunning little watch embedded in the marcasite clasp. This clasp is detachable, and even without it the black antelope bag with its scalloped top is handsome.

A double life is the portion of a clever new muff which also serves as a handbag. Designed for evening wear, this square muff-bag is made of petals of white velvet, with a center panel of white coq feathers.

What use is the nicest evening costume without the right handbag? A delightful new bag is of white and gold brocade, its color scheme carried out in the scalloped frame, which is of filagree gold with pearls arranged in latticed effect.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

With the Tuxedo

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

JACK.

Yes, a man may wear, with his dinner jacket, a soft felt hat either in gray or black, or a derby hat, or, if he wishes to be very "dressy," a top hat.

Introductions

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—When one wishes to present a man friend to a relative, for example to an aunt . . . should one say, "Aunt Mary, may I introduce Mr. Brown," or "Mrs. Smith, may I introduce Mr. Brown?"

2—In introducing a man friend to another man, whose name should be mentioned first?

3—When introducing a man to a man and his wife, should the lady be introduced first?

C.

1—The first form is correct.

2—It makes no difference . . . mention either name first.

3—Yes. First introduce the man to the wife, and then to the husband.

PARENTS: IMPORTANT TO USE LIQUID FORM OF LAXATIVE

(Read what doctors say)

Doctors say to use only liquid laxatives for youngsters; and preferably one with senna. A liquid laxative can be regulated as to dose. The natural laxative action of senna does not weaken the bowels.

That the laxative habit can be contracted at the age of six?

You wouldn't give your youngster a powerful headache powder! You shouldn't give him a violent cathartic.

Druggists report increasing sales of liquid laxatives. Mothers are rapidly discovering the advantage of the liquid form. Thousands of cases of ill-health—and half-health—in children are being cleared-up by stopping all use of any laxative of adult strength.

The preparation most favored for child use is California Syrup of Figs. It is a fruity syrup with the right amount of senna for gentle stimulation of a child's bowels. It gives the right kind of help.

Don't Give Your Children the Cathartic Habit!

If the bowels aren't moving regularly and thoroughly, do not give any medicine which drains the system dry. Give a liquid senna preparation like California Syrup of Figs. A little every day, and reduce the dose each day. At the end of one week—stop. You'll be surprised how long it will be before the bowels need any further help. It may be months.

Be sure you get the real California Syrup of Figs, with "California" on the label. If you get the right preparation, and use it the right way, you can absolutely end all worry over constant sluggish spells, bilious attacks, constipation.

All druggists keep California Syrup of Figs, ready for use. It is highly recommended for regulating children, and to undo the mischief done by habit-forming laxatives.

Fred Waring's Broadcast Doubled

By AIRCASTER

The cigaret makers are showing a distinct inclination to the Columbia waves. The gentlemen who pay the prodigious bills for the Fred Waring show have lately been huddling and have emerged with philanthropy in their hearts.

They opine that the appreciative public, which has shown a more than kindly reaction to Mr. Waring's waftings, deserves a better break.

And so they've just about decided to adopt another half hour, on some other night than Wednesday, which will schedule the show twice a week.

Atop this decision comes the news that the other smokemakers, who once knocked the radio audience out of its seats with the Downey-Renard - Wons combination, have decided at least upon what band they will use for the Tuesday and Thursday half hours on CBS-WJAS, to commence November 21.

The music will be provided by Glen Gray and his Casa Loma orchestra. The remainder of the talent remains uncertain.

There was talk that Mildred Bailey and Roy Atwell were favored. Milly Bailey, however, is reported to have made too many stipulations, among them, that there was to be no other vocalist on the bill.

The scouts report that this proposal turned the sponsors sour on Miss Bailey.

Wm. Lyon Phelps

Columbia-WJAS is wising up a waiting world about a new show in the making. It is to have its premiere on Thursday night at 8:30, under the patriotic title of "The Voice of America."

It will be heard once a week. The outstanding personality on this bill, say the prophets, will be Cal Tinney, whom you may remember as the whimsical "Senator from Oologah, Oklahoma."

Patricia Dorn and Donald Burr, who are a brace of juveniles kidnaped from the musical comedy stage, are also in the cast.

But what distinguishes the bill is the fact that William Lyon Phelps, who has taken a fancy to radio, will be the "voice." In case you've let it slip your mind, Monsieur Phelps is former Lampson professor of English at Yale.

Globe-Trotting

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

Say, Rennerdale, is that a hypothetical question or is there someone up there who has $100?

Answering Lois Morgan, it is permissible to have $100 in gold or gold certificates.

All $100 bills are not gold certificates (don't promise to pay in gold coin) and you can have as many of them as you wish. They're not bad, either.

And listen, Tarentum! When you send letters like the last one send along a warning. Ann Bales, the pretty girl who opens the mail, didn't eat lunch today.

Charles J. Baker, plant superintendent of the borough, was cooperating in identifying lost, strayed or otherwise missing pigeons. He found one in the borough smokestack and sent the band along.

What bothered Ann was that it was still around the claw. Its number was Pgh. 10090.

Her decidedly fishy letter invites me to the aquarium for a swim if I know the answer to this query: "What kind of a noise annoys an oyster?"

Mrs. Ethyl Krieger—I haven't been able to identify the State Policeman you have indicated in the picture. I do know he is from Troop A, Greensburg, and a letter there will bring you the information you want.

Warning—The Alabama Wildcat poet, Julian Lee Rayford, comes back tomorrow at noon with his new poem about Pittsburgh. Better keep the dogs tied up.

RECOVERY BILLS PUSHED IN ASSEMBLY

HARRISBURG, Nov. 14.—Recovery legislation pushed forward rapidly in the State Senate today while House committees juggled a variety of liquor control and taxation measures.

Two of the administration's three recovery bills were passed on second reading in the Senate. A third reposed in committee. Introduction of five more to enable the Keystone State to participate in the national recovery drive was expected.

The two recovery measures swept through committee and first reading yesterday. One would permit the Governor to borrow federal funds for bridge construction. Both bills come up for final action tomorrow.

AID TO INSTITUTIONS

Construction of a state finance building and the Cumberland Valley Insane Asylum and improvement of a number of mental hospitals, welfare institutions, and state teachers' colleges is contemplated with the $14,000,000, of which $10,000,000 is to be repaid by the state over a 30-year period.

Another measure would authorize counties, cities and other political subdivisions to accept loans from the federal government for public projects and make possible the issuance of bonds to enable repayment of federal advances.

A resolution designed to permit cancellation of state contracts held by persons whose expenses have soared under the NRA codes remained in committee.

The Governor, in his message to the Legislature yesterday, asked the legislators to consider many other problems, including the provision of an additional $20,000,000 for unemployment relief to supplement a similar sum made available by the voters last week; confirmation of his five appointees to the Public Service Commission, and permanent improvement and maintenance of 53,000 miles of second class township roads.

SOCIAL LEGISLATION

He urged state aid for those too old to provide for themselves, enactment of minimum wage and maximum hour laws to eliminate "sweatshop" conditions; emergency aid to financially distressed schools; creation of a state milk control board and prohibition of company-paid deputy sheriffs who, he said, caused "more disorder and bloodshed in strikes" than all other causes put together.

Among the numerous other laws he asked were those to bar large, heavy trucks from the highways on Sunday afternoons and legal holidays, to permit state supervision of private banks and to repeal the 4 mills tax on bank deposits. The truck bill was introduced in the House today.

One of the recovery bills would compel every one to comply with provisions of codes of fair practice and another stipulates that only persons complying with the codes would be awarded public contracts.

Armstrong Chosen On Game Committee

HARRISBURG, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Senator Harry J. Bell, Fayette, was appointed chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee by Senator Harry B. Scott, Centre, president pro tem of the Senate. Senator Bell also was named to the Finance Committee.

Senator Joseph G. Armstrong, Jr., Allegheny, was appointed to the Game and Fisheries and Forestry committees. Appointments were made to fill vacancies.

Old Age Pension Fight Renewed In Legislature

International News Service.

HARRISBURG, Nov. 14.—The old age pension subject, controversial measure of the 1933 regular session of Pennsylvania's General Assembly, was back in the legislative fires today.

A bill providing for an old age assistance plan, similar to the commonwealth's mothers' assistance fund, was introduced by Representative Fred C. Peters, Montgomery.

The measure would limit assistance to persons over 70 years of age. Assistance in individual cases would be restricted to $20 monthly and $30 for married couples. Counties would be required to match state appropriations.

A joint resolution was introduced by Representative Albert L. O'Connor, Cambria, which would amend the Constitution by permitting the Legislature to make appropriations to sectarian institutions engaged in general welfare and hospital work.

Work days would be limited to six hours with not more than 30 hours in a work week, under the provisions of a bill introduced by Representative Lilith Wilson, Berks, Socialist.

A bill by Representative Darlington Hoopes, Berks, Socialist, would add occupational diseases to the list of cases eligible for compensation under the provisions of the Workmen's Compensation Act.

Hoopes also introduced a bill permitting cities to issue bonds for the purpose of erecting dwellings and renting them at a nominal price.

CHECKOFF BILL IN HOUSE

International News Service.

HARRISBURG, Nov. 14.—A measure introduced in the House by Representative Albert L. O'Connor, Cambria, would authorize the adoption by mine employes of the "checkoff" system whereby union dues of such employes would be deducted from their wages.

Another bill by O'Connor would authorize the Department of Internal Affairs to control the weighing of coal at anthracite and bituminous mines and would require the placing of a weighman at every scale.

G. O. P. WOMEN MAP PROGRAM

HARRISBURG, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Mapping of the policies of the Pennsylvania Council of Republican Women of state and national issues was under way today as the organization's annual convention swung into its second and final day.

A tentative draft of the policies was prepared by the council's resolutions committee.

Gov. Pinchot, Edward C. Shannon and Gen. Edward Martin, Republican state chairman, will speak this afternoon.

LIQUOR PLANS SCREENED BY DEMOCRATS

HARRISBURG, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Sounding the keynote of a caucus of Democratic legislators, David L. Lawrence, Allegheny County chairman, said last night the party primarily is interested in the passage, during the special session, of legislation to speed national recovery.

Of liquor control, Lawrence said:

"When we are ready to act, we believe we will be able to offer legislation that will be acceptable to the people of Pennsylvania."

Senator Warren R. Roberts, Northampton, chairman of the Democratic liquor legislation committee, said the policy of the party's legislators would be to await the liquor control bill offered by the Republican majority.

Stressing the necessity for social legislation, Lawrence said:

"It as too much to expect the representatives of Mellon and Grundy in the Pennsylvania Legislature to make permanent in this state the outlawing of child labor, maximum hours for labor and minimum rates of pay, banning the sweatshop and in addition give to the people an opportunity to vote on real old age pension law."

CITY MANAGER URGED BY G. O. P.

Naturally the situation has a political basis and background, and it is because of politics that the matter is being considered at all.

One member of the Legislature, refusing the use of his name, but probably the sponsor of the bill if it is introduced, said yesterday he had been making a study of the bill which was introduced by Kane last year. He pointed out clauses in it which he would alter, including widening the field from which a city manager could be employed. The Kane bill restricted the selection of a manager to persons who had been residents of Pittsburgh for two or more years.

The Republicans' plan would permit selection from anywhere in the country, based only on fitness. This was the language of the Harris bill, which was indorsed by a number of Pittsburgh Republicans who in the recent municipal election supported William N. McNair for Mayor.

Another change would somewhat free the hands of the city manager. He would not become a subservient to City Council as provided either in the Harris or Kane bills, and would be employed on a definite long-term contract during which he could be removed only for misconduct in office.

The Rev. C. W. Crooke, formerly district superintendent of the National and State Anti-Saloon League here, today had been assigned to field work from Washington headquarters.

Legislators' Pay Measure Passes Without Hitch

It was a resolution authorizing payment of $250 of the $500 salary legislators receive for services at the extraordinary session.

With the Governor's approval, checks for $250 were distributed to all members. The balance will be paid at the end of the session, regardless of the duration.

National Advertisers Pick New President

He succeeds Peter Peabody, of New York, who became chairman of the board of directors.

GOVERNOR HITS PRIVATE POLICE

HARRISBURG, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot yesterday asked the Legislature to solve a problem as old as the coal and steel industries by abolishing the company-paid deputy sheriff.

The governor said industrial deputies were responsible for much of the bloodshed and disorder in the recent soft coal strike and that "because of these deputies—and only because of them—" he was forced to send the National Guard into the strike area.

Charging many of the officers "were gunmen with criminal records anxious only to create disorder so that their pay might go on," the governor asked for a law that will prevent any deputy sheriff from being paid except by the county in which he is employed, or from acting except under the orders of the lawfully constituted public authorities," the governor told the opening of the legislative session.

You Can't Legislate

TASTE

You're either born with it, or without it. And if you haven't it, the next best thing is to go where it is. Harris buyers and merchandisers are instructed to THINK quality, TALK quality, BUY quality and SELL quality. That doesn't mean that we won't sell inexpensive ties and belts and handkerchiefs at Christmas time. We certainly will. But neither does it mean that we'll buy them with our eyes shut, and take whatever the manufacturers offer. We feel an obligation here; we feel that we should carry merchandise as good as our best customers accept, not "trade down" our designs and colors to the level of the least-informed. We want shoddy, "seconds" and "imperfects" of FASHION no more than we want them of QUALITY. And to thousands who will make this their holiday store, we can truthfully say that we have tried as never before to guard the danger zone of good taste.

Employment Opens the Gate to a Harris Charge Account

—which gives all the time needed for payment—little by little—out of income. If you are employed, the account is open now—to-day. The use of this account costs you not a red cent above our regular, year-'round cash prices. And should you be able to buy Harris quality for less than Harris prices, we'll refund your money as readily as we took it.*

U. S. LIQUOR TAX PLANS PUSHED

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—Joint session of the Senate Finance and House Ways and Means committees to agree on taxes for liquor after prohibition repeal December 5, were proposed by Senator Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, as President Roosevelt took a hand in the controversy over taxes and regulations for the liquor business.

Senator Harrison, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, conferred with the President yesterday after a subcommittee of the House Ways and Means Committee had been in session with the executive.

The President requested the group to confer with a departmental committee on liquor, which the executive has established. He indicated he had reached no final conclusion as to federal government policy, or on taxation.

There were rumblings of a bitter fight in Congress on the question of how far the federal government, through codes of fair competition, taxation and regulations should go. Sentiment was represented as being strongly against federal interference with state's rights.

Distillery Permit Fight Goes to Court

HARRISBURG, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Officers of the Pennsylvania Distilling Company and its subsidiary, the Pennsylvania Distillery, Inc., of Logansport, today had asked Dauphin County Court to order the Pennsylvania Alcohol Permit Board to issue a license to the distillery.

The action asserts the board agreed unanimously October 24 that a permit should be granted, but, despite repeated requests, no action has been taken.

Pinchot Liquor Control Bill in Digest Form

DRINKING ON PREMISES

Hotels—With "good reputation," 15 permanent bedrooms, dining room accommodating 40 persons and kitchen in which food is regularly prepared.

Restaurants—Not less than 1,000 square feet in area, tables and chairs for 70 persons and kitchen employing three persons regularly.

Clubs—Non-profit making, in operation two years before applying for license, located in clubhouse equipped with dining room for members and kitchen in which food is regularly prepared.

Steamships.

WHOLESALE, HOME TRADE

State operated stores, manned by employes chosen through civil service examinations, handle all wholesale and retail case and bottle trade. The stores, supervised by the Alcohol Permit Board, will sell at wholesale prices to licensed hotels, restaurants, clubs, etc., and control all imports.

Stores will be open from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. on week days, except election and legal holidays.

No limit is placed on the quantity of liquor an individual may buy, but sales to minors, habitual drunkards, insane or intoxicated persons are barred.

Stores will be located only where sanctioned by local courts.

Revenue from stores goes to a special fund from which Gov. Pinchot has asked the Legislature to appropriate $20,000,000 for unemployment relief and $8,000,000 for old age assistance.

RETAIL LICENSE FEES

State Alcohol Permit Board will license hotels, restaurants, etc., that meet requirements specified by act. Refusals are subject to appeals to local Courts of Quarter Sessions.

License fees are double those of 1933 beer control act, ranging from $150 in communities of less than 1,500 population to $600 in municipalities of more than 150,000.

Licenses can be revoked or suspended only by local court on application of Attorney General, District Attorney or 15 or more tax payers.

Licensed hotels, restaurants, etc., may sell for drinking on the spot from 12 noon to 12 midnight. Sales on Sundays, election days and to minors, habitual drunkards or insane or intoxicated persons are barred.

Hotels, restaurants, etc., may not sell by the case or bottle for consumption off the premises.

LOCAL OPTION PLAN

In any municipality, an election may be held, but not oftener than once in four years, on the date of any municipal election, to determine the will of the electors with respect to the granting of licenses by the board to hotels, restaurants and clubs within the limits of such municipality.

TAXES PROPOSED

Floor tax of $2 a proof gallon on all alcohol and spirits on hand the day the act becomes effective, or until the Eighteenth Amendment is repealed.

Normal tax of $1 a proof gallon on all distilled spirits manufactured after repeal, with rates of 30 cents a proof gallon on rectified spirits and one cent per unit proof per gallon on wines.

BEER LAW AMENDMENT

Extending present beer control law to cover all malt liquors, regardless of alcholic content and transferring wines to liquor control act. Present beer tax ($1.24 a barrel or half a cent a bottle) is retained.

County treasurers continue to license beer wholesalers and retailers.

MAKER'S PERMITS

Brewery permit fee increased from $100 to $1,000.

LIQUOR BILLS IN COMMITTEE

can, through alterations, become eligible for liquor licenses.

Witkin indicated plainly that there was broad sentiment in the House for breaking down the Pinchot insistence upon restricting the sale of liquor for consumption on the premises, and presages other drives on the program. Witkin said:

"The purpose in mind of the committee is to see that full consideration is given the interest of the workingman for enjoying the benefits which will come to him by repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and not compel him to go to a high-priced restaurant."

Witkin is one of the legislative leaders of the Philadelphia organization.

In the absence of any comprehensive alternative to the Pinchot plan, the Republican and Democrat leadership today saw no recourse but to push the administration bills along the way. By this gesture an attempt is being made to indicate a co-operative spirit in hastening the consideration of matters under the Governor's call.

There is, however, no indication that this peaceful atmosphere will continue.

FOES HAVE NO PLAN

From a reliable source it was learned this morning that the disintegrating Philadelphia Republican organization has no alternative plan to suggest. William S. Vare, discredited leader of the eastern political stronghold, played a part in the conferences with the Governor which preceded presentation of the Pinchot liquor bills, but Mr. Vare lit out for Florida without making public just what he is for.

He is not for the Pinchot plan. Harry Davis, executive director of the Republican City Committee in Philadelphia, is in Harrisburg, presumably to represent the Vare interests. Davis is under instructions to oppose the Pinchot plan to the limit, and to hold out for the old Brooks high license plan.

But if and when the liquor scene here changes, as it certainly will, Davis will be up against it as to what to do, with Vare in Florida.

DEMOCRATS SPLIT

The Democrats are likewise at odds as to the course to be pursued. David L. Lawrence, chairman of the Allegheny County Democrats, is understood to be somewhat sympathetic to the Pinchot plan, but Representative Chester Rhodes, of Monroe County, and some Philadelphia Democrats are for the old Brooks high license plan.

Republican State Chairman Edward Martin sat in on the conferences which preceded the drawing on the Pinchot plan. Gen. Martin by nods acquiesced, but there is nowhere a record that he is committed to this or any other system of liquor control.

Individual bills have flooded the Legislature, and representatives of the Pennsylvania Hotel Association, gathered in Harrisburg this week, are definitely against the Pinchot proposals.

Use of Liquor Tax For School Aid Opposed

The McKeesport School Board is opposed to using money derived from liquor taxation for school purposes.

At a meeting last night, Edgar M. Mack, president of the school board, said:

"I suggest that we send a telegram to Gov. Pinchot protesting his advocating the use of money derived from liquor revenue being used for school purposes."

His suggestion met with the approval of the board.

W. C. T. U. READY FOR BIG DRIVE

EVANSTON, Ill., Nov. 14.—(AP.)—The W. C. T. U. announced today part of its plan for a drive on what is described as "the drink habit and the drink traffic."

It includes, a statement from the organization said, "the mobilization of its entire national force in 25 regional conferences; to be called in strategic cities from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from the Canadian boundary to the Rio Grande River" at dates not yet determined.

Among the objectives of the drive, the statement said, "is to expose the so-called 'Rockefeller report,' as contained in the book, 'toward liquor control' as an unscientific effort to gild the liquor traffic and an excuse for increased drinking, under the dangerous formula of 'true temperance.'"

SCHOOLEY DIES AFTER 2-YEAR ILLNESS

Roy Dunlap Schooley was born in Welland, Ontario, in 1880.

His father was a physician. He was educated in the schools of Welland and later attended the University of Toronto, where he studied law for a time. He became interested in newspaper work and left the university to work on dailies in Toronto and Hamilton, Ont.

HOCKEY ENTHUSIAST

Like all Canadian boys, Schooley took great interest in hockey. He played the game himself and did some work as referee.

A chance brought him to Pittsburgh. He was in Duluth on business and came in contact with members of a Pittsburgh hockey team there for a match. The players complained of poor officiating, and in the conversation which followed it was suggested Schooley come to Pittsburgh as a hockey referee.

He came to Duquesne Garden as a referee about 1901. In his spare time, he worked on a trade paper in the glass industry and did odd jobs of reporting.

DESCRIPTIVE WRITER

He became connected with the Pittsburgh Chronicle Telegraph in 1908. At that time he was considered by the men who worked with him as one of the best descriptive writers in the city.

Schooley always took an interest in politics. He was active at the headquarters of Joseph G. Armstrong when the latter ran against Congressman Stephen G. Porter for Mayor in 1913. When Armstrong was elected, Schooley was made his secretary and then a few weeks later, chief clerk of the city Department of Public Works.

When E. V. Babcock succeeded Armstrong as Mayor, Schooley was made secretary of the Civil Service Commission. During the time he held that position, he was made Republican chairman of the Eighth Ward.

FORMED ALLIANCE

During the Babcock administration, the County Commissioners were Robert S. Cain, James Houlahen and Addison C. Gumbert, and Schooley is given credit with arranging an alliance betwen Cain and Houlahen. At all events, he soon resigned as secretary to the Civil Service Commission and was made superintendent of county roads by the majority commissioners.

Schooley lost the county road position in 1923 when Armstrong defeated Cain for County Commissioner and combined with Houlahen against Gumbert. E. M. Kenna became road superintendent. However, Schooley was made a member of the Allegheny County Board for the Assessment and Revision of Taxes.

When Charles H. Kline was elected Mayor in 1925, Schooley was very close to the administration. His ability as a general in a political campaign was recognized. In the 1929 mayoralty campaign, in which Kline was reelected, Schooley was active and was later appointed City Treasurer.

SPLIT WITH COYNE

It was during the second Kline campaign the split occurred between Schooley and Senator James J. Coyne. This was said to be due to a disagreement over a matter of administration policy. It resulted in a breach between Coyne and Schooley which was never healed.

Schooley leaves his wife, Mrs. Flora Hein Schooley, and two sons, Robert and Roy D. Schooley, Jr., at home.

He was a member of Lodge No. 45, F. and A. M., and the McKinley Club.

DOCTOR EXPLAINS NEW SAFE WAY TO REDUCE

Announces New Discovery Over Radio Station WCAE

Science has made rapid strides in the past few months in locating the causes of excess fat, according to a prominent physician and authority on overweight, who spoke over station WCAE in Pittsburgh on this subject. This medical authority further explained that a famous research scientist, working at the Pasteur Institute in Paris and in leading American clinics, was directly connected with the discoveries that led to Vannay, the new weight-control method.

The doctor further stated that Vannay is an absolutely harmless tablet that contains no thyroid extract, iodine or laxative drugs of any kind. "Now it is absurd for anyone," he continued, "to take dangerous drugs or a daily dose of drastic salts that rushes food through the body half digested and leads to chronic constipation. Vannay is the safe, natural regulator of the digestive ferments (lipases) which control the production of fat in all human bodies.

"You don't have to starve yourself or go through painful exercises. You simply take the tablets each day and continue to eat three meals. The fat disappears at just the places where you want to lose it.

This remarkable product is on sale at all May Drug Stores. Any of our clerks will be glad to give you an interesting booklet, "How To Reduce With Absolute Safety."

TOY FILM BLAST FATAL TO 7

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Seven of 20 children burned Sunday at Caguas when a toy motion picture projector exploded were dead today. Four more are expected to die.

Julio Velazquez was proudly showing his toy to his playmates at the home of Luis Rivera. The children sat about, excitedly watching a tiny picture unfold before them in the darkened room.

The light for the projector was furnished by a candle. It set fire to the explosive film. Julio and Luis were among the dead.

PYTHON FROLICS ON COURT LAWN

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—An 18-foot snake disported today on the courthouse lawn.

Doc Walz, showman of Hot Springs, Ark., brought it down for the judge to measrue it, and all the judges being busy and his case postponed until tomorrow, he let the python out on the lawn for exercise.

Despite the shudders that the size of the snake caused among some who saw it, Walz complains it isn't big enough. He is suing a firm here for $2,043 damages because he ordered a 23-foot snake and he says they shipped him this one. So he brought it in for the court to measure and establish proof that it is five feet too short.

To End a Cough In a Hurry, Mix This at Home

Saves Big Dollars! No Cooking!

Millions of housewives have found that, by mixing their own cough medicine, they get a purer, more effective remedy. They use a recipe which costs only one-fourth as much as ready-made medicine, but which really has no equal for breaking up obstinate coughs.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and add granulated sugar syrup to fill up the pint. The syrup is easily made with 2 cups sugar and one cup water, stirred a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. It's no trouble at all, and makes the most effective remedy that money could buy. Keeps perfectly, and children love its taste.

Its quick action in loosening the phlegm, clearing the air passages, and soothing away the inflammation, has caused it to be used in more homes than any other cough remedy.

2 Children Burn To Death in Crash

HAMMOND, Ind., Nov. 14.—(INS.)—Two small children, Clement De Rosas, 9, and his brother Peter, 7, were dead, burned to death following an automobile collision here last night while their parents looked on helpless to save them.

The two were riding in the rear seat of their father's automobile when it struck a truck, overturned and caught fire. The parents were able to escape. Six others were burned in the crash. The De Rosas were returning from the grave of a third son.

PINCHOT URGES RED CROSS AID

HARRISBURG, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot yesterday urged all Pennsylvaniana to join the Red Cross for 1934, asserting "the value of its work goes far beyond dollars and cents."

He said:

"For 50 years the Red Cross has devoted itself to the help of our people. In the past year it has served in over 100 disasters. It has distributed government flour and clothing to over 5,000,000 families. It has served disabled veterans. It everlastingly seeks to educate the people through public health nursing, first aid and life saving?"

Gentlemen:-

I am informed that The American Oil Company was recently consolidated with the Pan American Petroleum and Transport Company, and the Mexican Petroleum Corporation.

As a result, I understand your refining, transport and marketing activities will now extend from Maine to Florida.

I need not tell you that The American Oil Company is one of our most important institutions, and its expansion into new territory is a source of great satisfaction to me.

I know you will receive a cordial reception in the new fields you enter.

Wishing you much success in your extended activities, I am,

Sincerely yours,

VARIETY IN MENUS HELPS HOME-MAKING

Monotony Banished By Recipes From Contestants

If you want a happy and satisfied family, follow Prudence Penny's advice and vary your menus. It isn't necessary to revolutionize completely your cooking habits. A new dish for luncheon, a slightly different dessert for dinner, will do the trick.

No need for monotony in food preparation with 11 prize recipes published daily in the Sun-Telegraph to help you decide what to serve, and, equally important, just how to prepare it.

Help the other housewives with their mealtime worries by sending in your best recipes. They'll want to use them as they've been using all the other winners.

Mail all those favorites of yours in to Prudence Penny, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, so they may compete for the $5 prize or one of the ten $1 prizes awarded each day.

FIVE-DOLLAR PRIZE WINNER FOR TUESDAY

MRS. E. M. NOLEN,
919 Euclid avenue.
RICE MUFFINS

Sift together—
Two and one-half cups flour.
Five teaspoons baking powder.
Three tablespoons of sugar.
One-half teaspoon salt.

Beat one egg and add one-half cup milk, three tablespoons melted shortening or oil, and stir into dry ingredients. Into one-half cup of milk put one-half cup of cold boiled rice and stir well. Add to the mixture and mix well and bake in an oven 375 degrees F, for 20 minutes.

TEN ONE-DOLLAR PRIZE WINNERS

GERTRUDE HANLEY,
1119 Emporia street.
STEAMED CRANBERRY PUDDING

One cup flour.
One and one-half teaspoons baking powder.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One-half cup bread crumbs.
One-third cup brown sugar.
Two-thirds cup finely chopped suet.
One cup chopped cranberries.
One egg.
One-third cup milk or water.

Mix ingredients in order given, turn into a well-greased mold. Cover with wax paper and steam two hours, never allowing the water to come more than two-thirds of the way up the sides of the mold. Turn out. Serve with hard or foamy sauce.

MRS. C. H. TOMMA,
15 Bevington road, Forest Hills.
NUT STRUDEL

Eight tablespoons melted butter.
Two tablespoons sugar.
Three egg yolks.
One pint lukewarm milk.
One teaspoon salt.
One-half grated lemon rind.
Six cups flour.
One cake yeast.

Mix butter, sugar, lemon rind and egg yolks well. Dissolve the yeast in milk and mix flour and salt and add gradually. Beat until the dough does not cling to the spoon. Cover with a towel and put in a warm place to rise two hours. Roll out about one-fourth inch thick and spread with prepared filling. Roll like a jelly-roll and set in buttered bread pans and let rise for two hours more before putting in oven. Paint top with beaten egg and bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees) for 45 minutes.

FILLING

One pound ground walnuts.
One pound granulated sugar.
One teaspoon cinnamon.
One-half teaspoon ground cloves.
One-half cup raisins.
One-half grated lemon rind.

Mix and add milk to make a paste. (Two ounces whiskey or rum makes this very tasty).

MRS. SHERIDAN ALBERY,
501 California avenue, Avalon.
ESCALLOPED SALMON

One-half cup flour.
One pint milk.

Mix smooth, boil, let stand until cold. Melt one-fourth pound butter, beat two eggs separately, season with salt, pepper and parsley. Mix well together except the well-beaten eggs to be added last. Cut up a can red salmon, put layer in bottom of buttered baking dish, next a layer of paste, then alternating layers of salmon and paste until dish is filled. Put bread crumbs on top and bake one-half hour. Serve or garnish with small peas. (Especially nice baked in individual glass ovenware cups).

JOSEPHINE PETROVIC,
626 Washington Ave., Braddock.
SWEET BREADS WITH MUSHROOMS

Two pairs of sweetbreads.
One tablespoon lemon juice.
One teaspoon salt.
One-quarter cup cracker meal.
Salt and pepper.
Four tablespoons shortening.
Three-quarter cup milk diluted with three-quarter cup water or liquid off mushrooms.
Two tablespoons flour.
One cup canned mushrooms.

Soak sweetbreads in cold water 15 to 20 minutes. Drain. Parboil with lemon juice, salt, and enough water to cover, for 20 minutes. When cold remove fibers, cut lengthwise, dredge in flour, then in undiluted milk, and cracker meal seasoned with a little salt and pepper. Brown in hot shortening. Scald diluted milk. Add flour that has been mixed to a smooth paste with a little water, stirring constantly. Pour over sweetbreads. Add mushrooms and heat thoroughly. Serve on toast. Makes eight portions.

MRS. THEODORE FORD,
659 Reed avenue, Monessen.
BLACK WALNUT COOKIES

Three-fourths cup shortening.
Two cups brown sugar.
Two eggs.
One cup black walnuts.
One teaspoon vanilla.
Three cups pastry flour.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One-half teaspoon soda.
One third cup milk.

Cream shortening and suger together. Add beaten eggs. Beat in flour, sifted with salt and soda, alternately with milk. Add nuts and vanilla. Drop by teaspoons on cooky sheet. Bake at 400 degrees.

MRS. MARIE PELC,
2144 Straubs Lane.
POTATO STICKS

Three cups cooked mashed potatoes.
One-third cup farina.
One egg.
Two cups flour and salt to taste.

Mix potatoes with farina, then add egg and flour and salt. Put on board that is floured and knead a little. Then make sticks one inch thick and cut them about three inches long. Place the sticks in boiling water and cook them for 10 minutes. Roll them in fine bread crumbs, fried in butter or lard—delicious with pork.

MRS. J. P. RIDER,
415 Parkinson avenue, Monongahela.
ONE AND ONE SHERBET

One banana.
One orange.
One lemon.
One cup water.
One cup sugar.
One egg.
Few grains salt.

Use the juice and pulp of the orange and lemon. Mash the banana and add the egg partly beaten, then add the salt, sugar and water. Stir until sugar is dissolved and freeze in refrigerator tray.

MRS. NAOMI BEVINGTON,
1409 Nixon street.
CRANBERRY SAUCE

Wash four cups of cranberries and cover with water, boil gently till the berries are soft, then force them through a fruit press or colliander. Measure one cup of sugar for each cup of pulp and boil for five minutes. This can be molded and sliced.

MRS. MARCELLA MILLER,
200 Sward street.
QUICK APPLE CAKE

Two cups flour.
One-half teaspoon salt.
Two tablespoons sugar.
Four teaspoons baking powder.
Four tablespoons shortening.
One egg.
Three-quarters cup milk.
Two to three small apples.
Two teaspoons cinnamon.
Four tablespoons sugar.

Method: Sift flour once before measuring. Sift flour, salt, sugar and baking powder together. Cut in shortening with two knives or with pastry blender until finely blended. Add beaten egg and milk and mix gently. Spread on well greased round cake pan. Let pan of dough stand while preparing apples. Pare apples, slice thin and place in circles or any attractive fancy design on top of batter, pressing pieces slightly into batter. Mix cinnamon with sugar and sprinkle thickly over apples. Bake 25 minutes.

DATE PUDDING

One cup flour.
Two teaspoons baking powder.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One egg.
One cup sugar.
One-half cup milk.
One teaspoon vanilla.
One cup dates.
One cup English walnuts.

Method: Sift together, flour, baking powder, salt and sugar. Add milk, beaten egg and vanilla. Beat well and add dates and walnuts, cut into small pieces. Put into baking dish or small molds; place in pan of water and bake three hours at 275 degrees F. Serve with whipped cream or sauce. This will serve eight.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Neglect of Malnutrition in Childhood Dangerous

Dr. Copeland

It states that the majority of cases of poor health and faulty physical development in adult life can be traced to neglect of undernourishment or underweight, so commonly seen in early childhood.

This state of health, known as "malnutrition," is more prevalent than most parents suspect. It is found in the country districts as well as in the city. Contrary to the common belief, it afflicts the children of the rich as well as the poor. It may begin in very early infancy and continue throughout childhood.

The stricken child is below normal weight and does not gain as rapidly as his playmates or children of the same age. The youngster is usually pale, dull and listless, has dark rings under the eyes, tires easily and has no desire for work or play. The sleep is fitful and rarely refreshing.

Malnutrition should always be suspected in a child who does not eat well, sleep well and gain weight. Bear in mind that properly nourished children between the ages of 6 and 10 should gain about five pounds a year. A child between 12 and 16 should gain between six and 10 pounds a year. Of course, there are marked variations from this rule, but it may well be that the child who gains less than these figures is suffering from malnutrition.

Malnutrition can be traced to a lack of appetite and a dislike for certain foods. When a child refuses the essential foods, like milk and vegetables, undernourishment is likely to occur.

To avoid dislikes for foods, it is advisable to plan pleasant surroundings at meal times. Above all, never force a child to eat. He should be encouraged to eat and if necessary rewards for good behavior may be tried.

Many a child learns to dislike certain foods because it is discovered that the parent does not eat it. For this reason never discuss your food in the presence of a child. Children mimic their elders and love to imitate them in every way.

Food should always be served in a tempting manner. Avoid serving foods that are improperly prepared, tasteless and gritty. It is a good plan to taste the food before offering it to the child.

Accustom the child early in life to a wide variety of foods. New foods should be offered but never forced. In this way many new dishes may be added and a properly balanced diet will be the result.

Persistent lack of appetite and lack of interest in food is a serious sign that must not be neglected. Do not resort to the use of so-called "tonics" and "health builders". Consult your doctor. A complete physical examination may reveal diseased tonsils or other infection that is the underlying cause of the poor appetite and underweight.

Answers to Health Queries

B. G. Q.—How can I reduce my legs?

A.—Exercise should take off surplus fat. It is difficult to reduce weight in any part of the body without reducing in general. Send self-addressed, stamped envelope for further particulars and repeat your question.

T. M. E. Q.—What do you advise for hay fever?

M. E. W. Q.—How can I increase my weight?

A.—Eat plenty of good nourishing food, including milk, eggs, fresh fruits and vegetables. Get plenty of fresh air and sunshine, plenty of rest and avoid overfatigue. Take cod liver oil as a general tonic.

MUSCULAR RHEUMATIC PAINS

IT takes more than a salve to draw them out. It takes a "counter-irritant"! And that's what good old Musterole is—soothing, warming, penetrating and helpful in drawing out the pain and congestion when rubbed on the sore, aching spots.

Muscular lumbago, soreness and stiffness generally yield promptly to this treatment, and with continued application once an hour, blessed relief is often experienced in five hours.

Even better results than the never-failing old-fashioned mustard plaster. Used by millions of people. Recommended by many doctors and nurses. All druggists. In three strengths: Regular Strength, Children's (mild), and Extra Strong.

POLITICS

State Chairmanship Looms for Lawrence

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, Nov. 14.—The Democratic organization in Pennsylvania is in the process of redrafting for action in the next state-wide campaign, one of the first evidences being the dinner last night which was attended by the Democratic membership of the Senate and House.

Mr. Shields

Some Democrats who are veteran legislators, but who in lean times were Grundy Democrats or Pinchot Democrats, or state organization Democrats, are not to have the prominent place in party affairs which once was theirs.

In the planning and carrying out of legislative movements which the Democratic leaders believe will facilitate their progress next year, these men are not to have strategic positions.

And rapidly coming to the front in the party, though he has no legislative position, is David L. Lawrence, chairman of the Allegheny Democrats, and collector of internal revenue in Pittsburgh.

Likely to Outrank Van Dyke in Power

It would not be surprising should Mr. Lawrence be named state chairman to direct the fight in 1934. If he does not actually take the title he will be at least equal and perhaps superior in authority to Warren Van Dyke, now state chairman, elected to that place when Lawrence and Joseph F. Guffey last year on the eve of the national convention wrested party control from Sedgewick Kistler and John Collins, of Coudersport.

Mr. Lawrence is looked upon as the most effective leader the party has.

Perhaps more glamour attaches to Guffey because of his longer residence within the higher party councils of the national party. But Mr. Lawrence is rated higher within the state by his party members, and those not in harmony with the present state Democratic organization are not as bitter toward him as they are toward Mr. Guffey.

In the last session of the Legislature Lawrence, not at first accorded a place of leadership, forged ahead until at the close he rather than Van Dyke or any legislative member was in councils with leaders of other party factions, speaking for the Democratic bloc which did not have strong Republican attachments.

The Democratic party, or those who wear its label, comprises no happy family. It has its factional differences and jealousies as do the Republicans. But Mr. Lawrence is recognized as the major strategist by far the bulk of the minority wing of politics.

Next Campaign Stresses Need of Leadership

For some time attention has been devoted toward the next campaign by the present Democratic state organization. Some persons affiliated with it—not Mr. Guffey or Mr. Lawrence, however—for some time have been discussing strengthening the state leadership. They recognize that Mr. Van Dyke has some attributes necessary in any party attempting to re-establish itself.

At the same time they realize he lacks much of the force which is requisite in a state leader heading a militant movement. He has the ability to issue pungent statements dramatizing a situation, but at times he lacks directness in decision. His title comes through Mr. Lawrence and Mr. Guffey, and he hesitates at decisions without their approval.

He is agent rather than leader.

Should Mr. Lawrence be the state chairman he would be able to speak out of decision of his own mind. He is constantly aware of the ideas of Mr. Guffey, and would be forehanded in knowing what could be done. Additionally, he is in a fair way to reach an equal footing with his fellow-Pittsburgher.

Party Hybrids Are Slated for Discard

The Democratic strategy calls for the elimination of Representatives Chester Rhodes, of Monroe County; John Flynn, of Elk County, and Wilson G. Spraig, of Berks, as Democratic spokesmen.

Mr. Flynn for years has been known in politics as representative of Joseph R. Grundy, a conservative of conservative Republicans. He wears a Democratic label, and is the veteran of the House in years of service, but he does not fit into the picture of a Democratic party which stands on its own feet. He has been an invaluable aide and advisor to past Republican governors.

Mr. Sarig, when the Legislature convened in regular session last January, was picked as floor leaders in the House. Lawrence and his associates, then only dipping their feet in state waters, were warned against him, but gave him their backing because, he too, was a veteran.

It was quickly discovered that he was upon occasion to be found playing house with the Republicans, and before the session was many weeks old Mr. Sarig was a floor leader with hardly any followers.

It was when this situation developed that Mr. Lawrence stepped in and virtually became the legislative leader.

Mr. Rhodes has never played the game with the present Democratic leadership. He differs seriously on how liquor shall be regulated, for one example, and there are other points of disagreement.

One thing aiding the new leadership now is the psychological belief of so many politicians that there is a swing to the party, with President Roosevelt as the emblem of hope and success, and that it is best that allegiance be sworn to Mr. Lawrence and Mr. Guffey, who are on the best of terms with the executive.

TEACHERS' PAY NOT TO BE CUT, AARON SAYS

Re-Elected President Of Board Defends Building Plans

There will be no additional reduction in the salaries of Pittsburgh school teachers, Marcus Aaron told the Board of Education late yesterday upon his re-election as president of that body. He declared:

"We do not propose under any circumstances to cheapen the quality of education.

"In view of the nationwide effort to restore employment and to increase purchasing power, and because of the gradual increase in the cost of living and unstabilized dollar, our course as to wages and salaries of others than teachers seems equally clear."

ASSAILS REALTY MEN

Aaron's statement was indorsed by Philip Murray, international vice president of the United Mine Workers of America, and a member of the board. Murray said:

"I cannot understand the logic of those who would fight at this late day for additional wage cuts. I think the nation's trend is definitely toward higher wages and condemn certain big real estate people who have no heart and are asking for teacher salary reductions for selfish reasons."

DEFENDS BUDGET

Aaron also defended the school budget's proposed building bond issue of $1,500,000 and replacement item of $100,000, with the assertion:

"The Board of Public Education should stimulate employment at a time when employment is so badly needed."

Other board officers elected were Taylor Allderdice, vice president; H. W. Cramblet, secretary; H. R. Hilliard, city treasurer re-elected as school treasurer, and N. R. Criss, solicitor.

GARBAGE PLAN TO BE IGNORED

The city's long-term garbage and rubbish contract ordinance will likely be passed up today when Council's health and sanitation committee meets, despite promises by Councilman Frank L. Duggan.

Duggan, chairman of the committee, is reported to be attending a convention in New Orleans today.

Action on the ordinance was promised last week by Duggan. Under the ordinance's provisions the city could make a contract for one, three or five years.

The ordinance has laid in Duggan's committee for six months without being called out for Council action.

SCHOOL TRAFFIC FUND ASKED

Director of Public Safety Harmar D. Denny, Jr., wants City Council to appropriate $15,238.85 for continued employment of subpatrolmen to direct traffic at intersections near schools.

In a letter to Council yesterday Denny said money appropriated several months ago for the purpose was exhausted, and the $15,238.85 would continue the work to January 1.

Council's finance committee was expected to act on Denny's request late today.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Nov. 14.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Germany had an election to see if they approved leaving the League of Nations. There was one fellow voted against it, but they are on track of him. Poor old League.

Always felt on account of her having no police men, nobody wasn't going to pay much attention to it.

We just seem to be living in an era when good ideas don't get over. Everybody is out to protect themselves in clinch. They are not depending on the referee helping 'em out much.

Look at little Switzerland, always gone along minding their own business, now they got them going out buying a gun. The world has just lost faith in a bunch of guys with silk hats.

Lucille Escapes When Identity Is Learned by Enemy

Read This First

Gail Loveless, just 20, had had thorough training as a character actress under the tutelage of her friend and fellow-artist of the stage, Pauline Cushman. Miss Cushman had served as a spy for the Union Army. Now it was necessary for her to go again into the Confederate lines at Martinsburg, Va. Gen. J. E. B. Stuart needed watching. It was feared he intended to lead his raiders into Pennsylvania on a devastating raid.

Miss Cushman asked if she might take Gail Loveless with her. Pinkerton, head of the Federal Secret Service, and his aide, Col. Sharpe, seeing the young girl impersonate an octoroon, were convinced of her ability to fool the Southerners. They said she might go and assigned to her, as an agent of the Secret Service, the number 13, which had been borne by another spy, recently captured by the Southern Army and hanged.

A few days later Gail Loveless, as Lucille Lyndon, "yaller gal" laundress, had the good luck to be assigned to the headquarters of Gen. Stuart himself. And there, while she washed a shirt in a swift little river, came Capt. Jack Gailliard, foremost of Gen Stuart's spies. He kissed her and was ashamed of the thrill it gave him. Shortly afterward Pauline Cushman was arrested as a spy. Capt. Gailliard warns "Lucille" about running around with the soldiers.

Vespasian Chancellor, Confederate secret service man, is suspicious of Lucille. Belle Boyd, most famous Confederate spy, told Gailliard that she was harmless, but Chancellor remains doubtful.

Now Go On With the Story

(Republished from Cosmopolitan Magazine and soon to appear on the screen as a Cosmopolitan production made for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and starring Marion Davies.)

By ROBERT W. CHAMBERS

The little laundress went up the stairs to the landing and paused before a closed door. Here Miss Boyd's little sister slept.

Very cautiously Lucille Lyndon opened the door. The child was sound asleep. Now, gently closing the door, she stole across to the room which in her quality of personal maid and laundress had been allotted her. In the room also slept Miss Belle's own maid, but she was at Bower House now.

When the girl had entered her room and lighted a candle, she noiselessly locked and bolted the door. The first thing she did was to lift her white starched skirt and cotton chemise. Under it, belted around her naked body, was a big knife in a velvet sheath.

This she slid out and pressed a spring in the buckhorn hilt, which proved to be hollow. Out of it she drew some small bits of tissue paper, a tiny magnifying glass, a crow-quill pen scarcely thicker than a hairpin; a fine sponge, a small camel's-hair brush and three glass phials.

First of all, she dipped the brush into one of the phials and with it carefully stained the half-moon at the base of her fingernails a bluish color. Then she touched the base of each pretty toe.

Then, completely disrobing and removing her leather belt, she filled a tin washbowl with water and let fall into it a few drops of black liquid from another phial. She went over her entire body, face and limbs with the little sponge—the liquid drying in a pale amber tint.

Now she replaced the two phials and the sponge and brush in the knife hilt, and dressed herself.

The big Cherokee rose lay on the table. From it she detached a broad, heart-shaped petal, laid it over a little square of tissue paper and, with a pair of sewing scissors, cut the tissue into the shape of the rose petal. Then she sat down at a pine table, dipped her crow quill into the third phial and wrote on the tissue paper—though her wet pen showed no stain of ink and left no trace of writing:

"Major Allen:

"Stuart crosses McCoy's ford tonight, October 10th, riding north toward the mountains, Mercersburg and Chambersburg.

"Two thousand cavalry, four guns. Operator 13."

Silent Waiting

This bit of tissue she pinned to the white rose in place of the petal detached; and the lovely flower appeared to be perfect again. Now she deliberately rolled together the single detached rose petal and the shred of tissue, swallowed the pellet, extinguished the tallow candle and went lightly to her window.

No light, now, in the quarters; all was still. Not a sound save the hushed tinkle of the silvery Opequon.

She opened her door, stole downstairs. Hanging in the hall closet was an old slouch hat of Mr. Boyd's. There was a pair of spurred boots there also. She pulled the hat over her curls, drew on the boots over her slippers, stole to the veranda and on to the dew-wet lawn.

No light, now, in the village; nothing visible yonder except ghostly white porticoes, shadowy galleries and tall, still trees in the starlight. For the first time, the little laundress felt afraid—or perhaps it was the chill of the river mist that made her so cold.

She went up the road, then through an orchard to the open meadow. Not a glimmer of light in Darkesville. Nobody could guess that 2,000 gray-jackets were standing to horse down there, or that galloping mounted artillery awaited only a whispered command to the gunners astride their horses.

She could neither see Bower House nor hear the distant dance music. Down along the river not a sound from the sentinels and gray-jacketed videttes; only a low belt of fog along an invisible shore.

It seemed a century—it was less than 20 minutes—before she heard a horse coming, not fast. In a few moments the hoof-beats ceased, and she saw ghostly shapes of horse and rider approaching.

"Evenin', suh," said the little laundress softly. "Hit's a night of stars."

The pass-phrase of the United States secret service.

The horseman replied with the prescribed answer: "Yes, it's a night of stars and bars. How many stars do you count?"

"Thirteen."

"Add 13 to 90."

"Done. And the answer is?"

"The Union forever."

Sudden Fright

He wore the uniform of a Confederate cavalryman. She unpinned the white rose from her 'kerchief, handed it to him. "It's this petal," she whispered, touching it with her fingertip. "It's pinned fast."

He drew the pale blossom through a buttonhole and mounted his horse.

"You are Augustus Littlefield?" she asked.

"Yes, ma'am."

"You have your pass and furlough?"

"No, ma'am. I ride over with Hampton's Horse. My contact is Operator 17 in Mercersburg."

"Mrs. Edmonds?"

"Yes, ma'am."

"Tell her to hurry."

"I will, ma'am."

That was all.

Operator 13 watched horse and rider continuing their soundless course across the grass. When they had disappeared, she turned back toward the house. After a little way she came again into the orchard and stopped there, frightened.

For there was a light in her bedroom window. Across it, now and then, passed the phantom figure of a man.

Then, in the deadly danger of the moment, she felt that strange, warm charm of peril flow in her veins.

She crept nearer. A saddled horse stood tied to the gate-post.

She looked up at her lighted window. Two wavering shadows moved on wall and ceiling—a man's and a woman's. Once the man's face was illumined by the candle. He was Vespasian Chancellor! Then the woman moved into the light for a moment. It was Belle Boyd.

Chancellor came to the open window presently and called down to somebody she could not see: "She's skedaddled, suh. But there's enough skin dye in this hyar washbowl to tell the story!"

Damning Evidence

Oh, God! She had forgotten to empty the washbowl! She had taken every possible precaution except this!

"Why do you think it's skin dye?" came Gailliard's voice from the darkness.

"My hands is fast brown already," said Chancellor, "an dry's a bleached bone! She ain't no nigger, suh. She's Operator Thirteen. I reckon my instinct was right, suh. This hyar washbowl is more'n enough to damn an' hang her!"

For a moment her limbs, body, brain and blood turned to ice; then that strange warmth stole through her again.

She stooped low and crept along the fence under the honeysuckle until she came to the tied horse. Strapped to the cantle was a long gray military overcoat.

With trembling fingers she unbuckled the straps, unrolled it, got into it, pulled her slouch hat low over her face, untied the horse, climbed into the saddle and freed the pistol from its holster.

In the act of drawing it out she suddenly saw Capt. Gailliard beside her, white as death in the starlight. He caught the horse's head; she swung the heavy pistol by the barrel and struck him full in the face with all her might.

He crumpled without a sound, his convulsive fingers dragging the horse's head down with him to the wet grass.

She stared down at him. His face wore a scarlet mask of blood. Then, with a sob, she jerked the snaffle rein out of his nerveless fingers, touched the horse with knee and heel, guiding him out into the fog, where lay her only hope of life.

The river was invisible, but its flowing could be heard under darkly drifting mist. Scarcely a sound from the waiting regiments; muffled tinkle of spurs now and then, soft clash of sabers on stirrup irons; metallic stirrings of hoofs on stones.

"Yes. I'm scared. But I'll be cooler in a moment."

"No."

"Shoot him, or hawg-stick him, ma'am?"

"No, I hit him in the face with his own pistol and rode off on his horse. If it gets much lighter down here, somebody may recognize Capt. Gailliard's horse. Or notice the color of my face."

"We're going through in a few minutes, ma'am. Keep cool."

Operator 13, in her slouch hat, boots and Confederate overcoat, gave a desperate glance around her at the foggy bushes. "Oh, God," she whispered, "why don't they hurry!"

Operator 90, who was Federal Spy Augustus Littlefield, wearing a white rose on a Confederate uniform of the Second South Carolina Cavalry, laid a kindly hand on the frightened girl's shoulder. "Ma'am, we'll both hang if we're caught. We know that. So we better try to forget it and do our duty calm and quiet."

Betraying Stain

"Yes," whimpered the girl, "but I can't wash off this dark stain on my skin; and if they see a nigger in Confederate uniform it will be the end of me."

"Ma'am," said Littlefield, "when the scouts start out across the ford there'll be firing. You start, too, leading your hoss. And jest as soon as you git to the shore, mount and ride like hell." He added, "If you're shot in the back it's better than dancin' the sunset jig, ma'am."

"Yes, it is. I'll try to get through somehow," she murmured. She straightened her shoulder and lifted her head defiantly, but it was an effort. She said: "And you'll try to make contact with Operator 17 in Mercersburg, won't you?"

"I will, ma'am, if God lets me."

"It's Mrs. Edmonds, isn't it?" she asked. She knew, but she was trying to regain self-command.

"Yes, ma'am."

"Tell her I'll keep on to Chambersburg and telegraph across to the colonel of the Sixth Lancers at Frederick," said the girl nervously.

Again Gus Littlefield laid a kindly paw on her quivering arm. "Courage, ma'am. You got aplenty. I seen you giggle at death. You been in worse pickles nor this. Me, too. We won't dance no sunset jig this time. No ma'am. When the rebel rush begins git onto your ole nag and ride like a devil!"

A moment's strained silence, then he climbed slowly into his saddle and started off towards the road where the cavalry were waiting in close column. As he rode he pulled the white rose from his buttonhole, stuffed it into his breeches pocket and took his place in the ranks, leaving Federal Secret Service Operator 13 alone in the middle of a Confederate division, where, disguised as a Negro laundress, she had been known to almost every man in camp.

All Ragged

Now, in the dawn dusk which was turning the fog pallid, her pretty brown-tinted face was not visible in the shade of her slouch hat's brim. Even her overcoat and spurred boots would attract no attention because, although new uniforms had arrived from Richmond for some of the cavalry, the Confederate horsemen, en masse, were still somewhat ragged after Antietam, and any kind of clothing was gratefully worn.

But the girl was in extreme danger. If Capt. Jack Gailliard, of the Confederate Secret Service, had been too severely hurt by her to follow her, nevertheless Vespasian Chancellor, the cleverest of Confederates operators and chief of scouts, was now searching for her, high and low. He knew, too, that she had ridden off on Gailliard's own horse.

She did not know what to do to escape him. She dared not try to join a cavalry regiment and edge into column on the ford road back there among the oaks. She dared not attempt to join Phillips' scouts, even in the river fog.

From where she stood at her horse's head, among the willows, she could see a camp sergeant and two led horses waiting; and she recognized the horses as Lady Margrave and Skylark, two favorite mounts of General Jeb Stuart. In that case, she realized with a pang of fright, the mounted camp servant must be Yellow Bob, Stuart's body servant, who so often had hectored and bullied her and bragged about his own importance.

Here was a new and deadly danger a few paces away; if Yellow Bob recognized her he would give the alarm—that is, if he had heard what she had done.

That biggity mulatto, Yaller Bob: She had fooled him a dozen times a day! She would do it again. She would do more—she could make a fool of him and steal his horses—General J. E.

"Capt. Gailliard, white as death in the starlight, caught the horse's head. She swung the heavy pistol by the barrel and struck him full in the face with all her might. He crumpled up without a sound." Operator 13 has erred. Her disguise has been penetrated. She is revealed as a spy and her life is forfeit. Trapped in the very midst of an enemy army, she seizes the one desperate chance that remains to her. Follow her adventures here.

Baby Cuts Tongue In Fall From Chair

Dawn, 7-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Floyd, 1907 Baldwin street, McKeesport, is home today after being treated in the McKeesport Hospital for a laceration of the tongue received when she fell from a high chair yesterday.

JOBLESS TO GET WORK IN CITY PARKS WITH U. S. FUNDS

FEDERAL RELIEF PLANS LAID BY LANG

Plans for the employment of jobless men in Pittsburgh's parks were being drawn today by Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang.

Lang late yesterday informed City Council he had received a telegram from Melvin B. Borgeson, district officer of the State Park Conservation Work of the federal government, asking Pittsburgh to state what park projects it can undertake.

Today Lang was to wire Borgeson for a more detailed explanation.

In his telegram Borgeson said the government proposes to employ 500,000 in park service. He asked Lang for an estimate of cost on the city's park projects and the number of men necessary.

The telegram also said the employment of the 500,000 men throughout the country would begin tomorrow and continue to February 15. The cost of materials is to be held to a minimum, Borgeson advised.

$36 a Week for Skilled Men on Public Works

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—Thirty-six dollars a week will be paid skilled workmen by the Civil Works Administration in its nationwide campaign which will take 2,000,000 men off the federal relief rolls within the next week.

White collar men, who will compose a large contingent of the CWA workers, will receive proportionately high wages. The minimum rate for common labor will be $15 a week.

This was the announcement of the Civil Works Administration, as governors, mayors of the large cities, and other state and municipal welfare officials converged upon Washington to attend the conference called by Harry L. Hopkins, CWA administrator.

Meanwhile President Roosevelt called his executive council to meet late today to review aspects of the recovery program.

To save time, the new Civil Works Administration adopted the Public Works Administration wage scale, which in the northern zone, provides a pay of $1.20 an hour for skilled workmen, and 50 cents an hour for unskilled labor in a 30-hour week.

Gov. Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, and a group of mayors of Pennsylvania cities and welfare workers will find this set-up in the CWA program when they arrive for the Hopkins conference which opens at 10 a. m. Wednesday.

A proposal that half a million men will be put to work immediately in soil erosion, flood control, parks development and similar projects is being studied. Their activities will be kept separate from the Civilian Conservation Corps, according to present plans.

Reports are pouring in from field agencies of the National Parks Service and United States Forestry Service, giving estimates of the number of men that can be put to work immediately on these types of projects. In some instances park boards of the larger cities have been asked to submit estimates.

MT. OLIVER JOB ROW SETTLED

Judge John P. Egan yesterday handed down an opinion ousting George A. Hahne as school tax collector for Mt. Oliver.

The court which heard argument en banc on the petition of Andrew J. Martin, elected collector by the bourough council, to have Hahne ousted, held Hahne was holding and unlawfully exercising the duties of the office.

Hahne had previously been the borough tax collector, but resigned. Martin was elected to fill his place, July 21, 1932. With the knowledge and consent of Martin, William M. Stuart was elected to collect the 1932 school duplicate. Stuart refused to serve for 1933 and the board reappointed Hahne.

Martin claims that as the regular qualified elected official, he should have been notified by the school board and his bond fixed. The board failed to do that and elected Hahne.

The court held that if Martin had been notified of the amount of his bond and in 15 days had failed to qualify, the board could have filled the place.

Gangster Arraigned In Inventor's Slaying

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Marshall Bowles, member of the notorious Hoffman gang, was arraigned on a charge of first degree murder in the slaying of Dr. Adolph Sommer, Cambridge inventor and manufacturer, last month. He was ordered held in $100,000 bail after he pleaded not guilty.

The unusual procedure of setting bail for a man charged with murder was for the purpose of keeping Bowles at the state prison in Boston, where he is now serving a term for a holdup. Had he been held without bail, he would have been brought to East Cambridge jail.

Live Wire Shock Not Fatal to Boy

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 14.—(INS.)—Joseph Zielinski, 13, of Germantown, who was at first reported killed today was recovering from an electric shock he received Sunday when a steel measuring tape he held in his hand came into contact with a high tension wire of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

BANK TO OPEN, FREE $700,000 AT ELIZABETH

The State Bank of Elizabeth has completed its stock-selling campaign making possible a reopening in the near future to release approximately $700,000 in deposits.

A new bank will be formed that will assume 100 per cent of old deposits. The new institution will have a capital, surplus and undivided profits of $130,000.

The bank has been making progress even under restrictions and now has accounts deposited since the holiday of $155,000, according to L. M. Beatty, cashier.

SPEED PLANS

Other state banks are being called for conferences this week by the State Banking Department, a deadline having been set for tomorrow by authorities on a decision on the possibility of reorganization.

Among the banks which have announced reorganization plans is the St. Clair Savings and Trust Company where it is proposed to organize a new institution to be known as the St. Clair Deposit Bank.

Depositors will receive 50 per cent as soon as the new bank is opened, an additional 20 per cent in stock in the new institution, and the final 30 per cent as soon as slow assets of the old bank can be liquidated.

CASHIER NAMED

Harry G. Butler, of Altoona, formerly with the State Department of Banking, has been named as cashier of the new institution.

The West End Savings Bank and Trust Company has announced a plan of reorganization in a letter to stockholders.

The Union National Bank at McKeesport is seeking temporary waivers from depositors of 30 per cent of their deposits. This money is to be paid later when deferred assets of the bank are sold.

Paddled Boy Appearing Against Teacher

MASTER FRANK IN A 'SQUIRE'S COURT AS HIS TEACHER WAS HELD FOR COURT TRIAL

PUPIL BEATEN, TEACHER HELD

Young E. Ellsworth Dyer was free today on $500 bond to await court action for a wooden paddle beating which he is said to have given his 10-year-old pupil, Frank Caster, at the Coal Valley School, Roberts Hollow, near Elizabeth, where he teaches.

At a hearing last night before Squire John W. Watson, of Elizabeth, attended by members of the school board and nearly 100 interested spectators, the 23-year-old Dyer pleaded not guilty to an aggravated assault and battery charge for whipping the small boy too severely.

Mrs. Fred Caster, of Roberts Hollow, the boy's mother, who filed the information, told the squire that her son came home last Wednesday with "terrible marks on his body" and had to be treated by a doctor.

Attorney J. L. Best, of Elizabeth, defended Dyer's actions on the grounds that under the state school code a teacher has a right to discipline his pupils.

Squire Watson declared that Dyer's treatment of the Caster boy was very unnecessary and then held him for court.

DENTISTS QUIT GOLD FOR STEEL

Another desertion from the gold standard faces the country today.

Stainless steel, not silver, is gradually becoming the substitute. That was the movement found in the dental profession as the Odontological Society of Western Pennsylvania opened its annual three-day convention at the Hotel William Penn. The substitute is finding approval in plates and bridge work as the government quotes gold at $33.56.

Stainless steel, dentists say, offers a lighter substance among its other advantages. Germany adopted steel for such uses following the war. With today's advance in gold cost, this country is following the step. Dr. J. V. O'Donovan, of Connellsville, president of the society, said:

"It can be foreseen that stainless steel will have increased use as gold prices advance."

The first technical sessions were being held this afternoon. Thirty-five manufacturers are exhibiting as a convention feature.

Watchman Burned In Bank Explosion

NORRISTOWN, Pa., Nov. 14.—(INS.)—Harry Jones, 73-year-old night watchman at the Norristown-Penn Trust Company, was seriously burned today when an oil heater exploded in the bank. Jones' clothing was burned from his body before firemen arrived at the bank.

Flying While Drunk, Actor on Probation

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Flying while intoxicated resulted in Ronald Wilson, actor and musician, being placed on three years' probation today.

On his plea of guilty, this sentence was passed by the Superior Court, one condition being that Wilson serve 50 days in the County Jail, and another that he make restitution for damages resulting from the crash of his plane in the back yard of an Atwater Park district home.

DOCTOR LEAVES BRIEF WILL

In a one sentence will probated today, Dr. John Calhoun, of Perrysville avenue, left a $11,000 estate to his widow, Mrs. Jean E. P. Calhoun. She was also named executrix. Included in the bequest was $10,000 war risk insurance.

The $12,000 estate of John Ross, of Duquesne, left $1,000 to each of six brothers and the remainder to a niece, Margaret Ream. She, together with Leslie J. Ream, was named executrix.

DUQUESNE BABY DIES OF BURNS

Two-year-old Isabelle Brooks, of Peach Valley, Duquesne, was dead today from burns received when she fell into a tub of hot water in her home Saturday. She died in the McKeesport Hospital.

Margaret Kovacks, 3, of 124 Sixth avenue, McKeesport, who erroneously was reported dead from burns suffered when her dress ignited while she was standing before an open gas stove in her home Saturday, is in a critical condition in McKeesport Hospital.

W. Chambers By Robert

B. Stuart's two favorite horses, Lady Margrave and Skylark!

At the mere idea all the clever, reckless sense of humor in the girl deliciously suffused her. Death grinned at her. She giggled.

Now all the actress in the girl was in confident and controlled ascendency. If she revealed herself to the mulatto, he might not have heard that she had been unmasked as a spy.

It was possible that this news had not reached Yellow Bob ", perhaps, had not yet been carried to headquarters, with Chancellor and Belle Boyd galloping the mountain trails where Jackson's pickets had fired on her as she swung her horse toward head-long escape.

Long Chance

It was a risk—a longer chance than her momentary safety seemed to warrant. The next instant she made up her mind; took her horse by the head and moved through the willows toward the spot where Yellow Bob sat his horse, holding the halters of Lady Margrave and pretty Skylark.

"Oh, Bob," she called softly.

"Who dat?" asked the mulatto fiercely.

"Hit's on'y lil Lucille, Bob. Hits on'y de gin'ral's onliest lil laun'ress."

"Whar yuh come f'om?" he whispered in a passion. "Yuh git outen hyah! De gin'ral ain't takin' no laun'ress when he-all ride a raid! Is yuh crazy, chile?"

"Oh, Bob, I'se just a-honin' to go."

"Yuh is crazy," he muttered. "Ain't nobody tell you dat Marse Jeb an' me is a-ridin' to fight de Yankees?"

"I'se jes' a-honin' to see yuh fight de Yankees, Bob."

"Who? Me? Wha', foh yuh wants to see me fight er battle?"

"Kaze yuh is so han'some an' brave, Bob. An' I jes' gotta follow yuh."

"Who? Me?" demanded Yellow Bob.

"Oh, Bob, jes' lemme follow yuh an' de gin'ral's hosses an' I'll be yuh onliest gal all de time, lak yuh asked me."

"Yuh stuck yuh lil pink tongue out at me when I ast yuh to be mah gal."

"I waz that skeered, Bob."

"What de gin'ral gwine say when he-all se yuh?"

"Ain't de gin'ral gotta wear a clean shirt, Bob?"

"Who de debbil gwine change de shirt when he fightin' ever' minute ob de day? 'Splain me dat, yaller gal!"

"Bob, I'se yuh onliest lil gal, an' I'se a-gwine along o' yuh, honey!"

Yellow Bob was enormously flattered. That the dusky belle of the camp, sought by every Negro—and, alas! by almost every white soldier in the division—should at the eleventh hour succumb to his personal charms filled him with immeasurable pride.

"Gor a-mighty!" he breathed, rolling his eyes at her and her horse. "Whar yuh git dose clothes, Lucille?" he asked.

"Yuh ain't seen dem boots nowhar befo'?" she began, when suddenly the first splash sounded from the water's edge and, far in the fog, a pistol flashed.

The next instant she was in the saddle, sidling close up beside Yellow Bob. She could see Lieut. Phillips run out in to the water, followed by two dozen dismounted men, all splashing toward the unseen shore beyond, which now was belted with flashes like floating fireflies in the mist.

The crackle of pistol fire merged into a ragged, rattling volley from Federal rifles. With a roaring rush through the fog, Wade Hampton's horsemen took to the water, followed by Hart's battery, the straining horses bounding forward through clouds of foam.

Across the river a fight was going on in the fog; Col. Butler's Second South Carolina horsemen closing with the Union pickets and vedettes, saber against saber and bayonet. The fog was full of shouting; yells from galloping riders; sharp cries from directing officers; musketry rising to roaring crescendo—then a dropping shot or two—then, suddenly, all sound extinguished.

Riding to Warn

The Union pickets and vedettes had all been killed, taken or scattered. Distant scampering hoofs of stampeding horsemen and thunderous, thrashing gallop of Confederate cavalry through churned waters that broiled to the riders' thighs—these were the only sounds in the gray obscurity, now—these, and a few shots sent after scattering Federal vedettes of the 12th Illinois Cavalry, riding frantically to warn their Capt. Logan that 2,000 Rebel horsemen were across the Potomac, and hell was breaking loose along the Mercersbury road.

On the downstream edge of the ford the second section of young Pelham's four-gun horse battery splashed across the waters. Here the river is very crooked and thrusts northward a deep angle, the base of which rests on a shore of sand and rock and river willows.

From the apex of this angle Yellow Bob spurred his lank hunter out into the stream, leading Lady Margrave and Skylark.

Close at heel through watery obscurity rode "lil Lucille," hard put to manage Gaillard's horse, which was part thoroughbred. The poor beast and its rider, half blinded by driving spray and the turmoil of plunging horses, reared and shied, endangering Yellow Bob and the led horses and causing confusion among the mounted gunners.

In midford Major Pelham sat his horse, bringing order out of confusion. "Oh, Bob," he called out pleasantly, "take the general's horses and follow the Ninth Virginia on the other side."

"Yaas, suh, major!" bawled Yellow Bob, enchanted at being personally addressed by the most popular man in the army; and he spurred out through shoaling water, Lady Margrave and Skylark galloping gallantly at lead, and little Lucille, still fighting Gaillard's horse, plunging along beside him and up the bank to the Yankee shore.

'LITTLE ANGEL' SEEKS BALM

CINCINNATI, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—A pretty, 24-year-old New York manicurist seeking $30,000 damages, testified yesterday that a Cincinnati labor leader thrice offered her marriage, but the accused man, admitting endearing letters and gifts of sums of money, answered with the cry of "blackmail."

Miss Catherine Gilbert, appearing in mourning because, she said, of the recent death of her father, said she learned too late that Thomas J. Farrell was a married man.

Farrell, international organizer for the Teamsters' and Chauffeurs' Union, said she was aware of it all along, and that he never asked her to marry him anyway. But he admitted writing letters in which he called her "Dear Kitty," "My Sweet Little Patsy" and "My Little Angel."

Mrs. N. Swartz, 1149 Admiral St., N. S., Pittsburgh

Perhaps never in the history of Pittsburgh has a medicine swept so swiftly to widespread popularity as has that grand old "The Family Physician" Medicine with its 68-year service record of saving children from illness and mothers from heartache and worry.

Mrs. N. Swartz, well-known matron of 1149 Admiral St., N. S., Pittsburgh, tells a story that should thrill other mothers with hope and confidence in their ability to save their children from illness. She said recently:

"It's now more than 30 years since my son brought home that first bottle of 'The Family Physician' Medicine. I have used it for my five children with wonderful success—for all kinds of sickness. I never saw its equal for breaking fever, cleansing the bowels or sweetening an upset stomach. I recommend it to everyone and they all come back and bless me for telling them about it. I wish I could talk to ALL mothers and urge them to try it. And it's just as quick to build up grown-ups who are sick, weak, nervous, headachy and troubled by acid, gassy indigestion."

MONEY-BACK GUARANTEE AND TRIAL OFFER!

Try "The Family Physician" Medicine entirely at our risk. You need pay only 30c or 60c a bottle, but even that small sum will be repaid if this wonderful medicine doesn't QUICKLY bring relief. Get it at your nearby drug store.

Sold, recommended and guaranteed by Mayflower and Sun Drug Stores, Dow Drug Stores, Rand Cut Rate Drug Stores and all other leading drug stores.

The Best GRAY HAIR REMEDY IS MADE AT HOME

You can now make at home a better gray hair remedy than you can buy, by following this simple recipe: To half pint of water add one ounce bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and one-fourth ounce of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it yourself at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained.

Barbo imparts color to streaked, faded or gray hair, makes it soft and glossy and takes years off your looks. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off. Do not be handicapped by gray hair now when it is so economical and easy to get rid of it in your own home.

KIDNAPERS MUM AS PARENTS SEEK SON

SAN JOSE, Cal., Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Hopes for the return of Brooke L. Hart were pinned by his parents here today on a public appeal to his kidnapers to establish contact.

Only one condition, that the kidnapers give proof they have the 22-year-old store executive, was imposed in the appeal issued at the Hart home last night.

In copies handed to newspapermen, the parents over their signatures, Alex J. Hart and Nettie B. Hart, gave their pledge that all negotiations will be confidential and that no "outside interference" will be allowed.

The father, owner of the department store in which the son was recently made a junior executive, said nothing had been heard from the kidnapers since Thursday night, shortly after young Hart vanished. The one contact, made by a telephone call to the Hart home and later traced to a San Francisco hotel, brought a $40,000 ransom demand but made no arrangements for payment.

State and federal authorities continued to keep a close watch on the Hart home after running down what at first were presumed to be possible clues.

A telegram to a member of the Hart family, saying "give up—sell for twenty thousand," was quickly traced to James Nealis, a friend of the family in Sacramento. Nealis explained his only purpose was to advise the Harts to offer the kidnapers $20,000.

'Jake the Barber' Linked To Hamm Kidnap Trial

ST. PAUL, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Evidence designed to link four Chicago suspects charged with the Hamm kidnaping, with the abduction of John (Jake the Barber) Factor last July may be introduced in Federal Court here, the government indicated today.

What connection, if any, it is hoped to establish between that abduction and the kidnaping for $100,000 of the millionaire St. Paul brewer, William Hamm, last June 15, prosecutors refused to say.

'Machine Gun' Kelly's Wife En Route to New Prison

CINCINNATI, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—"Kitty" Kelly, convicted with her husband in the Charles F. Urschel kidnaping, today was taken from the Cincinnati Workhouse to an unannounced destination.

A police escort was provided, the police said, in transporting the woman from the workhouse to an eastbound train here.

FLOWER OF AUTUMN PATTERN 598

Flower in Scraps Is Easy to Make

This quilt—so colorful—so economical—such fun to make, is one of those charming quilts that every quiltmaker loves—a scrap quilt. It is ideal as a Friendship Quilt, in which each friend contributes her own patches for a block; each block can be of different scraps and still make a most effective quilt. The flower, somewhat the shape of a fan, is as easy to make as the popular Fan Quilt and is enhanced by the leaves and stems.

Pattern 598 comes to you with complete, simple, instructions for cutting, sewing and finishing, together with yardage chart, diagram of quilt to help arrange the blocks for single and double bed size, and a diagram of block which serves as a guide for placing the patches and suggests contrasting materials.

Send 10c for this pattern to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

(Owing to the illness of Walter Winchell, this column is being written by Paul Yawitz until Mr. Winchell's recovery.)

Things Nobody Should Know!

It's Just My Way of Corrupting Your Minds.

That someone should tell Marlene Dietrich long pants were invented by a king to hide his ugly legs.

(And about an equal number of dopes!)

That the highest-priced three-minute telephone call you can make from New York is to Sumatra. The charge is $49.50.

That the French Government has erected a monument in Camembert to Mme. Joanne Harel, who invented Camembert cheese in 1791.

That the game of checkers dates back to 1600 B. C.
(About the same time the office boy went out to get my coffee!)

That an indication of the return of prosperity is the fact that postal receipts are showing a gain for the first time since the Hoover decline.
(But stamps are still taking a licking!)

That Zachary Taylor is the only President of the United States under whose administration there were no cabinet changes.
(Which probably accounts for his death after only two years in the White House.)

That the game of polo was invented by a Persian nobleman more than 2,000 years ago.

That the odds against a railroad passenger meeting death in an accident while traveling are 150,000,000 to one.

That honeymoon couples in Italy are granted an 80 per cent reduction in train fare.
(Suppose he has to take her mother along?)

That more than 7,000,000 persons milk cows daily in this country.

That the first inn to provide a private bath with every room was the Broztell Hotel in New York, which opened in 1906.
(But nowhere has yet devised a plan that compels guests to use them.)

That in Alabama there is an organization of ex-slaves.
(A columnist who writes seven days a week was refused admission on the ground that he didn't qualify as an "ex-slave.")

That Dr. Alfred B. Nobel, founder of the famous Nobel Peace Prize, was the inventor of dynamite. He established the award as his protest against the war uses of his creation.
(Now if we can only get the guy who invented sauerkraut juice to do his bit!)

That the average American home uses artificial light seven hours a day during December and only two and a half hours during June.

That Mayor O'Brien and Samuel Untermyer are two of the few remaining New Yorkers who still wear buttoned shoes.

That Democracy is not perishing from the earth—there are 38 countries with governments headed by presidents.

That Grant's real name was Hiram Ulysses Grant, which he later changed to Ulysses H. Grant because of his dislike for Hiram. When appointed to West Point he was erroneously listed as Ulysses S. Grant, which name he accepted.

That more than 75,000,000 telephone conversations are held every day in the U. S.
(Most of them, I believe, are made by my office boy calling his bookie.)

That marriage licenses are issued in Turkey only to applicants who can prove they know the new Turkish alphabet.

There are 6,000 items in a complete kit of dentist's instruments. Which is one reason why 3 out of 4 Americans never visit their dentist.

That when Andrew Jackson (who was a former tailor) was Governor of Tennessee, he made a suit of clothes as a compliment for the Governor of Kentucky.

That there are 36 licensed women taxicab drivers in New York.

That the "D" in Owen D. Young's name is a letter and does not represent a name.

That California leads all states in the Union both in the number of licensed pilots and in the number of aircraft holding federal licenses.

That the present White House once faced in the opposite direction.

That a rosebush planted by Emperor Charlemagne 1,000 years ago is still flourishing at Hildesheim, Germany.

That it is unethical for a doctor or an undertaker to form a partnership with another of his own profession.

Gary to Join Miss Shaw Shortly

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1933, King Features Synd., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 14.—If it isn't love, why is Gary Cooper bending every effort to leave Hollywood early in the week to join Sandra Shaw, who airplaned it East, or at least was supposed to, Sunday.

Miss Shaw

The film colony's most-talked about couple of the moment returned from their Arizona trip apparently minus a marriage license, but still very much engaged. And the fact that Sandra wore no ring didn't fool some of us. We happen to know that the square baguette diamond ring of awesome proportions had to go back to the jeweler for refitting.

Gary and his party didn't do any hunting, as they expected to when they left here. They played golf and loafed around. Then, deciding that the motor trip back was too arduous, they had Gary's chauffeur fly up to get the car and returned to Hollywood by train.

In all probability, the tall film star will take a several months vacation from the screen. Don't be surprised if he and Sandra are married in New York, and go on to Europe for a honeymoon.

A certain man-about-Hollywood is very amusing when in his cups. The other night, relates Allen Rivkin, he arrived at a party in a noisy state. A friend took him aside.

"What are you doing here like this?" he asked. "Were you even invited?"

The drunk drew himself up in offended dignity.

"Not only was I invited," he said, "but I declined."

* * *

Now we know the real reason why Cary Grant grabbed an airplane for New York. Virginia Cherrill left here, headed for Europe, and preceded by many letters of introduction which Cary wrote to friends in England.

Miss Cherrill

Incidentally, Cary's departure took even his best friend, Randolph Scott, by surprise. Randy came home and found Cary and his luggage gone. The two have been talking of spending Christmas together in London, that is if Randy can tear himself away from Vivian Gaye.

* * *

Next to Marie Dressler, the happiest looking persons at the big testimonial in her honor was George Hill, the director. He came to the party with Frances Marion, his entranged wife. (Mary Pickford was with them, too) and from all indications, the rumored reconciliation between the couple is near at hand. Which won't make studio heads feel badly at all, for the pair make a great writer-director combination.

* * *

Though she made the grandest speech of her life, poor Marie was so nervous before all those 800 guests that she scarcely could eat a thing. Unbeknownst to her, she knocked a piece of chicken off her plate into the lap of Toastmaster Edgar Allen Woolf, who sat nearby. A few minutes later, Woolf urged her to try to eat something. Marie glanced nervously at her plate.

"There, my dear," she said, "see, I've eaten half of it already."

One of the most amusing sights of the week was Elbert Franklin arriving with his car loaded with white wicker furniture to put in Toby Wing's dressing room.... Thanks to skillful work by surgeons, the scar Lyle Talbot got in the auto crash is almost invisible. Lyle is making the rounds of the late spots again. He and a pretty brunette helped usher in the new show at the Club Ballyhoo . . . Kitty O'Dare, New York actress, who is so rich she works only for the fun of it, was another ringsider at this spot.

Miss Wing

Too tragic the death of Hugh Trevor, who would be alive today if he hadn't been so impatient to resume his normal life after an appendicitis operation. Young Trevor was the nephew of Mrs. William LeBaron and was a popular figure in Hollywood . . . Bob Armstrong is moving into his new Spanish farmhouse in Coldwater Canyon . . . From a conversation with Joan Crawford before she left here, I am sure that she and Franchot Tone will be married after her divorce is final...Marjorie King has been out again with Bernie Toplitsky, but with George Raft's approval this time . . . Judging by their rapt concentration in each other at the Clover Club after the "Only Yesterday" premier, Sally Blane and Russ Columbo will be marrying any minute . . . Kathryn Carver and Serge Mdivani also drew curious eyes at this smart rendezvous.

Ideal Sweet Sixteen

PATRICIA ELLIS, YOUNG ACTRESS WHO HAS A ROLE IN "THE WORLD CHANGES"

Coming Film Programs

All Warner theaters downtown will be on a Thursday opening schedule this week, to continue until after Thanksgiving. The Davis and Sheridan Square will present identical bills in Laugh Week programs. The feature in each theater will be Joan Blondell and Lyle Talbot in a comedy, "Havana Widows," and all shorts will be of a humorous nature, too.

The Four Marx Brothers in "Duck Soup," a comedy, will be featured in the Penn Friday. The boys go to war, one result of which makes Grucho a dictator. Raquel Torres, Louis Calhern, Margaret Dumont and Verna Hillie are in the cast.

Margaret Sullavan and John Boles have the leading roles in "Only Yesterday," a story of a girl who is forgotten by her sweetheart. Billie Burke also has a prominent role in a cast that includes Reginald Denny and Benita Hume. The picture comes to the Stanley Thursday.

* * *

"The Invisible Man," adapted by R. C. Sheriff from the novel by H. G. Wells, will open Thursday in the Warner. Claude Rains plays the leading roles, that of a chemist who produces a mixture to make himself invisible. Gloria Stuart and Roger Pryor are in the cast.

South Hills Players Plan Open House

The South Hills Community Players tonight will begin five gala nights of "open house" in their quarters, "The Loft." All who are interested in its program of activities, are invited to make a visit. The door will be opened at 8 o'clock every evening for the remainder of the week, and members of the organization will receive visitors. The Loft is on the second floor of the Medical Arts Building, 701 Washington road, Mt. Lebanon.

Cantor's New Movie Is Completed

"Roman Scandals," Eddie Cantor's fourth annual musical comedy for Samuel Goldwyn, is finished, and will be released soon by United Artists. Aileen Riggin, one of the greatest girl swimmers and divers in this generation, will be one of the Roman slave girls who dance with Eddie Cantor in this new revel. Miss Riggin is a graduate of the School of the Ballet of the Metropolitan Opera, and her appearance in this film marks her debut as a professional dancer.

Knowing How to Drink Wins Contract

In a cafe scene for "Nana," one young man stood out. He held his glass easily and airily and he sipped his asperitif in a distinguished, worldly manner.

"He drinks like a gentleman!" Samuel Goldwyn exclaimed. "Let's find out about this, for drinking is going to be important."

And so Branch Stephens received a contract from Mr. Goldwyn, out of which the producer hopes a star will be created. Branch is from Denver. He is a tall, healthy-looking lad of 21, clear-eyed, straight and muscular. Until he was "discovered" Mr. Stephens had no idea that he drank in the continental manner. He has played small parts in stock and in little theaters.

Comedy

Opportunity At Door

In many respects "Olsen's Night Out" is an "opportunity picture."

The film stars El Brendel, and it is decidedly an opportunity for the comedian with the Swedish dialect—"First picture," he says, "I've really had a part in for more than a year."

If the picture makes money, there may be a new contract awaiting his return from vaudeville.

Walter Catlett's in it, too. Catlett had a contract once, but somehow his stage reputation and hits in various films have not put him over in Hollywood as well as might have been expected. In this one he has a major role—maybe the one that will turn the trick.

Susan Fleming, after a brief contract with Paramount, had not been seen much lately. From January to June she was ill in the hospital. In the Brendel film she has a lead.

Novel Scenes In Davies Picture

Hollywood haunts familiar to members of the film colony and readers of motion picture magazines and newspaper chatter columns, will be seen on the screen for the first time in "Going Hollywood," Marion Davies' new Cosmopolitan Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer starring vehicle.

In the new film, directed by Raoul Walsh, backstage life in a picture studio is shown in intimate detail, from the bungalow court existence of the extra girl to the swimming-pooled luxury of the star. Hollywood's favorite night rendezvous and other gay places famous for the patronage of celluloid celebrities serve as a background for important phases of the action.

The studio scenes serve to introduce spectacular musical ensembles in which Miss Davies is to be seen with the Albertina Rasch ballet. Just how the big musical numbers are filmed is a feature of these scenes. Bing Crosby, who is cast as Miss Davies' leading man, sings several of the song numbers written for the production by Brown and Freed.

"Going Hollywood" is an original story by Donald Ogden Stewart. An orchestra of 150 pieces, under the direction of Lenny Hayton, supplies the music.

Phonograph Record Leads to Movies

Florence Desmond, whose first part for Fox is with Will Rogers in "Mr. Sketch," has been engaged for a role in "Fox Follies," a musical extravaganza that will feature every star on the Fox roster. Miss Desmond is the mimic whose best-selling phonograph record, "Hollywood Party," in which she imitates the better known film stars, brought her fame and a screen contract.

Drama

Billie Burke is a member of the cast of "Only Yesterday," dramatic film of the "Back Street" order, that will introduce a new star, Margaret Sullavan, in the Stanley Thursday.

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

Things I'd Like to Do Again.

WIN, in a summer resort at the age of 10, two first prizes in the annual Dollar Day raffles. (Those were the only prizes I've ever won in any contest—and they were a baby carriage and a corset.)

* * *

Watch the celebrated fight in the Playground Cafe, when that spot was wrecked by three football players who couldn't be knocked out. (That is to say, they couldn't be knocked out for some 20 minutes. After that, it was different. I think one or two of them may still be out.)

* * *

Have the late Jack Diamond refuse to let me drive my own car and insist that his chauffeur take me home because he thought I had one drink too many at a party. (Surely a strange way for a cold-blooded killer to feel, and an episode I will never forget.)

Gaze from my window in the Taj Mahal Hotel, in Bombay, on a glorious moonlit night—and shudder with pity at the sight of hundreds of tattered beggars who whined continuously for alms. (An hour later, in the same hotel, I was not permitted on a dance floor because I was not in formal attire. And even as I was so advised, I could hear the hideous chant of the beggars through open windows.)

* * *

Sit up all night with Peter Arno in the Belmont Manor Hotel, in Bermuda, in order to see that he got a very important radio script off on the morning boat. (We bicycled all the way to the pier, just made the boat, bicycled all the way back, fell into the hotel utterly exhausted—and Peter was handed a cable, telling him the whole radio deal was canceled!)

* * *

Attempt to smoke my first pipe with the inevitable Bull Durham tobacco. (I stuffed the pipe so full that it wouldn't draw. So I went right over to the five-and-ten cent store and tried to get my money back.)

* * *

Tell my mother to quit dealing in Strauss' delicatessen store because the boy behind the counter refused to slip me a slice of bologna for myself. (Mr. Reuben, who was the boy, now has a few delicatessen spots of his own, and he hands me plenty of bologna.)

* * *

Have Angel, the new girl in the corner house, tell me that her father wouldn't permit her to remain out after 9 o'clock at night with any of the boys. I felt pretty sure of myself in those long trousers, and I told Angel to introduce me to the old man so that I could talk him out of his silly ideas. (I met him later, but I never brought up the subject. He was a police sergeant.)

* * *

Enter a brandy contest with Primo Carnera in Miami, Fla., the day after the Maloney-Carnera fight down there. (Primo insisted upon eating a banana with his drinks, and he quit after the fourth round. He said the banana made him sick.)

Attempt with the assistance of Bob Topping and Walter Camp, Jr., to stow away on the S. S. Resolute as that vessel was about to sail from Bali. I had to stow away because the Dutch authorities will not permit a cruise boat to pick up passengers. (I was finally found after I had delayed the sailing some two hours, and was unceremoniously dumped out on my ear. Was I blue as the Resolute sailed away and left me stranded!)

Pretend to be in love with Henrietta. She was a homely child, but her old man owned a drug store and carried a special brand of sweet cough drops. So what was a fellow to do? (I asked for some one day, and pop obliged smilingly. But he took my nickel—and I never talked to Henrietta again.)

Interview the winner of that amazing marathon dance contest that Milton Crandall held in Madison Square Garden some years ago. The young lady had danced some 37 days. (The first question I asked her was what she was going to do, and she said she was going to a cafe to have a drink and a few dances.)

Listen to "Big Tim," a giant of a man, talk about drunks and sights he'd seen during a working day. He drove one of those old, two-horse beer trucks for—I think—the Kips Bay Brewery. Tim never drank, and his stories would always wind up with: "The poor dopes. The stuff'll get 'em some day." (But it finally got him—indirectly. He was thrown from his high perch one day when his team ran away—and he was killed.)

Take—and this is one of my earliest recollections—a spoonful of cough medicine, and have my dad give me a dime for being a good little boy. (Later, when he went in to dinner, I drank the whole bottle in order to make a dollar. And did I get the devil!)

* * *

Hear Texas Guinan say "Hello, Sucker!" just once more. There never lived a more remarkable woman. I learn now that she had a presentiment of her death, and that she planned her own funeral a few hours before she died. And among her remarks was this:

"Put me in Campbell's so that those who care may see me—without a cover charge." . . .

Junior Patrol

A few days ago we heard that hunters had shot some of the tame squirrels in Frick Park, fellows!

It doesn't seem possible that anybody could be so cruel or thoughtless, does it? The squirrels there belong to everybody. Almost every nice day, thousansd of people enjoy feeding the squirrels and watching the frisky little fellows playing in the trees and woods.

There are only a few squirrels. There are thousands of people with guns, but every honest and respectable hunter knows that animals in parks and game preserves must be left alone. Fellows, if you see hunters in Frick Park or any other park, report them to the police right away.

Here's a letter from Capt. Betty Haber, of 1518 Fallowfield avenue, Pittsburgh. She writes:

"I received my armband and thank you very much. Our club is coming along very nicely. I have had the club for eight weeks. We are soon going to have an "Essay Contest" and a "Spelling Contest" and we are going to award prizes to the winners. We had a Hallowe'en Party and had a nice time. I wish other captains would write to me, telling me about their clubs.

"One of our members suggested we should have a raffle, which we might do. This week the meeting is going to be at my house. First, we have a meeting, then a program. Then we serve refreshments. Each member is doing his best to put as much as he can in the dues box. Each member is going to draw a picture, and the best picture will be sent into the Junior Patrol and will be put in the paper. Our club is going to put on a short show soon."

Fine, Betty! You have a club to be proud of. With all your various things going on, your members must have a swell time. And your letter is full of news. We hope a lot of other captains read your letter here. Maybe it will give them some good ideas for their clubs. We'll be looking for your winning drawing.

Are you sigining up any new members these days, fellows? We are printing the pledge in the paper every day, right next to the comic strip, you know, and any one who wants to send in a pledge can clip it out of the paper—or you can make a copy of it. We have had letters from a lot of fellows who don't have their 10 members yet. We hope they are getting enough new members to get their armbands.

Coach Guild to Award Scholarships to 24

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 14.—Twenty-four university scholarships, with an aggregate value of $51,000, will be awarded in the fourth annual coach building competition of the Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild, W. A. Fisher, president of the guild, announced today in making public the terms of the 1933-1934 competition.

In general, the competition for 1933-34 retains the form that has proved so successful during the last three years and that resulted in the enrollment of more than 750,000 boys in the guild.

Several important changes feature the new plan designed to solidify the guild's status as an educational foundation. Instead of the six university scholarships as offered in last year's competition, the guild this year will award 24, divided as follows: Six of $5,000 each; six of $2,000 each; six of $1,000 each, and six of $500 each.

The project for the competition will again be the building of a miniature scale model Napoleonic coach. Age limits are 12 to 19 inclusive, divided into junior and senior groups; the former 12 to 15 and the latter 16 to 19 inclusive.

Enrollment is to be on a selective basis. Every applicant must have his enrollment application indorsed by three persons, his school superintendent or principal, his manual arts teacher, Boy Scout master or other boys' activity leader, and in every case, his parent or guardian.

Ambitious Smith Saves the Situation

by Stopping His Cold in a Hurry

① 6 P.M.
MARY, I'M CATCHING A TERRIBLE COLD... AND WE'VE GOT THE MEETING ON THAT BIG DEAL TOMORROW. - THROAT SORE, TOO. WHAT CAN I DO?
LISTEN, YOUR MOTHER'S DOCTOR TOLD HER OF THE SUREST WAY TO GET RID OF A COLD QUICK TODAY.... COME WITH ME...
TAKE THESE 2 BAYER ASPIRIN TABLETS. - WE'LL DO THIS AGAIN IN A COUPLE OF HOURS
②
NOW DRINK THIS FULL GLASS OF WATER - ALL OF IT.
(B)
HE REPEATED THIS IN TWO HOURS
③
NOW, FOR YOUR SORE THROAT, WE'LL CRUSH AND DISSOLVE 3 BAYER ASPIRIN TABLETS IN ½ GLASS OF WATER TO GARGLE...
THAT WILL "EASE" THE SORENESS IN YOUR THROAT - INSTANTLY.
④ NEXT DAY
WELL, DEAR, I PUT OVER THE BIG DEAL. YES, COLD WAS PRACTICALLY GONE WHEN I GOT TO THE OFFICE.... THAT BAYER ASPIRIN TREATMENT FOR COLDS IS CERTAINLY FAST.
IT'S THE FASTEST WAY THERE IS!

Almost Instant Relief From Colds IN THIS WAY

If you catch a cold—don't take chances with "cold killers" and nostrums. A cold may be dangerous to take chances on.

This is recognized as the QUICKEST, safest, surest way to treat a cold. For it often checks an ordinary cold almost as fast you caught it. Just do this:

1. Take 2 Bayer Aspirin Tablets.
2. Drink Full Glass of Water.
Repeat this in 2 Hours.
3. If throat is sore, crush and dissolve 3 Bayer Aspirin Tablets in a half glass of water and gargle. This eases the soreness in your throat almost instantly.

Your cold should be relieved quickly when you do this because the real BAYER Aspirin embodies certain medical qualities that strike at the base of a cold almost INSTANTLY.

You can combat nearly any cold you get simply by taking BAYER Aspirin as directed. Sore throat can be eased by gargling this way in two or three minutes, incredible as this may seem.

Ask your doctor about this. And when you buy, see that you get the real BAYER Aspirin. It dissolves almost instantly. And thus works almost instantly you take it internally. And for a gargle, it dissolves completely enough for this purpose. Get a box of 12 tablets or bottle of 24 or 100 at any drug store.

DOES NOT HARM THE HEART

Will

their bodies outlast unemployment? If they last, will they be sick bodies or well bodies—strong enough for blessed work?

By "they" we mean more than one fourth of the population of Allegheny County—300,000 individuals now without money for medical or nursing care except as you permit the health agencies of Allegheny County to function. Forty-three percent of those 300,000 individuals are children.

Long privation is telling its tale with children and with grown-ups. Malnutrition and the incidence of tuberculosis in persons under 16 years of age is increasing. Nervous diseases which we have watched spread among grown-ups for several years now occur in increasing number among little children whose parents can no longer conceal from them the uncertainty of their own welfare. One of many hundreds of charts from the Public Health Nursing Association clinics reads, for a child of four, like this:

Bright, responsive	Dull, listless
Muscles firm	Muscles flabby
Weight normal	Underweight

The most important agent you have in Allegheny County for curative and preventive nursing—your agent for taking into homes the knowledge of how to ward off disease—is the Public Health Nursing Association. But—and we ask you to mark this well—without more nurses they cannot continue to carry that knowledge. For even now, 108 nurses are struggling under a burden of nearly 23,000 cases—211 patients apiece.

The Public Health Nurse is your protection against the spread of disease to your home no less than she is the guardian of the frail, frightened children of the unemployed, offering the main chance for those young bodies to hold out a little longer against terrific odds.

For them, and for yourselves, how much of the teaching and the ministration of 16 more nurses will you buy with an increased pledge

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

In Mayfair —With— Patricia Pitt

This is another big day for the debs, with no less than two debutante parties to squeeze in between 1:30 and 6 o'clock.

The first deb was "Punky" Wilson, christened Maria. Punky, who's the daughter of Mrs. George C. Wilson, Jr., was presented today at a luncheon her aunt, Mrs. Robert McKay, gave in the Fox Chapel Golf Club.

Arranged In Black

Time was when a deb always wore white, but Punky chose a black afternoon dress with the bodice of turquoise blue bagheera, draped gracefully about the throat and having long sleeves, cut into a point over the hands. With it she wore a pert black velvet hat with a diminiutive veil, and she carried a Colonial bouquet.

Mrs. McKay chose a soft grey crepe dress with a hat to match, and wore orchids; Mrs. Wilson chose a brown costume.

Small tables with covers for eight at each were arranged for the debs, and Mrs. McKay had at her table Mrs. Marcus Peck, Mrs. Wilson, mother of the debutante; Mrs. Thomas McKay, Miss Martha Warren and Mrs. Unger Wilson. Fall flowers and candlesticks decorated the tables.

Another Is Feted

The second deb of today is Betsy Liggett, daughter of the Sidney S. Liggetts, whose mother is presenting her at a tea this afternoon in the Allegheny Country Club—the first deb party of the year to be held there.

For her coming out party, Betsy is wearing a bright red crepe frock with crystal for accent, and a small brown velvet hat. Her frock in princess mode is very long, and has elbow length sleeves.

Debs Are Aides

Aiding Mrs. Liggett are Mrs. J. Twing Brooks, Mrs. Angelica S. Freeman, Mrs. Thomas Atterbury McGinley, Mrs. John C. Neale, Mrs. Henry Oliver, Mrs. Henry H. Robinson, Mrs. Moses Bedell Suydam, Mrs. B. R. B. Townsend, Mrs. John S. Wendt and Mrs. Elmore A. Willetts.

And here's some more news for our popular young debutantes. Mrs. W. Harry Brown, whose renown as a hostess reaches from Pittsburgh to London to Paris to the Riviera, will give a dinner Saturday evening, November 25, in the Pittsburgh Golf Club, honoring debs Analana Beeson and Katharine Ward.

To Honor Two Buds

On the same evening and in the same club, the B. R. B. Townsends will give a small diner honoring debutante Betsy Liggett.

And Margery Hillman, another of our debs, will be honor guest tomorrow at a luncheon her aunt, Mrs. James Frazier Hillman, will give in the Pittsburgh Golf Club. And all the guests will be sister debs.

'Days' at Architects' Art Bazar Gives Smart Set New Entertainment

Something new for the smart set this week will be the various "days" at the Architectural Club Art Bazar in the clubhouse in picturesque Charette way, hidden in one of Pittsburgh's downtown alleys.

Members of the Garden Club of Allegheny will be hostesses tomorrow afternoon; the Twentieth Century Club, Friday afternoon; the College Club and the Women's Association of the University of Pittsburgh, Saturday afternoon. And there'll be a tea each day. This afternoon the club is entertaining the exhibitors and guests at a preview with tea from 4 to 5 o'clock.

For the Garden Club tea Mrs. James D. Heard is chairman, assisted by Mrs. Alfred G. Harlow, Mrs. Alan Magee Scaife and Miss Dorothy Slack. Mrs. George Laughlin, Mrs. George H. Clapp and Mrs. J. D. Hailman will pour.

Mrs. W. Eugene Gary is chairman of the Twentieth Century committee; Mrs. Robert Schmertz and Mrs. Ralph E. Griswold, of the College Club; Mrs. Bernvard Nichols and Mrs. Ralphs, the University of Pittsburgh Women's Association.

Mrs. Cross and Sister Giving Delmont Program

On Friday night the Delmont Community group of Mt. Lebanon Methodist Episcopal Church women will sponsor a benefit musicale in the church parlor.

Mrs. Cross

The program will be given by Mrs. Elizabeth Stephens Cross and her sister, Mrs. Alice Stephens Jones, of Youngstown; Miss Ruth Simons and Miss Gertrude Goeddel.

Beechview Church Scene of Ketter Marriage

At a pretty ceremony at 9 o'clock this morning in St. Catherine's Church, Beechview, the marriage of Miss Caroline Ketter and William A. Taggart was solemnized. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Elizabeth Taggart, of Natchez street.

The bride, who is a daughter of Mrs. Caroline Ketter, of Belasco avenue, was given in marriage by James McDonnell. She wore a gown of white satin having the long sleeves puffed from shoulder to elbow then close fitting to the wrist, and the skirt featured a slight train. The high, draped neckline was caught with a narrow festoon of orange blossoms. She wore a veil of tulle with a cap of lace and tulle and carried white roses showered with lilies of the valley.

The bride's mother wore black and white. The maid of honor, Miss Martha Ketter, sister of the bride, wore garnet red velvet with a hat to match and carried Johanna Hill roses. Mrs. James McDonnell, sister of the bridegroom, was matron of honor, and her gown was of wine colored velvet with which she wore a matching hat and carried Talisman roses.

Serving as best man was Joseph Pritchard, Jr., and there were no ushers.

There was a breakfast in the Keystone Athletic Club, which was decorated with fall flowers. Later Mr. and Mrs. Taggart left for Detroit and Cleveland and upon their return will make their home with Mrs. Ketter in Belasco avenue.

The Junior Adath Jeshurun Sisterhood is sponsoring its second Dutch bridge Sunday evening in the synagogue auditorium. Mrs. Harry Maglin is chairman.

Former Pittsburgh Girl Marries New York Man

Eleanor Roberts Cornelius, daughter of the William Albert Corneliuses, of Rhyle lane, Bala-Cyndyd, Pa., formerly of Pittsburgh, and Alden White Gee, of New York, son of the Albert Ross Gees, of Little Compton, R. I., were married Saturday, November 4, at 4 o'clock in St. John's Church, Bala-Cynwyd.

The bride, who chose the traditional white satin and orange blossoms with a veil of tulle and lace, carried bride's roses and lilies of the valley. Her maid of honor, Virginia Van Court, of Germantown, wore a toreador velvet gown and carried chrysanthemums. Copper leaf velvet was worn by the bridesmaids, Jessie Patterson, of Dravosburg, and Mary Weeks, of Providence. They carried bronze and yellow chrysanthemums.

Robert Comly Cornelius, brother of the bride, was best man, and William Albert Cornelius, another brother of the bride; William Cannon, Jr., of Philadelphia; G. B. Fairchild, of Germantown, and John Culbertson, of Greenwich, were ushers.

After a southern honeymoon, the Gees will be at home in Brooklyn.

NEW OFF-THE-FACE COIFFURES

By PRUNELLA WOOD

THE four coiffures sketched here were featured by four of New York's best known hair stylists during the recent beauty exposition in New York. Top left is an evening coiffure which takes full advantage of the vogue for tiara ornaments being touted for the formal season. There is a tip in it for any bride who plans to wear a veil at her wedding. Fancy a mist of tulle attached behind such a bandeau (made of pearls or of orange blossoms), headed by an upstanding crest or fan of pleated tulle and see the possibilities.

Top right, the practical beauties of the coiffure which swirls across the back of the head is shown. With or without a hat this arrangement is soft but sculptured to show the shape of the head, in the combination of flat sectors and massed curls so popular now.

The lower drawing shows a coiffure which employs back curls that are built half-way up the head. This is a particularly good arrangement for the head which is rather small and placed on a swanlike neck.

ALL the coiffures shown demonstrate the fashion for lifting hair away from the brows and sweeping it back. The theory is that one's face should be set off by one's hair, instead of serving as an object useful for carrying around a swell coiffure. It is surprising how much larger and prettier eyes appear when they do not have to share face space with hair dips and waves, and how successfully even an amateur can put make up on them to show them off to even better advantage. There is no doubt about it that American women have become eye conscious. Even the milliners and the master hairdressers are wise to the fact, and are co-operating with off-the-face lines in their creations.

Clang, clang! The fire engines are off! Whose home is in danger? What lives are at stake? And with every alarm comes the personal question: How quickly can I summon aid in case of fire? • Only a telephone in your home can give you the assurance of immediate help. Even if the emergency never arises, the telephone gives you peace of mind.

Any fire chief will tell you: "You NEED a telephone in your home!" You can have one for less than 10 cents a day and one call may save its cost for a life-time.

THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY OF PENNSYLVANIA

Through the Spyglass
Viewing the New

The call of the shops sounded in our ears and a-shopping we went . . . with the following results! And are we proud of our well-filled notebook today! And do we expect to hear our 'phone ringing itself almost off the hook! Call Grant 6500 and ask for Spyglass to get the names of the shops . . . or send a stamped self-addressed envelope.

Ring out the chimes . . . or lacking chimes, use your alarm clock. Because this bit of news warrants something of the kind if anything does!

One of the town's well-known fur shops is closing out ALL THEIR FUR JACKETS for $17.50. Strike us pink, blue, and plaid but we were agog over this! For, you see, we know these coats like our own . . . and we know they're bargains at this price . . . being as how they always sold for $35 to $59 before! Northern Seal, Broadtail, Muskrat, Lapin and Kidskins are included . . . in varied styles and sizes. Make way for the fur-buy of the season!

Now here's the kind of a girl we are! We had a little conclave with a friend of ours (very, very secret, you know!) and she has agreed to do this for us . . . and you!

She is taking her handmade slips, which are selling for all sorts of higher prices, and is marking them $2.95 FOR THOSE OF YOU WHO READ ABOUT THEM HERE AND ASK FOR THEM IN THIS WAY. No one else will have an opportunity to have them . . . they won't be advertised . . . and you'll get the values of your life by going after them!

Of course, they're all pure silk . . . all hand-made . . . some with lace . . . some with applique or scalloped bottoms . . . in tearose, flesh and white . . . and sizes 32 to 42. You see . . . we like to play Lady Bountiful, too, and have your interests at heart chee-ildren!

Just an old smoothie, this hand lotion! None of that stuck-fast-to-your-gloves feeling after using it . . . and who doesn't need it after washing her hands these days! Soap and water are all very well for cleansing (oh yes, we go for them in a big way) . . . but no swain ever went into ecstasies over chapped rough hands.

So haste away to the shop which sells this particular lotion at $1 the large bottle. TWO DROPS DO TWO HANDS . . . and what more could you want! (Made by a famous specialist that Hollywood raves about.)

We were in such a hurry to get this news to you that our shoelaces came untied . . . our hat askew . . . and still we panted right on our way until we were sure this was started off to you.

BECAUSE . . . who ever heard of Shirred Kid shoes? They've arrived in town . . . with twin sisters, 3-eyelet ties. In black and brown . . . and all sizes . . . and all widths. BUT . . .

The story behind them is eye-opening. For it takes three feet of finest, softest kid to shirr into enough leather for ONE shoe! (after hearing which, we would believe almost anything of shoes!) And each shoe takes 300 yards of thread to stitch! AND one workman can make but two pairs of shoes a day (because they're shirred by hand). After which amazing statments . . we merely purr quietly, that in spite of all this, one shop has these phenomenal trippers for $5.95 (the only others we've ever heard about were $10 and $14). Sooooo! . . . now do you know what to do?

Now "cheeks like rosy apples" reads very well in books . . . but how's a girl to keep hers all properly plumped and pinked up with the grime and grind of every day!

Answer . . . by using the new little massage gadget we know about. It's blue rubber . . . with little suction-like prongs on the bottom, and is used to pat, and spat, and massage the tissue cream into your skin before hopping into bed, come bedtime! The idea being, that this way is THE way to keep circulation circulating as per normal . . . and hence nice, firm, pink cheeks, no lines! 35c.

Century Club Hears N. Y. Critic

MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Rarely has the Twentieth Century Club had a speaker who kept his audience in such gales of laughter as John Mason Brown, New York dramatic critic, did yesterday. His humor, his observations, even (or especially) those which he left unfinished, as well as the actual content of his talk on New York plays made a most delightful hour.

Since Pittsburgh has so many premieres, New York has become "the road," Mr. Brown said, adding that he doubted if "you will be telling your grandchildren of any plays on Broadway today." Although there is very little of distinction, these plays are full of entertainment, he said.

While local politicians have been making mudpies, while America has been accustoming itself to Mae West, while the dollar has been taking frequent dips in the Gulf Stream, and the government has suddenly become aware of Soviet Russia, the theater has survived quite logically as a place of entertainment, he observed. No matter what has happened to the dollar elsewhere, its purchasing power has risen at the box office.

He talked of the "old temptations" in the theater—such as the actor's vanity and said that an actor is really a child who should be suppressed or regulated or controlled. He cited Alla Nazimova's and Mrs. Patrick Campbell's work in recent plays as examples. Fay Bainter tasted of "the apple in the actor's garden" when she appeared in "Move On, Sister."

Those who care passionately for the theater hope that some "dynasties" will be continued, Mr. Brown remarked and in this connection spoke of Cornelia Otis Skinner, who will be at the Nixon the latter half of this week. Of Ethel Barrymore Colt's performance in "Under Glass" he said it proved she was more Colt than Barrymore.

Eugene O'Neill is the only person in the theater who has made the theater do what he wanted it to, Mr. Brown said in his discussion of "Ah Wilderness." He liked the play, he said, because it had in it a new tenderness, but the most astonishing thing about it was not the play itself but that it was O'Neill's writing.

"Sailor, Beware," which does for the Navy what was done for the Marines in "What Price Glory;" "Her Master's Voice," by Claire Kummer, who "writes her best when she is writing about nothing at all;" "The Pursuit of Happiness," which is about the old New England custom of "bundling," and several others were discussed by the speaker.

Birth Control Discussed by Colloquium

Some of the founders of Colloquium would have raised their hands in horrow could they have foreseen that the club would hear a discussion of "Family Limitation," Mrs. Robert O. Fulton said prefacing her talk on that subject at yesterday's meeting.

The objectives and difficulties of the Birth Control League were outlined by Mrs. Fulton. She also told a little concerning Margaret Sanger, the outstanding exponent of birth control and stressed the need of legally disseminated knowledge for underprivileged families in order that a well-born, stronger, more intelligent race may be bred.

In her paper on "The Home of Yesterday and Today," Mrs. A. A. Read humorously sketched the changes. The "main demolisher" of the old-fashioned home is the automobile, Mrs. Read said, but added that the automobile has taken the family with it wherever it has gone.

Another contribution to the general theme of "America Looks at a Changing World," was Mrs. James F. Ewing's paper on "Revolution in Morals and Manners." She mentioned particularly the broken Seventh Commandment presented as it is with allure and condanation in both movies and novels.

The Sun-Telegraph Christmas
DOLL LADY
Is in Pittsburgh Again!
This Year She Brings Gorgeous
"HONEY-SUCKLE"

"Honeysuckle" is 18 inches tall just the right size the average little girl would like to cuddle up to. The word beautiful doesn't really describe her. She's more than beautiful—she's GORGEOUS.

"Honeysuckle" has flexible rubber arms and hands and rubber legs that can be washed just the same as you would wash your baby brother's or sister's. And WHAT A SMILE And behind that smile are the most lovable, most roguish eyes you ever looked into. They open and close and she rolls them from side to side like a real flirt. By pressing her legs or by moving her body forward or back, she says "Ma-ma" in the sweetest voice you ever heard She's dressed like a little queen in dainty organdy and lace with bonnet and shoes to match.

Oh, we forget to mention her cute dimples, and just as this was written "Honeysuckle" looked up and seemed to say, "Yes; you forgot to tell them about my rubber panties."

"Honeysuckle" is really the DOLL OF ALL DOLLS, and she is going to be so easy to get for Christmas. Shall I save a "Honeysuckle" for you?"

SPORT COMMENT

By James J. Long

Huskers Boast Star Trio. Work Impresses Hirshberg. Wide-Open Game Likely.

THREE PLAYERS TEAMMATES EIGHT YEARS

When Coach Dana Bible brings his Nebraska gridders to the Stadium this week, with their third straight Big Six championship and their fifth since the Conference was organized half a dozen years ago, football fans of the district will get a glimpse of a trio of collegiate gridiron stars who have been playing together for eight years, which is most unusual in the pigskin sport. George Sauer, 190-pound fullback; Bernie Masterson, 185-pound quarterback, and Bruce Kilbourne, 180-pound end, the three luminaries of the Cornhusker attack and defense, have been teammates for eight seasons, starting in as freshmen at Lincoln High School and continuing on through high school and college together.

Dana Bible

Sauer does much of the ball-carrying for the Huskers, most of the passing, and all of the kicking, being particularly good in the last mentioned department as a quick kicker. Eddie Hirshberg, who scouted Nebraska for Pitt, rates Masterson as the best blocker he ever saw—and Hirshberg has been knocked down by such artists as Arnie Pinckert and Marty Brill. Masterson is a fine passer and defensive back. He intercepted four of Warren Heller's heaves in 1932. And as for Kilbourne, Hirshberg says he has seen no better end during all the time he has been following collegiate football.

SMOOTH WORKERS AT HANDLING PASSES

Sauer, Masterson and Kilbourne are not only individual stars, but work together in machine-like fashion. In Bible's system of forward passes followed by laterals, and laterals followed by forwards, each member of the trio has the knack of knowing, apparently without looking, just where the others are going to be.

On a forward pass from Sauer to Masterson, for instance, Kilbourne will come tearing along out of nowhere, to take a lateral for a continued gain. Pitt probably will be up against wide-open football on Saturday, the sort that wears out the sets of secondary defense men.

BRIEF BITS FROM VARIOUS GRID SOURCES

Fourteen members of the Tulane squad are relatives of former Green Wave gridmen. Capt. Floyd Roberts is a brother of Tulane's 1926 captain, the only instance of brother captains in the school's history.

One college player who has to wear a headgear is Leroy Morehead, Georgia's 205-pound lineman, and rated the best guard in the South. He is bald at 20.

Brothers and cousins on college elevens are outdone. University of Arkansas takes the prize with an uncle and [illegible]. The [illegible] w, Paul Rucker, is a reg[illegible] Al Harris, is a reserve quarterback.

BILLY HADDOCK MAY BE NAMED A. A. U. HEAD

Questions about which center two of the warmest present-day squabbles in American sports circles are coming up for some red hot fanning bees at the forthcoming annual convention of the National Amateur Athletic Union here.

One of the first things the delegates are likely to do after arriving Sunday for the three-day meeting will be to line up on opposite sides in a bitter duel of yardsticks and metric tapes.

A strong contingent is opposed to retention of the metric system of measurement which went into effect track meets this year. They are demanding a return to the old yardage plan.

Still another delegation is reported planning a vigorous fight to put American athletic chieftains on the side of those who want to take the 1936 Olympic games away from Germany.

While these battles are going on there also will be the job of electing a new president, Avery Brundage, of Chicago, the present head, announcing that he wants to step down after a four-year term. William S. Haddock, president of the Allegheny Mountain Association, is prominently mentioned as a candidate.

Simmons Denies Requesting Shift Of Home Plate

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Al Simmons is all "burnt up" over reports that he requested the White Sox management to move home plate out 14 feet toward center field so he could get more home runs.

The distance of the fences at Comiskey Park, home of the White Sox, never bothered him, he insists. It was the breezes that swept off Lake Michigan into the park, giving outfielders plenty of time to camp under his drives.

Owner Lou Comiskey, in announcing plans to move the home out 14 feet, said it was a move to help Simmons make some of his long drives homers instead of flies.

Horse Doping Cleanup Made by U. S. Agents

Universal Service.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 13.—Another smashing blow at the practice of doping race horses with narcotics was believed today to have been dealt by the arrest of 12 men in Covington, Ky., by federal agents.

The arrests, when they were made last Saturday, following the close of the fall race meeting at Latonia, were described as "unimportant and routine," the agents declaring that most of the prisoners were petty dope peddlers.

But today it was disclosed that the arrests, in the belief of authorities, have the same importance as those made previously at tracks in Chicago and elsewhere.

The narcotic agents assert that Charles Mullins, of Covington, was the head of the alleged racket here and that Ernest M. Miller, of Akron, was the distributor of the dope for Mullins.

HEAVY BONDS SET

Others rounded up by agents were exercise boys and stable grooms at the Latonia track. Several of them admitted, according to the officers, that on occasions they drugged horses. Members of the alleged ring were accused of selling narcotics to trainers.

Bonds ranging from $7,500 to $10,000 were set for nine of the men accused of narcotic law violations when they were arraigned at Covington before Edward W. Phlueger, United States Commissioner.

The three others were held on the charge of vagrancy. The nine were charged with purchasing, selling, possessing and transporting narcotics.

MOVES ARE WATCHED

George Thomas, 34, of Covington, was not arraigned with the others. Joseph McBride, 45, Cleveland; Dan O'Brien, 39, St. Louis, and James Wilson, alias Nuby, 62, Negro, Gallipolis, O., were held by the city on vagrancy charges.

Agents charge that the exercise boys and grooms would meet the ring-leader at Covington each evening, usually at different locations, to purchase heroin. This drug is easily administered by a person drugging a horse. The tongue of the horse is rubbed dry. The heroin is spread on the tongue from 45 minutes to an hour before the race.

Every move of the conspirators was watched, according to the agents. Finally, time for the roundup came, and the agents swooped down on the peddlers and race track followers. More than $1,000 worth of heroin, the bootleg price of which is $1 a grain, was confiscated.

CHAPMAN, ELEY K. O. VICTORS

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Nov. 14.—Fast action marked the initial night's program of the trials for Fayette, Westmoreland, Somerset, Washington and Greene counties entries in the Western Pennsylvania amateur boxing tournament, held in Gallatin Gardens here last night. The trials will be completed tonight.

One boxer, John Chapman, 160-pounder from the Pleasant Valley A. C., of New Salem, advanced to the finals by scoring two victories. First he knocked out Jiggs Merman and then stopped George Vensick, both in one round.

Heavyweight class—Pete Landini defeated Jack Thomas.

PRIMO TO RETURN

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—(INS.)—Primo Carnera, heavyweight champion, will return to the country about January 15, Billy Duffy, one of his American board of managers, announced today. Duffy is trying to have Madison Square Garden arrange a winter bout for Primo in Miami. The Garden may try to bill Jack Sharkey with Primo in a return engagement.

LANDIS SEES REVIVAL FOR BASEBALL

GALVESTON, Tex., Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Kenesaw Mountain Landis, commissioner of baseball, believes there is nothing wrong with the game except "depression."

Landis is here for the annual convention of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues and was met by W. G. Bramham, of Durham, N. C., president, and members of the executive committee of the association. They all echoed his belief that baseball's troubles would end as soon as the ills of business and industry are remedied. Landis said:

"A man can't go to a baseball game when he doesn't have any money. He can't have any money as long as he doesn't have a job."

The league president cited instances of capacity crowds turning out to games last season when the gates were thrown open without charge or admission prices were reduced to a nominal figure on special occasions. Landis continued:

"That shows that the American people still love the great game of baseball. Many of them now are peering over the fence or through it, and they will return as a paid customer as soon as they have any money."

"Golf is in the same boat with us. Memberships in fashionable clubs which once cost $5,000 now are down to $250.

"One sport isn't hurt by an increase in popularity of another sport. We like to see other games prosper. When a man takes a liking to one sport, it usually enhances his liking for all of them."

Montreal to Bid For Major Franchise

MONTREAL, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—The Montreal club will bid for a franchise in the major leagues at the annual baseball meetings in New York next month, according to Hector Racine, president of the local organization.

Racine, with Charles Trudeau, vice president, will attend the December meetings, ready to bid should any of the present major league franchises be placed on the market.

One Trojan Fired, Pair Demoted By Jones

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Johnny Dye, second string center of the University of Southern California varsity football squad, was asked to turn in his suit for breaking training rules and two other players were set down to the third eleven from the first team.

Those demoted were Gordon Clark, blocking halfback, and Homer Griffith, quarter and fullback. Coach Jones said:

"We were outplayed, outfought and outconditioned by Stanford. There must be some reason for this, particularly the latter, and I think I know why this was. I have accordingly made the changes which are likely to stick for a long time to come.

"We have some mighty hard games left and there is next year to think about. There are at least half a dozen young players who have been itching for a chance to play regularly and I think they deserve to be given an opportunity, particularly as some of those upon whom we have been relying have not been doing their level best."

PAIR OF W.-J. STARS LOST

WASHINGTON, Pa., Nov. 14.—With a stiff schedule still ahead, Washington and Jefferson's battered gridiron team met another setback with the announcement by Coach Hank Day that the varsity will have to hobble along for the remainder of the season without the services of Jap Reed and Bill King, stellar line and backfield men respectively.

Reed sustained a fractured wrist against George Washington University last Friday night, and has been advised to remain out of play the rest of the season.

King, who has seen little service since the beginning of the season, again was disabled in the George Washington tilt when he suffered a reoccurance of the knee injury which has kept him idle many weeks.

Fight Results

At Chicago—Tony Canzela defeated Baxter Calmes, 10 rounds; Solly Dukelsky and Pee Wee Jarrell drew, 8 rounds.

At Terre Haute, Ind.—Leo (Tiger) Flowers defeated Tiger Roy Williams, 10 rounds. Jimmy McFarland defeated Mickey O'Shea 10 rounds.

At Paris—Midget Wolgast and Valentin Angelman drew, 10 rounds.

At Newark, N. J.—Harry Jacobs defeated Johnny O'Keefe, 10 rounds; Joe Campbell defeated Jimmy Phillips, 10 rounds; Sam Bartillo knocked out Joe Tantarano, 3 rounds; Fred Buster defeated Manny Tillman, 4 rounds; Kid Sacco and Babe Dempsey drew, 4 rounds.

GLADSTONE WINS

The Gladstone Junior High School soccer team won the Section 1 championship yesterday, defeating Westinghouse 3 to 0, at Washington Field.

SAUER RANKED WITH BEST IN GAME

By JESS CARVER

The attention of all and sundry football fans respectfully is called to the forthcoming appearance here of one George (Poison) Sauer, of the University of Nebraska football team, who will do a bit of fullbacking here in the Pitt Stadium come Sat'day afternoon.

There have been better fullbacks than Sauer in the past, and there probably will be better ones in the future, but right now, the large young Husker can go for anybody's money. He's big and he's fast, he can kick, pass and receive passes and he's had enough experience to back up mechanical abilities.

FULLBACK DUEL SEEN

In fact, Saturday's game figures to be a duel between a pair of fine fullbacks. Pitt's Mister Weinstock is no slouch; as a ball toter he's as valuable as Sauer. While Pitt is worrying over the coming of Poison George, you can take it that the Huskers are giving Weinstock some little thought.

Nebraska, incidentally, will have to risk its unbeaten and untied record against the Panthers minus the services of one of the star members of the caste. Lee Penney, varsity right end, chipped a bone in his right shoulder in the game with Kansas last Saturday and is through for the season.

Penney and Ely, who, thank goodness, now is numbered with the Cornhusker alumni, were the babies who stood the Panthers on their ears at Lincoln a year ago.

Although Nebraska comes East with a perfect record and its third successive Big Six championship safely stowed away, the Cornhuskers probably will be conceded no better than an even chance against Pitt. There will be two reasons for that: First, some doubt as to the quality of the opposition through which the Cornhuskers have paraded so far; second, the fact that Nebraska teams have had little luck against Pitt since the schools put their football relations on an annual basis in 1927.

PITT HAS EDGE

Nebraska, in fact, hasn't won a game from the Panthers in that time although the games of 1928-30-32 ended in scoreless ties. Pitt won 21-13 in 1927, 12-7 in 1929, and 40-0 in 1931. This is another odd year and precedent calls for a Panther victory.

Nebraska can take considerable cheer out of the fact, however, that this has been a poor year for precedents. Precedents this fall have been treated like poor relations, if not worse.

Mike Sebastian, injured in the games with the Dukes, was able to work out with the Panthers yesterday, although he must be classed as a doubtful starter against the Huskers. It was feared at first that Mike had crushed a couple ribs, but now it developes that he merely was badly bruised.

One shift may be made in the Pitt starting lineup with Bob Timmons replacing Harvey Rooker at left end. Rooker's play against Duquesne was just so-so, and

SEVEN-DAY ICE SKATING RACE CARDED HERE

EVENT OPENS AT GARDEN SATURDAY

Announcement was made today of plans for a world championship seven-day ice-skating marathon race to be held in Duquesne Garden beginning next Saturday night.

The event will be staged by Bobby McLean, veteran of the steel blades, who has competed in similar contests in Syracuse and Providence during the past year.

At least 12 teams of two men each will compete on a 24-hour basis. They will race alternately for three-hour periods, and points will be awarded for sprints to be held at least three times daily.

RACING CONTINUOUS

The race will get under way at 11:15 p. m., Saturday, and continue through the following Saturday at 9:30. The contestants will continue their rounds of the track during the regular skating sessions and the marathon will be presented at no increase in prices, it was said by John P. Harris, in charge of the Garden.

During the week, special skating shows will be presented by the teams of McLean and Bobby Hearn and by Everett McGowan and Grace.

LIKE BIKE MARATHON

The record for a six-day skating marathon, set at Syracuse, is 1,296 miles. The competition is conducted along the lines of a six-day bicycle race.

Following is a tentative list of entrants:

Harry Olzarski, Leonard Cleveland and Ray Strodel, Syracuse; Paul Bodreau, Montreal; Bobby Hearn, Bobby Lamb and Bill Tooke, New York; Tony Barnard and Walter Thorn, Boston; Charles Delphier, Detroit; Everett McGowan, St. Paul; Ed Kelly, San Bernardino, Cal.; Bill Minster, Chicago; John Tobias and Ford Hatfield, Windsor, and three skaters to come from Duluth.

Here's a Scoring Record, But With Reverse English

GRENOLA, Kas., Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Grenola High School has another point-a-minute football team this year, but it doesn't arouse any joy among its followers because the opposition has scored all the points.

Last year Grenola lost all six games, scoring six points to 340 for the opposition, or an average of 1.18 points for each of the 288 minutes played.

This year, by losing to Elk City, 0-102, Grenola has kept up its reputation. In four league games, Grenola has been blanked while the foe was making 199 points.

Pirates Release Three Players

Leo Raskowski's tenure as a member of the Pittsburgh Pirates' professional football team was short lived, to say the least. Signed last week, Raskowski took part in Sunday's debacle with the Brooklyn Dodgers when the Pirates were beaten, 32 to 0, and yesterday, along with two other players, the former O. S. U. star was released.

The others to be dropped are Franklin Hood, former Pitt fullback, and Edgar Westfall, a halfback.

IRISH HORSES, RIDERS LEAD IN SHOW

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Honors, as indicated by blue ribbons, were well divided as the National Horse Show went into its final session today with the Irish Free State favorite to dethrone the United States Army in the international military team championship.

Setting the pace among the civilians were Mrs. Locke Brown, New Orleans sportswoman; Alfred B. Maclay, owner of the Killearn of Mill Brook, N. Y., and Col. W. H. Henderson, of Eatontown, N. J. Each had won six first place ribbons. Henderson capturing five of his blues with a pair of three-gaited saddle horses—Mountain Echo and Mountain Pippin.

A. B. Dick, Jr.'s Dicksfield Farm, of Gurnee, Ill., had accounted for five victories, while Frances M. Dodge, of Rochester, Mich., had hung four blues in her tack room in the basement of Madison Square Garden. In the three-victory group were William Brewster's Moreland Stable, Durham, Conn.; Mrs. George A. Anderson, Glen Head, N. Y.; Mrs. Bernard F. Gimbel, New York City, and Claire W. Faitoute, Short Hills, N. J.

The Irish rode in the favorite's position for the team championship last night when Capt. Frederick A. Aherne, astride Gallow Glass, won the individual title following a brilliant exhibition of horsemanship saw eight of the 15 competing officers from five nations give perfect performances. Four of them turned in faultless exhibitions in the jump-off, but the Capt. Aherne-Gallow Glass combination made the fastest

SPORT VIGNETTES

They can't hurt us, can they, Howard? . . . (We're talking fight language to Howard Mayberry, the former boxer, who is recovering from a broken leg received when he was struck by an automobile while crossing a street during an Armistice Day celebration in Monongahela, Saturday. He was reported dead, but got a laugh out of that "gross exaggeration" when he was called upon to verify it from his hospital cot . . . No, they can't hurt us; we're tough, just like your uncle, the East Liberty Howard Mayberry . . . Bet many a time your manager or second told you to go out there and punch it out with the other guy, hissing in your ear, "Go on—he can't hurt us—we're tough" . . . I sort of thought when the reports first came in that a little thing like an auto accident couldn't take you.

H. Mayberry

Reports of the accident said Howard Mayberry was 42 years old . . . He is only 30 . . . He quit fighting just about three years ago, and right up to the end he was more than a match for the young fellows around here . . . A veteran of more than a decade in the ring, he was recognized at one time as the Canadian bantamweight champion . . . He was plenty smart as a ringster, a good boxer and a chap who fought as much with his head as with his hands . . . And don't let anyone tell you he wasn't a gamester . . . He'd switch from boxing to slugging any time, and he wouldn't be the first to quit, either.

Mayberry started out around here and then moved to Duluth and then on up into Canada, so that he did only his first and last fighting in the Pittsburgh sector . . . We didn't see him in his best days, and yet he was plenty good enough right down to the finish . . . And to think anyone would fall for such a story as one that he had been killed in an automobile accident . . . He always was too shifty for anything like that to happen to him . . . A broken leg and a few scratches, just because he forgot to duck, that's something else again, but killed by a mere auto—shucks! Don't be ridiculous . . . Because they can't hurt us, can they, Howard? . . . And how's your uncle coming along out in East Liberty?

Bill Renner, the Michigan back, is a former Willows Pool swimmer and a brother of Bob Renner and son of E. A. Renner, the Youngstown brewer, who gained fame as a star billiard player . . . The Renner boys were two of the best speed swimmers ever developed in these parts . . . Bill, the footballer, defeated Bill Wright, local champion, in a 60-yard open free style race back in 1928 that is still remembered by followers of local aquatics . . . E. L. Blystone (Bly the Rice Writer), of Ardara, Pa., is back home from the World Fair in Chicago, where he was part of Ripley's Believe It Or Not show, just closed.

Jere Hayes, sports editor of the Dallas (Tex.) Times-Herald, has been a visitor in town for a few days . . . And he hasn't given anyone a single bum steer . . . The only player in the National League the home fans will take in exchange for their beloved Mose Kelsch, of booting fame, is Shipwreck Kelly, of the Dodgers, who is so reckless he'd dive off the Grant Building to make a touchdown . . . How about calling our Mose Shipwreck Kelsch, or Catastrophe Mose, or some other such glamorous name? . . . Dominick Mancini, local boxer, went out to the Stadium on Saturday to root for his former neighbor, Al DeLuca, of the Dukes . . . It was the first big game Dominick had seen and he yelled himself out of two weeks' training.—HARRY KECK.

FORBES FIELD FAVORED FOR TITLE GAME

CITY LEAGUERS HARD AT WORK FOR BATTLE

By JULIUS LEVIN

Forbes Field likely will be the scene of the football battle Friday afternoon between Peabody and South Hills high schools for the championship of the City League.

The suggestion of C. Lawrence Walsh, supervisor of athletics in the City high schools, that the contest be played at Peabody High School Field did not meet with the approval of the South Hills authorities and the game likely will be staged at Forbes Field.

While Peabody, champion of Section I, and South Hills, champion of Section II, are hard at work preparing for the title game, scholastic fans are divided over the probable outcome.

BOTH 'DARK HORSES'

Both Peabody and South Hills were the "dark-horses" in the City League race, the two sectional champions playing their best football when something of importance was at stake.

Peabody was the only school to beat South High in Section I, while South Hills, tied by Perry, 1932 champion, rose to its greatest heights in the important battle with Carrick, favorite to capture the Section II crown.

Whether or not Peabody will have the services of James Willis, captain and star tackle, in the post-season contest remains to be seen. The City League rules stipulate that any boy ejected from a contest for slugging an opponent is ineligible to compete in the subsequent game. Willis was banished from the final game of the regular season for slugging a Schenley player, the result of which leads many to believe he will be kept out of the contest with South Hills.

PEABODY'S FIRST BID

The battle Friday marks the first time in the history of the City League that Peabody has been a participant in the post-season game, while South Hills is making its eighth appearance in the championship fray. Despite its long string of successes in Section II, South Hills has won the City crown only once, defeating Schenley in 1931.

Both teams include in their starting lineups some of the best players in the local scholastic realm. Abner (Abbie) Roberts, brilliant Negro halfback, likely will lead the attack of the East Enders. Roberts has run wild against all opponents this season, and if South Hills stops him, Coach Dick Meyers will rely on Fullback Robinson and Quarterback Forbeck.

In the line, Peabody has three sterling performers in Phil Latterman at end, Sol Sunseri at guard and Jimmy Willis at tackle, that is, if Willis is permitted to play.

GOOD BACKFIELD

South Hills likewise will not be lacking in star performers. Coach Ed Mazeski has one of the smoothest-working backfields in the district in George Fowle and Fred Crissman at halfback, Melvin MacDonald at quarterback, and Bill Devlin at fullback. The latter-named athlete has just been discharged from the hospital after an appendicitis operation, and likely will be on the sidelines.

One of the main reasons for South Hills' fine showing this season has been its line. In Schindler and Maren, Mazeski has two of the best ends in the City League. He has a fine tackle in Blazek and two great guards in Shook and Schwan. Riske at center also has been doing some fine work.

The trophy committee of the W. P. I. A. L. will hold a meeting tonight in the Fort Pitt Hotel to complete plans for the purchases of championship cups for the various football winners.

MICHIGAN SET FOR GOPHERS

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Nov. 14.—(AP.)—The Michigan football squad was given the afternoon off yesterday to nurse bruises acquired in Saturday's battle with Iowa and to rest up for the practice sessions scheduled in preparation for the crucial game with Minnesota here next week-end.

Coach Harry Kipke and other members of the coaching staff said that they believed the Wolverines were near their playing peak. It is expected that they can be brought into top-notch form for Minnesota with a minimum amount of drilling this week.

Names in News

In an interview in the Pennsylvanian, undergraduate newspaper at Penn, POP WARNER, Temple coach, said today the Quakers were at a decided disadvantage under the Gates Plan, and that it was unfair to impose it upon the Penn football team unless all schools adopted the same system.

BEN CHAPMAN, New York Yankee outfielder, and his wife have settled their marital differences and are motoring to California on a second honeymoon.

HIDEO NISHIMURA and JIRO FUJIKURA, university students, today won their way into the final round of the Japanese national tennis championships after putting out Jap Davis Cup stars.

JOHNNY DOEG, tennis star, born in Mexico of British parents yesterday in Federal Court was made a citizen of the United States.

SAM BYRD, New York Yankee outfielder, today made his debut as a professional golfer as he teamed with BILLY BURKE in a best ball pair championship, tourney at Pinehurst, N. C.

BABE HERE TONIGHT

Babe Ruth and his wife and daughter will pass through Pittsburgh tonight en route to their home in New York from a trip to the Hawaiian Islands. They are due to arrive at the Pennsylvania Station from Chicago at 9:55 o'clock and depart at 10:15.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: CAN A CAN CATCH COLD?—Tin is subject to the so-called tin disease. When exposed to a moderately low temperature, tin transforms itself into a modification known as gray tin, which is extremely brittle and useless. The purer the tin the more likely it is to catch cold and decay. By mixing or alloying it with other metals, it may be strengthened against the tin disease.

BRICKLEY CARRIES ON DROPKICK REVIVAL

Following the recent news from the East that a son of Charley Brickley was starring as a dropkicker for a New York high school football team, it develops that the former Harvard luminary did not stop at imparting some of his kicking artistry to his own offspring. Bent on a general revival of the dropkick as a weapon of gridiron offense, the senior Brickley has been teaching the art at a clinic for schoolboys in Scarsdale, N. Y., conducted by Leroy N. Mills. A dropkicking tournament is in progress, with the finals scheduled for Sunday, December 3, between halves of the pro game in New York between the Giants and the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Charley Brickley

It was the action of the pro league in moving in the posts to the goal line this season that gave Brickley the idea of a dropkicking revival. He thinks the colleges also will restore the goal posts to their former location eventually, and that the field goal will have a big comeback. At dropkicking, Brickley was the national standout of his time. In one season he succeeded in 34 out of 37 attempts at field goals. He kicked five in a single game against Yale in 1913, the distances ranging from 20 to 38 yards.

ROY SCHOOLEY LONG SPORTS LEADER HERE

One of Pittsburgh's most prominent sports figures since the turn of the century has passed on in the death of Roy D. Schooley. After coming to this city from Welland, Ont., in 1901, as a hockey referee, Schooley gradually extended the scope of his operations until, aside from his political activities, he became a leading influence in local boxing and in international hockey. He was one of the promoters in the Northern Club, holding Saturday night shows at Old City Hall in Market street, which reopened boxing here with a bout between Harry Lewis and Unk Russell on October 1, 1908, as a Sesqui-Centennial feature, a start that has kept the game going locally ever since.

Later, with Jimmy Dime and others, he ran boxing shows at Duquesne Garden, presenting some of the most famous fighters in the world, including Jack Johnson, Stanley Ketchel, Billy Papke, Philadelphia Jack O'Brien, Ad Wolgast, Willie Ritchie and many others. It was in the shows at Old City Hall that Jack Dillon, of Indianapolis, had his early development, and it was under Schooley's management that he advanced to the front ranks.

Hockey was Schooley's favorite sport, and the growth of the ice game, not only in Pittsburgh, but throughout the United States was due largely to his efforts. From referee, to coach, to manager, to club owner, he became one of the most powerful hockey figures on either side of the border. He served as secretary and treasurer of the U. S. A. H. A., and his activities, in association with W. S. Haddock, started the spread of the sport in the United States.

Schooley's Yellow Jackets won Pittsburgh's first national amateur championship in the 1923-24 season, repeating in the 1924-25 campaign to become the only club ever to win the amateur honors twice in succession. Schooley also promoted the first professional teams here until the season of 1929-30. Many of the players who rose to rank among the most prominent in the ice sport received their start and development under the late Pittsburgher.

DAVIES ALL SET FOR BIG FLOOR SEASON

Where Elmer Layden leaves off in football at the close of the season, your old friend, Chick Davies, will start right in to carry on in basketball for Duquesne University, and there is every prospect that under Chick's able coaching the Dukes will continue to rank as one of the greatest teams in the collegiate ranks, keeping up on the hardwood courts the brilliant showing the school has made on the gridiron.

Chick Davies

Any aggregation that Davies coaches is a name team in basketball. He has climaxed a long run of success by twice winning the city major championship with his Bluff quintets. Inasmuch as Chick never fails to do a great job, even with ordinary or inexperienced material, you can judge the big things he is likely to accomplish during the coming campaign from the fact that he has a full team left over from last season. To start with, Duquesne has such a wealth of talent as MacDougall, Brenner, Moore, Birch, Rieder and Feldman, without counting the new timber in the sophomore class. As all of those named except Birch will be playing their final college year, it means practically a team of seniors, and it is doubtful if any college ever began a season with a finer array of experienced men. There is woe ahead for many opponents in Duquesne's 21-game schedule.

New Hampshire U. Wins Harrier Title

BOSTON, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—The University of New Hampshire cross-country team won its fourth consecutive New England intercollegiate championship by holding its score down to 38 points yesterday in the five-mile competition with nine sectional rivals at Franklin Park. Maine placed second with 54 points, Rhode Island State was third with 110, Bowdoin fourth with 114 and Connecticue State fifth with 126.

Between Rounds

An amateur boxing show will be held in the Arena on the North Side tomorrow night for an iron worker who has lost a leg in an accident and has a family to support. Eddie Katkish boxes in the main bout. An amateur show also is listed for Lithuanian Hall, McKees Rocks, tonight.

Bep Van Klaveren, who was to box Harry Dublinsky in a show at the Arena last Friday night, meets Stanislaus Loayza in a 10-round bout in New York Thursday night.

Ted Yarosz' manager, Ray Fonlis, has just mailed out all over the country an elaborate broadside, telling the rockeyed world that Teddy is a great fighter and so on and so on and so on. Which is the truth.

Phils Get Slugger From Coast League

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—The Phillies, of the National League, have announced a trade with the Portland (Ore.) club which brings Outfielder Henry K. (Prince) Oana, who led the Pacific Coast League in extra-base hits last season, to the Phils in exchange for three players and cash.

Frank Ragland, a pitcher, and Jimmy McLeod, infielder, both obtained from the Albany (N. Y.) International League club last year, are two of the players going to Portland.

Hunt Meet Carded At Baltimore Today

GRIDDER INJURED

John Carmen, Twenty-third Ward Republican Club fullback, will be lost to his team for the remainder of the season, having suffered a broken leg in the game Sunday with the Glendale eleven.

COLLEGE GRID SCORING HITS NEW 'LOW'

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—College football scoring, on the basis of performances thus far this season by teams representative of the country, has set a new low record, thereby adding weight today to the arguments of coaches that defense has gained the upper hand and, in effect, pretty well throttled the offense.

Despite the fact that most of the high scoring "breather" games are over, and only tight, low point battles lie ahead, average scores of 164 teams have dropped to 12.09 points a game. Over the entire season of 1932, 159 elevens averaged 12.83 points per game, a mark that was 1.17 points under the lowest previous average in the 11 years the Associated Press has kept such records.

The downward trend is all the more interesting in view of last winter's major rule change, specifically devised to aid the offense and eliminating the necessity for wasting a down to carry the ball outside after it had lodged close to the sidelines. Under this season's code the ball automatically comes in 10 yards whenever it is downed closer than that distance to the boundary.

Inasmuch as the major elevens, with stubborn late November and early December games still ahead, scarcely can hope to average two touchdowns per Saturday, there seems every likelihood of a further drop in the averages over the full season, and a corresponding increase in agitation this winter for more rule changes.

CHAPMAN, WIFE KISS, MAKE UP

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Two days before a decision was to have been handed down in a separate maintainance suit filed against Ben Chapman, New York Yankee outfielder, by his wife, Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Chapman, the couple yesterday effected a reconciliation, Mrs. W. B. Chapman, mother of the ball player said last night.

The couple was reported last night en route to California by automobile on a second honeymoon.

Friends of the couple attempted to effect a reconciliation during the progress of the separate maintenance suit last week after the ball player and his wife testified they still loved each other.

These efforts failed, however, and the hearing of the suit was resumed. Judge William Walker and attorneys in the case said last night they had no knowledge of a reconciliation.

SAUER TO TEST PITT TEAM

FACE HOYAS NEXT

With only Georgetown to play this week, a team which was beaten a year ago 51 to 0, and which rates even lower in the scale this year, Coach Harpster permitted his tired huskies to take the day off. He'll have 'em out this afternoon and preparations will be started for the contest with the Hoyas.

An even dozen varsity candidates reported to Coach Hannum, headed by Capt. Lou Jagnow. Red Silverman, Rigg, Ewalt, Freedel, Edelblut, Gibson, Macalka, Crist, Lenz, Vulkovich and Jacques were the others to report.

Sharon High Wins Over Greenville, 25-7

SHARON, Pa., Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Scoring in every period but the third, Sharon High School's gridiron sons lambasted Greenville, 25 to 7, here yesterday.

Piled up time after time by the stubborn Greenville line, the Sharon team opened an aerial bombardment that dazed the invaders and paved the way or directly accounted for every local touchdown. Greenville banged through the line for its touchdown in the third period.

Chillysauce By Chilly Doyle

An important minor league convention will open tomorrow at Galveston, in Texas, with most of the major league clubs also represented. On the eve of the big powwow, Commissioner Landis bespeaks a bright future for the game. The Judge says the falling off in attendance is due to the lack of jobs and the proportionate lack of the wherewithal on the part of the fans.

The major league magnates could help the situation by scaling down the admission prices. Many a man thinks a dollar should entitle one to the best seat in the park, and the argument carries a lot of weight.

Messrs. Benswanger and Gibson, of the Pirate household, are on the job in Galveston. The Bucco pair is awake to the need of a winning pitcher together with a standout catcher. The best all-around catcher in the league, in this writer's opinion, is Alphonse Lopez, of the Dodgers, with Virgil Davis, of the Phillies, a close second, on account of Spud's thunderous bat. Either of these two might win the flag for the Pirates were they procurable, but the latters appears to be headed toward St. Louis, and you could scarcely get Lopez loose from the Dodgers with a steam shovel.

There is, of course, Leo Hartnett, but Leo is a fixture with the Cubs who have designs on the 1934 flag. Al Spohrer, of the Braves, is another topnotch worker, but just try to pry Al away from Willie McKechnie, of Wilkinsburg. Skipper Bill, by the way, did not go to Galveston; instead he and President Emil Fuchs, of the Boston club, delegated Business Manager Fred Mitchell to the scene of the minor league meeting.

McKechnie has returned from a pleasurable hunting trip spent with Pitcher Fred Frankhouse, of the Braves, who was host to his pilot near his home at Port Royal, near Harrisburg. The two were able to get the bag limit on quail and other game birds.

Speaking of high grade catchers, it is recalled that Earl Grace can hit just about as well as the next when he faces righthand flingers, but Earl is weak against the forkhanders, and then there is the question of his stamina. Earl now resides in Phoenix, where you can get a coat of tan in December, but that doesn't do you a bit of good in Chicago in April when the winds are blowing off Lake Michigan.

Pitt owes a decoration to its ace supporter, George (Yatsi) Pasquarelli, crack newsie at Forbes and Atwood, who is always to be found with a panther on the back on his sweater on the days Pitt plays Notre Dame or the Dukes. A certain Irish copper accused George of treason after informing him that there were onl three Italians on the Pitt team as compared with five in the Duke squad. But Yatsi is for the Panthers win, lose or draw. George would "holler" for Pitt if Mussolini's boys were in the Duke lineup.

Langley High Wins City Harrier Title

Langley High School's cross country team won the city scholastic championship yesterday in the annual race over the Schenley Park course.

Langley had a total score of 53, with Oliver finishing second, with 84. Westinghouse was third, with 91; Allderdice and Schenley tied for fourth, with 114, and Peabody was fifth, with 124; South Hills, sixth, with 145, and Allegheny, last, with 164.

Rizter, of Peabody, won the individual title, being clocked in 15 minutes, 17.1 seconds. Ninety-five of the 99 starters finished.

GREENS BODY PREPARES FOR CONVENTION

By TOM BIRKS

Plans for the forthcoming convention of the National Greenskeepers' Association, scheduled to be held in Pittsburgh next January, were laid yesterday, when tri-state golf course superintendents held a meeting with President William Key, greenskeeper at the Longue Vue Country Club, in charge.

The organization, composed of practically every greenskeeper in the tri-state district, has been holding similar meetings regularly, discussing ways, means and methods of improving country club layouts, and combating elements that destroy greens and fairways.

The coming convention will bring here practically every outstanding authority in the United States and Canada to discuss latest ideas and experiments for perfect greens.

The convention will be held in the William Penn Hotel, and all kinds of implements and equipment will be on display. President Key will be in charge of the convention.

One major golf tournament that will not be played in the Pittsburgh district next season is the Pennsylvania state women's championship affair. It was scheduled in Pittsburgh, at the Oakmont Country Club, in 1932, but the tourney fell through when the eastern contingent of women stars could not get here for the tourney. This season it went to Philadelphia, and the executive body decided that the 1934 championship would be held in the central part of the state, preferably at Hershey, if suitable hotel arrangements can be made.

The Hershey invitation tourney held this season found many complaints from professionals regarding the hotel accommodations.

The County Commissioners have made a bid to bring the national public links tournament to Pittsburgh next year. If successful in obtaining the event, it will be staged at South Park.

KELLY SETS CUE MARK

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Setting a record high run of 125, George Kelly, Philadelphia, defeated Charles Seaback, Astoria, N. Y., here last night in the final scheduled game of the national pocket billiard championship tournament.

Kelly's victory put Seaback and himself in a tie with William Mosconi, Philadelphia, for the first place in the tourney, and necessitates three additional games today.

Taking the Chase Out of Purchase

ADVERTISING benefits the man who buys as well as the man who sells. It is part of the Golden Rule of Business and it works both ways.

Don't miss the advertisements in this newspaper. Many of them are interesting just because of their news and educational value alone.

But more than that: Advertisements take the chase out of purchase and make every penny do its full duty.

This last statement is one particularly to be remembered when common sense economy is not only a national duty, but an individual necessity.

STOCK MARKET PRICES EDGE FORWARD

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—Stocks and grains edged forward today, although they exhibited only mild enthusiasm for another boost in the domestic gold rate and a sharp decline of the dollar in foreign exchange markets.

The RFC lifted the gold price 11 cents an ounce to $33.56, at which figure the dollar had a theoretical value of 61.59 cents. Sterling jumped 14⅜ cents to a new post war high at $5.30⅜, and the French franc spurted .16 of a cent to 6.47 cents. In terms of the franc the dollar was valued at about 60.59 cents. Equities staged a half-hour spurt, then quieted down. Grains were up around a cent a bushel and cotton firmed about $1 a bale. Silver futures were again strong. Federal bonds sagged and other loans were irregular.

Homestake mining shares got up about 23 points on a few sales and gainers of 2 to around 3 included Case, International Harvester, Du Pont, Columbian Carbon, United States Smelting and Allied Chemical. Advances of fractions to around a point were recorded by American Telephone, United Aircraft, Montgomery Ward, General Motors, United States Steel preferred, Bethlehem Steel, Union Pocific, New York Central and Santa Fe. The utilities were rather heavy, Consolidated Gas slipping under 38 to around its low of the year. Standard Oil of New Jersey made a new 1933 high at 45⅛ before easing.

While most board rooms experienced a wave of optimism during the early trading, bullish advice was rather restrained and many operators continued to adhere to a cautious policy in making commitments. There was an apparent disposition to wait for a clarification of the administration's monetary program. The promised statement of Secretary Woodin later this week, it was hoped, will give the financial district a closer view of the gold-buying plan.

Foreign exchange bankers, who have been closely studying the currency problem, especially in its relation to the dollar and sterling, are convinced that the constant advance of the gold price has contributed much to the recent buoyancy of the pound. At the same time, it is pointed out, transfers of capital, both from America and France, have been an important factor in the climbing London rates.

There was much discussion as to just how far the British would permit the pound to go before attempting to put on the brakes. Not so many days ago some bankers were of the opinion that a halt might be called at the $5.25 level. A few observers now, however, envisage a $6 rate if the growing capital flight is not halted.

Renewed interest in the oils was attributed largely to the belief that the industry is now under practical control for the first time in a number of years. Some petroleum analysts feel that earnings of several of the companies will continue to improve as wasteful production is halted and price levels steadied under the recovery codes which bar unfair competition.

FIGHT ON OIL PRICE LOOMS

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—The National Petroleum Board today set November 20 for opening public hearings on the government's proposed price schedules for the oil industry.

Recently the government sought to learn the industry's views and asked for supporting data on which to base its estimates. Price schedules are due to become effective December 1.

Senator L. J. Dickinson (Rep.), of Iowa, today had lined up with consumers and independent retailers in the Mid-West for a fight on the price-fixing schedules proposed by the Planning and Coordination Committee of the industry. Dickinson declared:

"If the proposed price-fixing order on gasoline is permitted to go into effect it will not only saddle high prices on the consumer, but will mean the destruction of every independent gasoline retailer in this country."

Dickinson referred to the schedules which would eliminate price differentials now enjoyed by small independents because of low overhead, and subject them to competition on the same basis as big chain stations.

Daily Oil Output Up 3,812 Barrels

TULSA, Nov. 14.—Daily average production of crude oil in the United States during the week ended November 11 totaled 2,316,994 barrels, an increase of 3,812 barrels daily from the week preceding, according to the Oil and Gas Journal.

OCTOBER LULL IN INDUSTRY CONTINUING

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—We can now make a fairly accurate statement concerning industrial activity and business in the month of October.

Of course, there was a sharp decline in the iron and steel industry, which accurately reflects the trend in heavy industries. Taking the seven years 1921-28 as 100, we find the ingot output last month at 66 per cent against 75 per cent in September. Pig iron production was only 49 per cent against 59 per cent in the preceding month.

Railway freight traffic in October fell a little short of making the usual seasonal gain. I figure it at about 69 per cent of normal, against 70 per cent in September. In October, last year, it was 63 per cent.

WORKERS' INCOME DROPS

We now have factory employment figures for New York State, which usually give us a good idea of the total trend. They show only 69.6 per cent as many employed as in 1925-27.

They were practically unchanged from September, but if we allow for the usual seasonal gain, they indicate a slight setback.

This compares with the very low figure of 59.4 a year ago.

New York state factory payrolls fell considerably and were only 54.1 per cent of 1925-27. This indicates either that employes worked shorter hours or that those working got lower wage rates. Anyhow, laborers had less money to spend than in September.

SALES DROP

Naturally therefore, we find October department store sales lower. The total dollar sales of a large number of stores throughout the country were only 52.2 per cent of the average in 1923-25, against 53.1 per cent in September and 54.5 a year ago.

My P-V line barometer also declined a little further. This barometer reached its peak in June at 111.6. Since then it has declined steadily, though not sharply, to about 103 in October.

What this shows is that demand has not held up with supply. It indicates that last month the pressure to sell still exceeded demand and that, as market equilibrium had not yet been restored, a little further decline in business may be expected.

RECESSION GOES ON

Coming down to date we find that last week the recession in industrial activity continued. Steel production, for example, had fallen a little further to about 24 per cent of theoretical capacity. And automobile production was off quite sharply. Lumber production, too, was lower.

The output of electrical power declined and, like railway car loadings, was only a little greater than a year ago. The car loadings showed just about the usual decline to be expected at this season.

These are the most important and comprehensive measurments of industrial activity, and they clearly show that the physical production of the nation's industries is less than five per cent greater than at this time in 1932.

To Be Awarded to Boys and Girls of School Age for the Best Sets of

HOW TO DO IT

Color this picture with crayon or water color, but do not send it in until the complete series of 12 has been printed. There will be one picture in the Sun-Telegraph every day. No. 3 will appear tomorrow. This is a fine opportunity for all school classes to participate.

Read These Simple Rules

1—Anyone in the Pittsburgh area can enter this contest except professional artists and employees of the Sun-Telegraph and their families.

2—You are to color the drawings as nearly as possible to their natural colors. Use crayon or water colors.

3—The decision of the judges will be final.

4—Neatness and form of presentation will be the basis for judging the entries.

5—It is not necessary to buy a paper to enter this contest. You may trace these drawings from papers on file at the public libraries or at the Sun-Telegraph office.

6—You may enter as many sets of pictures as you wish; the more you enter the better your chance to win.

7—One picture will be published each day starting Monday, November 13.

8—Do not send any drawings to this office until you have a complete set of twelve pictures.

9—Contest starts November 13 and closes midnight Monday, November 27.

The Girl Who Won

By MAY CHRISTIE

CHAPTER XXXI.

The dog Fury gamboled about them, and every now and then would dart off in the woods in search of a rabbit.

To Nollie this spot seemed the loveliest place on earth. She drew a long breath, inhaling the fragrance of pine and balsam.

Heaven had descended on her. Heaven—and Tony O'Brien!

Her confession hadn't been complete at all, for suddenly Tony—sensitive himself and sensing her embarrassment and reluctance to explain her doings in the past few weeks in the big city to which she'd been a stranger—had given a deft twist to the conversation, and there had been no more talk of Nollie's life, but a gay sketch of his own.

He had made her laugh a dozen times in the past hour. Had loved to see her eyes sparkle with merriment.

And that curve of her mouth—alluring—how it drew him. It was all that he could do to keep from taking her in his arms and giving her a long kiss . . .

But too soon yet. Don't frighten her. She had a shyness like some woodland creature. He didn't wish to scare her off.

"It's impertinent of me to want to know everything about you, so now for a change we'll talk about my life."

TONY'S STORY

He had flung that gaily out at her, had amused her with stories about himself.

He wasn't rich at all, though most of his friends seemed well endowed with this world's goods. But Tony had his way to make in the city.

"I'm 26, you know, and it's high time I was going ahead, though the Law is slow when you start, and, of course, I'd a long time studying, and years of apprenticeship."

It wasn't very long since he had started for himself in New York.

He had no near relatives, he said, having been left an orphan many years ago, and having spent his early days in boarding schools and then a military academy.

Thereafter he had been at Harvard, where he had studied law. He was keen about his work, but with so many attorneys in New York and everywhere, these days, getting a practice together was slow.

"But my friends are awfully good to me," he remarked with his engaging grin as they walked along close to each other by the lake side.

Thought Nollie, with a thrill: "Why, everyone in the world must like him—he couldn't have an enemy—"

SATISFIED

As he talked on, she soon discovered that he moved among a set that was not only moneyed, but high up socially.

"But one wearies of the round of so-called gaieties, you know," he explained, "I'm just crazy about this camping holiday."

"You like to get away from things?"

"At times. 'Loaf and invite my soul,' you know—"—he laughed a little shyly—"communing with jolly old Nature gives you a new outlook. Whenever I get the chance I go up in the wilds of Canada on a fishing and hunting trip." He paused. He gave her a warm and shiny look from those gray eyes of his, with their thick tangle of lashes. "This time I haven't got as far along the route as usual—but—I'm satisfied."

She thrilled again to that. He meant herself, of course. She—Nollie Day, a nobody—had been the lodestone.

It was almost unbelievable. He was so attractive, so vividly alive, so handsome.

She said shyly: "We aren't very far from the Canadian border now. And I do think this place is beautiful. I was all tired out when I came up here, but now I feel quite different. It's so—restful."

"So—you were very gay in New York, these weeks?" said the young man suddenly.

But Tony interrupted her.

"Instead of coming up to the house tonight or tomorrow and making a formal call on you and having Mrs. Judson's crowd around, couldn't you meet me down here and we'd take a turn on the lake in the canoe? It's glorious by moonlight."

His hand was under her elbow, piloting her along as though she were a bit of glass or something that the least rough touch would break.

"Tonight? Oh, that's impossible. The crowd, as you call it haven't arrived yet, and I could not leave Mrs. Judson."

Nollie spoke hurriedly and in a nervous tone.

What right had she to have visitors of her own? It wouldn't do at all. In Mrs. Judson's home she couldn't receive him on an equal footing.

AN INTERRUPTION

"Then—I don't want to push myself—but couldn't I drop in this evening?"

"I'd have to speak to Mrs. Judson first," she stammered, "she wanted to have a sort of rest this first week—not see anybody."

"No, she isn't in the least. She's most generous," Nollie hastened to defend her benefactress.

"Well, I think the generosity is on your side for giving up your time to her, Gloria."

And just as Nollie was about to explain the situation, and tell about her supposed secretarial duties and the book she had to transcribe, and everything, Fury made a great commotion over a bird, and, they both ran to the spot, and Nollie insisted that the feathered songster—whom Fury had caught and frightened—be liberated at once.

"The poor little darling! Fury, drop him, you brute!"

"Its little heart is beating like a sledge-hammer. How could Fury do such a thing? Fancy wanting to kill a lovely little thing like this that never injured anybody!"

She let the bird fly off. It fluttered up into the high branches of a tree where it found safety.

And Tony O'Brien, looking at the bright, keen vision that was Nollie, thought: "She's just as sweet as she is lovely."

Synopsis

Nollie Day, stenographer at an exclusive hotel, is befriended by wealthy Mrs. Judson, a widow. Nollie goes to a theater in place of Mrs. Judson, where she meets handsome Tony O'Brien. She reveals her own identity but Tony does not hear her. Next day, Tony telephones and learns Mrs. Judson has gone abroad. Nollie wants to clear her identity, but is unable to get in touch with Tony. Mrs. Judson returns and ask Nollie to become her secretary and visit her ranch. Nollie accompanies Mrs. Judson to a garden party and meets Rhoda Vane. Rhoda seems to dislike Nollie. Nollie and the widow leave for the ranch after inviting Rhoda. Nollie is surprised when she meets Tony near the ranch. Tony is pleased when she tells him she is not Mrs. Judson.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

To be strictly tra-la the lovely dolly must match her finger nail varnish to her lipstick. Such a business this is, keeping up to the rules of beauty Hoyle. There are enchanting and fascinating eye shadows now of silver-blue. Enough metallic shimmer is added to the azure paste to make eyes look dewy. Only for evening, that cosmetic elegance; much too dressy for daytime display. If the complexion is naturally fair, a mauve powder is used with the glinty shadows; if brunette a powder that is a combination of flesh and ochre. That is, if the mirror approves. There can be no firm and fast laws about make-up. Eyes, hair and personality must have the once over before the decision is made.

As hands get rid of summer bronze, lighten the color of the nail polish. That ox-blood tint is too great a contrast for lily-white paws. When liquid veneers are used they are likely to dry the nails slightly, so don't overlook the nightly oiling or dabs of cuticle cream for which talons are ever grateful.

SCENE IN SOUTH CAROLINA LEGISLATURE (After Civil War)

After Lincoln's death (April 15, 1865) Vice President Andrew Johnson became President. Though following Lincoln's policies, he was overridden in everything by a Congress hostile to the South. In March, 1867, the Reconstruction Act was passed, placing the 10 Southern states under five Union generals, displacing the governments established by President Johnson. Negroes were favored, whites intimidated in the South, in rather punitive fashion. For example, the South Carolina Legislature comprised 98 Negroes and 57 whites, only 22 members being able to read and write. One reaction in the South was the spread of a secret order, the Ku Klux Klan, designed to frighten the Negroes into social and political obscurity. The result was an increase in hatred and violence on both sides. (United States History)

ISABELLA IN THE DEATH CELL OF CLAUDIO

In Shakespeare's tragi-comedy, Measure for Measure, the Duke of Vienna invokes capital punishment for immorality, appointing Angelo with another deputy to enforce it. The duke feigns distant travel.

Angelo condemns Claudio to death for his relations with Juliet. Claudio's sister, Isabella, about to enter a nunnery, begs mercy from Angelo. He wants her to pay with her chastity, yet secretly orders the beheading of Claudio. The duke in disguise counsels Isabella to pretend she will comply, then substitutes for Isabella Mariana, the spurned fiancee of Angelo, and for Claudio's head that of a deceased prisoner. The duke returns officially, Angelo confesses, amnesty follows, with marriages of the true mates: Duke-Isabella, Claudio-Juliet, Angelo-Mariana. (English Literature)

SECOND FRENCH REVOLUTION (1830)—BARRICADES IN PARIS

After the Congress of Vienna (1814-1815) Europe was practically under the policies of Prince Clement Metternich, Austrian chancellor, upholding absolutism as "divine right" of rulers, outlawing liberalism as a menace. The misgoverned peoples started to revolt (Spain, Portugal, Naples, etc.), only to be crushed by the troops of the Allies (Austria, France, Russia, Prussia). The fire which finally consumed Metternichism, the second French Revolution, was started early in 1830 in Paris; it had been precipitated by the unconstitutional reign of Charles X. He was dethroned and fled to England. On August 9, 1830, Louis Philippe (citizen king) was proclaimed constitutional ruler of France. (World History)

THE BLACK BIRCH (Betula Lenta)

The Birch family (Betulaceae) comprises six genera with about 75 species, one important being the black birch (above). It has alternate, heart shaped, serrate leaves; staminate flowers remain through winter as aments; pistillate flowers are small, slender, green. Both are on the same tree. Fruit is a strobile with trilobed scales and winged nutlets, the seeds. Range: New Foundland-Florida. It grows on rich soil, dry slopes and rocky ridges. Its wood is heavy, hard, strong; used for furniture (substitute for mahogany and cherry), valuable also for fuel and an oil (substitute for wintergreen). (Illick: Pennsylvania Trees)

Ctenophora ("comb bearing," from the many retractile tentacles or lobes), beautiful, almost transparent marine animals, comprise about 100 species. PORTLAND AND ROMAN CEMENT: MANUFACTURE AND APPLICATION

Cement, a mixture of dicalcium silicate (Ca_2SiO_4), tricalcium silicate (Ca_3Si-O_5), calcium-aluminate [$Ca_3(AlO_3)_2$] and free lime (CaO), is capable of combining with water to form a hard mass. It is used in building operations as mortar (with sand and some lime) and as concrete—with sand and gravel (1:2:4; 1:3:6; 1:4:8). Reinforced concrete is obtained by laying in concrete steel bars.

Portland cement is made in rotary kilns (above) by "burning" pulverized limestone or shale and clay. The material starts to fuse at the hot end (1600° C.) forming lumps (clinker). After cooling, clinker is mixed with 3% gypsum ($CaSO_4 . 2H_2O$) and ground to powder.

Combining with water: $Ca_3(AlO_3)_2 + 6H_2O = 3Ca(OH)_2$ (crystallizing) $+ 2Al(OH)_3$ (filling spaces). The silicates form with water a colloidal jelly ($2CaSiO_3 . 5H_2O$) which hardens by dehydration and keeps the rest of the material together. The added gypsum—acting as negative catalyst—retards the hardening completed after about four weeks or more.

Roman cement (known by the Romans) is made by "burning" of crushed natural cement rock (argillaceous limestone) in kilns and ground to powder. It sets quickly, but its strength is inferior to that of portland cement. (Chemistry)

Four-Five Bid Is No Dice

On the same hand we explain that the article was written 10 days before we knew Ely was to be our host in the moated castle of contract bridge.

Col. Walter Butler, of the Portland Club, London, skids with us in the same direction. The Colonel is the last authority on English bridge. There is no first.

He fills out a new complaint blank in a flowing Spencerian style. The 4-5 bid is too much information for value received.

Let us throw away the outside leaves of the artichoke and get to the engine trouble.

Why do they make playing cards opaque? Why are they constructed that the light will not shine through them?

Why? To withhold information from the opponents. Why does a poker player hug his cards to his bosom like a monkey eating a cocoanut? To keep their value a mystery.

In contract bridge, you tell everything you know and double the penalties. It is a game of information, codes, conventions and profitable gossip.

The information up to the 4-5 bid is plenty. And when that contract is reached it spills everything like a cross-eyed farmer milking a cow.

You have about as much chance against two skilled Culbertson scholars as you would have playing charades with the United States Signal Corps.

Col. Butler has forwarded his decision to the New York Whist Conference. His ruling is already clamped down on every player in Great Britain.

In that game with the Culbertsons we did our best. Our partner was George "Jiggs" McManus.

They beat us 13 up and 52 to play.

A Commendable Action

Mayor Herron Shows Civic Spirit in Inviting Mr. McNair to Attend Budget Sessions

A petty man would scarcely conceal his rancor. But Herron is not a petty man, and so he invites his recent opponent, Mayor-elect W. N. McNair, to sit with him at the budget sessions. It is a magnanimous and commendable action, and one that shows true civic spirit.

We believe that the people sooner or later will be glad to avail themselves again, in some capacity, of Herron's ability, experience and honesty.

The Governor's Message

Most of the Executive's Recommendations to the General Assembly Are Sound.

The chief purpose for which the Legislature was called into special session was to enact laws for the regulation of the sale of liquor, and that subject was accordingly foremost in Gov. Pinchot's message to the lawmakers.

He proposes that wine and spirits shall be sold only through state liquor stores, licensed restaurants and hotels. His object in having the state go into the liquor business is to gain for public uses the profits that otherwise would go into private hands, and by taking away the private profits remove the incentive for efforts to persuade people to drink alcoholics.

These are praiseworthy objectives; but it remains to be seen how the people will receive the revolutionary proposal that the state shall engage in commerce. It must be admitted that the opportunity to derive through this source revenue that otherwise would have to be raised by taxes is tempting. There is no doubt that the people are opposed to new taxes.

Apropos of taxation, the proposal of a graduated income tax devoted exclusively to school purposes, as a substitute for the school tax on real estate, will provide material for a lively debate. It is undeniable that real estate is made to carry too heavy a burden.

He again asks the Senate to confirm his appointments to the Public Service Commission. The Senate owes it to the people, if it does not intend to confirm these appointments, to reject them and let the people know why it does so. To refuse to act one way or the other is inexcusable.

We strongly indorse the Governor's recommendation that public utilities companies be forbidden to raise rates until the Public Service Commission has given permission.

Meritorious, too, is the demand that trucks longer than 33 feet and combination trucks and trailers longer than 45 feet shall be barred from the state highways on Sundays and holidays.

The humanitarian legislation proposed by the Governor is excellent. The Legislature should by all means ratify the Child Labor Amendment to the Federal Constitution.

The Governor's proposals under the heading of "Clean Elections" will strike a sympathetic chord in all honest citizens. The Sun-Telegraph favors permanent registration as a measure to eliminate fraud.

Gov. Pinchot used strong language in denouncing the system under which deputy sheriffs are employed by coal companies in Western Pennsylvania to deal with labor troubles, but his fervor was justified. It is not right that men who are virtually the private employes of the companies should be clothed with official authority as peace officers and allowed to exercise that authority in a partisan and high-handed manner in an industrial dispute. Deputy sheriffs should be paid by the county and be responsible only to the county.

The Governor's appeal to the legislators not to play politics, and his offer to meet them more than half way in a proposal to bury the hatchet and work in harmony for the best interests of all the people of the state, are gratifying.

It was a good message.

Log of the San Bruno

Capt. Grant's Experiences Last Month Read Like a Tale of Long Ago.

In the spacious Elizabethan days, a certain Richard Hakluyt put together a marvelous book of the sea, recounting great adventures.

The purpose of Hakluyt's Voyages was pure propaganda—he wanted England instead of Spain to rule the waves, and his collection of narratives shrewdly served its object of making Englishmen "ocean-minded."

Some of the incidents Hakluyt related have always sounded a bit tall to us. But not now, for we have just read what Capt. George H. Grant had to say of the voyage of the San Bruno from Boston to Central America last month. Note what happened:

Off Turk's Island, two hurricanes approached. The San Bruno avoided both, steering a course between.

"Five days later," the captain continued, "we passed through what seemed the wreckage of an island. The surface of the sea was strewn with trees, boards, grass, tin cans and scraps of clothing."

Then the San Bruno ran into "a sea of snakes."

"They were black," Capt. Grant explained, "with yellow bellies and a black and yellow tip to the tail, but they glowed all phosphorescent in the dawn. Those encountering our bow wave coiled as though to strike at an enemy. Those farther away floated like pieces of wood. They were not eels."

That day one of the crew attempted to commit suicide—and immediately afterward, far from any land, the lookout espied "an abandoned boat, a large native cayuca," floating "on an even keel" and containing only a man's cap and three bunches of sun-scorched bananas.

Curiously, we are told, after all that had been encountered, the empty boat was what awed the seamen most!

On second thought, the yarn reminds us more of Coleridge's "Rhyme of the Ancient Mariner" than it does of Hakluyt—it conforms to Oscar Wilde's dictum that "nature always imitates art."

They Shall Not Want!

Never before in its history, Washington reports, has the American government undertaken so enormous a relief task as the President's humanitarian program for the coming winter. But the government has never before had to deal with so great an emergency of this character.

Four million jobs are to be made for men now on virtual doles.

In addition, food and other necessaries of life are to be provided for 16,000,000 destitute persons.

Included in the program will be 1,000 shelter camps for the transient jobless — men and women who have lost their homes, who are shunted from city to city by officials beset with their own local problems, and who wander in this land of fertility like Ishmaelites in an arid desert.

The program will cost one billion dollars—and be worth it, if it keeps America from the disgrace of having thousands of her people starve.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—No class of professional people cling to their ancient superstitions and ornamentations like those of the theater. It is no press agent fantasy that Ed Wynn still wears on opening nights the same pair of shoes he wore at his first premiere on Broadway.

They are now patched like a crazy-quilt and would be spurned by a self-respecting rag man. Walter Catlett somewhere in his trouping tarantara picked up an idiocy about discarding cigaret ends and olive pits. For 15 years he has slipped them in various pockets.

Billy Gaxton, as do many other players, crosses himself before first entrance at each performance. Once he forgot and it was the only time in his career he ever went up in his lines. Jack Haley runs over his first scene out loud in his dressing room—no matter how long the run.

Earl Carroll watches openings from the electrician's pit in overalls. Ziegfeld watched his leaning on the back rail. John Golden has never seen one of his. C. B. Dillingham, after a final rehearsal, invariably eats in a one-armed lunch. He once explained rather prophetically: "I might wind up here."

The neatest of all chewers of the weed is Gen. John Pershing, a habit picked up in early Missouri days and never abandoned. He carries a plug of natural leaf in a neat rubber compact, slices off a thin sliver and many intimates are not conscious he's addicted to a custom now almost extinct.

One of the shrewd exponents of draw poker is Ogden Mills, former secretary of the treasury. He loves the game and despite his wealth "plays 'em tight." It's his favorite form of relaxing. He has one inflexible rule and that is not to play more than 50-cent limit. He prefers a dime limit and his winnings in every case are added to his favorite charity.

J. P. Morgan cares for few games, especially those of an outdoor sort. Sunday mornings, very early, when at his town house he makes several turns of the quiet block on which he resides in Murray Hill with his favorite dog—a beagle.

Incidentally, it's little known that George F. Baker, Jr., who is a neighbor of Mr. Morgan, joined the U. S. Army as a private. He was in service two years and mustered out a private. One cannot help but recall, too, that Murray Hill has reared no Legs Diamonds or Monk Eastmans.

Sam Hardy, known to another generation of silent screen fans, has become a figure in British film circles where he is somewhat affectionantely known as "America's greatest vulgarian." He gives autographed pictures to his London friends showing him pouring tea with a cracker in his mouth. His clothes are of screaming checks, his cream and silver car has his name painted across the back in stud-horse gold letters and he carries booklet matches with his photo on one side and name on the other.

Some of life's super-embarrassing moments are achieved in the darkness of movies. The other evening I occupied a seat on the aisle directly behind my wife. As the picture progressed I moved over two seats to make way for a gentleman and lady just arriving. The gentleman, obviously bored, broke out in a devil's tattoo with fingers on the back of my wife's chair. My wife did not know of the seat change and suddenly turning grabbed the stranger's wrist with: "Please, don't do that!" Discovering her mistake, she looked at me in a sinking blink of helpless supplication. But I'm cold hearted in such emergencies. I gave her a you-are-on-your-own look. And watched the screen.

At a private party the other evening it was interesting to watch young Alfred Vanderbilt, who acted as a sort of stooge for a parlor prestidigitator, who called himself The Great Maurice. And had uncanny wizardy along with a humorous Parisian-Ghetto accent. Such as calling the ace of spades "the awce of spuds!" Young Vanderbilt, a studious young man, instead of preceding young ladies through windshields in high-powered roadsters or spinning polo ponies on a dime, turns to the evanishments of magic for relaxation.

Isn't It So?

Some folks who borrow trouble would pay big interest rather than not have it.

Don't think the women who wish they had been born men are the only ones who feel that way about it.

While some people dream of making lots of money others are just going ahead and making it.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

There Are No Hypocrites!

I was beginning to wonder about life; beginning to ask questions. Why were things, and people, as they were? Why were some so kind, others so cruel? Why did some persons seem to be two people in one—talking in one way, living in another; good outside, bad inside?

Such persons, said my elders, were Wicked Hypocrites. And the worst of it was, they knew they were wicked. They wanted to be wicked. Nobody could stop them. They deliberately pretended to be nice just to fool kind, trusting people.

I must look out for Hypocrites. They were terribly dangerous—as dangerous as snakes and wildcats, and much more to blame. For a snake couldn't help being what he was, but a Hypocrite could.

So—as you, too, have probably done—I grew up loathing and avoiding Hypocrites. And not until many years had passed did I make a remarkable discovery. Nor would I have made it, even then, if someone had not called me, myself, a Hypocrite!.

I a Hypocrite? What a cruel and vicious lie? Hadn't I always tried to be good? Indeed I had! Had I ever wanted to do a really unkind or dishonest thing? I certainly hadn't. Then why should anyone call me such an awful name?

Yes, it was true, I'd made a mistake. A pretty bad mistake. Something that certainly seemed unfair—downright mean. But I hadn't PLANNED to be mean. I hadn't WANTED to be unfair. Maybe I'd lost my temper a little—taken advantage of certain facts—and circumstances had forced me into a jamb. But I'd never dreamed of doing anything really wrong.

All my life I'd wanted to be good. My motives were invariably fine, even if people didn't always understand them. And when I acted sweet and generous, I meant it. Those frank, friendly mannerisms—they weren't just a pose. They were the REAL ME. Yet, in spite of all that, some people thought I was a hypocrite!

Suddenly an amazing idea occurred to me. Was it possible that all other "hypocrites" felt like that, also? Did these supposedly "two-faced" people, whom I had loathed and avoided, feel about themselves and their acts exactly as I felt about myself and my acts?

Did they, too, "really want to be good"—and honestly believe that they were good, in spite of their mistakes? Was their frankness and friendliness actually as sincere as mine was, in spite of their inconsistent behavior? Were they also sure that they had reasonable excuses for their mistakes?

Then, if that was so—THERE WERE NO HYPOCRITES. THESE OTHER PERSONS WEREN'T "LIVING A LIE" ANY MORE THAN I WAS!

An amazing theory? Yet time has shown me that it is absolutely true. There are no deliberate hypocrites—no conscious villains. There never yet was a weakling or a sinner who wasn't sure he had full justification for his acts—who didn't believe in his own fundamental decency.

But how about his dark deeds? He has exactly the same excuses for them as I have for mine; as you have for yours. They may seem cockeyed excuses to the bystander, but they're not cockeyed to the criminal. He believes in them. He believes in himself. He's not trying to fool anyone.

IF HE DOES FOOL OTHER PEOPLE, AS HE OFTEN DOES, YOU CAN BET ON THIS—HE'S FOOLING HIMSELF WORST OF ALL! FOR WE INVARIABLY DECEIVE OURSELVES FAR MORE THAN WE DO ANYONE ELSE; AND EVEN AFTER EVERYONE ELSE IS ON TO US, WE CONTINUE TO BE OUR OWN DUPES.

Strange facts, but tremendously important. We can't possibly understand ourselves or the other fellow—deal fairly with ourselves or the other fellow—unless we know them.

EVERY MAN BELIEVES IN HIMSELF. Therein lies both a miracle and a menace. By that faith in himself you may lift the sinner up—if you'll add your faith to his. But by that ignorance of himself, he may drag you down—if you add intolerance to his ignorance.

MARRY-GO-ROUND

By Helen Rowland

Love's White Chips

Here and there, you will find an old-fashioned young man, who would like to sample a kiss that tastes like a KISS instead of like a drug store.

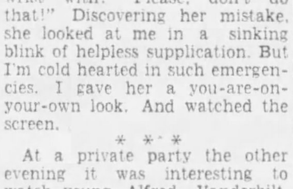
The bravest man on earth will shy at anything that is flung at his head—especially if it happens to be a woman's love.



The girl who marries soonest is the one who knows how to appear just dumb enough to make a man think that she would never have the ingenuity or enterprise to get him as far as the altar.

If being in love with one girl doesn't prevent a man from making passes at all the others, before marriage, it's a safe gamble that he will never let a wife cramp his style, after marriage.

* * *

When you come to the end of an after-dinner speech, to the end of a letter, or to the end of a love affair, just SIGN OFF. Nothing so bores the world in general and a lover in particular, as an encore!

Sam Hill would like to know why the only habits easy to acquire are bad ones. Ah well, that's true of lots of things—including husbands.

You can do almost everything just by pressing a button, these marvelous days, except start a man's heart going or stop a foolish woman's tongue.

It's easy for a woman to decide what to do with a husband who breaks his wedding-vows in a big way; but the great matrimonial problem is what to do with a trying but virtuous husband, who just succeeds in making life one long, dull endurance-test.

Don't stop being liberal with the milk of human kindness, merely because some people get sore because it isn't whipped cream.

OUR RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

A Well-Loved Task

I need, to fill the day,
The breath of song,
And moments sweet and gay
To life belong.
They come to brighten earth;
But first I ask
One boon more dear than mirth,
A well-loved task.

Time's tree has fruit and bloom,
Its joys, the flowers;
Less dear, though, their perfume
Than toil's brave hours
To fill the day I claim
Love, laughter, light;
These feed my being's flame
With pure delight.
Mirth's magic warms the heart;
But first I ask,
Each day till I depart,
A well-loved task!

Human Side of the News

Yantorney, Famous Parisian Shoemaker and Philosopher—The Wit of Grand Duke Alexander of Russia

By Edwin C. Hill

ALL Paris is talking about Yantorney, bootmaker of the Place Vendome. For Yantorney is not only the greatest shoemaker in the world, the veritable Leonardo da Vinci of footwear; he is also a philosopher to whom all France listens. He is not only the supreme artist, to whom fashionable ladies gladly pay as much as a hundred dollars for one pair of shoes; he is the preacher of the simple life. From his workshop, looking out upon the beautiful square where Napoleon broods upon his column, he contemplates the comedy of life, as cobblers have done since first they waxed a thread or tapped a wooden peg.

"The trouble with the world today," says Yantorney, scholarly bootmaker of the Place Vendome, "is that it has come to think that bigness is everything. Raising up the false god of bigness, it has lost its sense of beauty in workmanship; the incomparably precious thing of beautiful handiwork.

"We are not creators any longer, but cogs in the machine. When one of the cogs breaks the whole machine stops, as it has stopped nowadays, and all the cogs fall into idleness.

"We concern ourselves with things that don't concern us. We are always in too much of a hurry, in a frenzy of nervous excitement. We go round and round, like a child on the wooden horse of a carrousel, getting nowhere, clutching vainly at the brass ring of wealth or fame. All that is wrong today is that the world has lost its sense of values. When it gets that back there will be no more depression."

When Yantorney, the contemplative bootmaker, feels that life is rushing him too much, he drops his work, leaving the fashionable ladies to lament, and goes to the farthest ends of the earth to seek quiet and peace. Not long ago he boarded a train which carried him to Marseilles. Then he took a steamship to Bombay, and from Bombay he traveled up through India to the high Himalayas. And for days on end he gazed at the tremendous peak of Mount Everest, with its eternal plume of mist—throne of the ancient gods—until he felt that he was equal again to the clamour and tumult of the western world.

Grand Dukes Driving Taxicabs

THE King business is in a bad way these days, and grand dukes are driving taxicabs in Paris. Very few of the anointed of the earth amount to much when their chairs are kicked out from under them and they have to go out and hustle for a living. But the recent passing of one great nobleman, the Grand Duke Alexander, of Russia, saw the departure from this troubled world of a man of intellect and of sensibilities—certainly the best of the Romanoffs, and well able to hold his own in any company of wit and intelligence.

This, at least, was the distinct impression this writer gained of Alexander during an interview with him a few years ago, and the opinion is confirmed by the book which he finished just before his recent passing. The book, "Always a Grand Duke," is lively with chuckling wit and sardonic laughter, with the keenest observation of men and manners.

The Grand Duke was badly down on his luck after the Bolsheviki broke loose. That fantastic person, Alfred Lowenstein, the Belgian plunger, offered him a job as social secretary at $2,000 a week. Badly as he needed money, Alexander turned it down.

This was the Lowenstein who disappeared from an airplane over the English Channel and was never heard of again, a figure who had no match in modern times, except perhaps Ivan Kreuger, the match king, who shot himself in his Paris apartment after his gigantic house of fraud had collapsed in ruins. An incredible Lowenstein who went traveling about in a gold and platinum automobile the size of a trolley car, followed by a long train of satellites.

Al Capone Arouses Interest

ALEXANDER visited Henry Ford in Detroit and found occasion to tell Mr. Ford that one of his statements was incorrect. He quotes Mr. Ford as replying with a smile of tolerance:

"This is the first time in 15 years that I have heard anybody use the word 'wrong' in talking to me."

And the Grand Duke's comment was:

"A man cannot possess a billion dollars and not be right, at least in his own estimation."

Mr. Alphonse Capone, at present a guest of Uncle Sam in a large, commodious boarding house in Atlanta, Ga., was a source of infinite interest to the Grand Duke, and apparently to European royalty generally.

"I sincerely regret the temporary passing of Mr. Alphonse Capone," the Grand Duke told us. "He never failed to amuse and attract the glorified prisoners of European palaces. King Alfonso of Spain reproached me for not knowing the exact nature of the relations between Mr. Capone and Mr. Legs Diamond."

A fine sample of the Grand Duke's pungent style of writing, pretty much that of a first rate American newspaper reporter, is this bit about the nineteen twenties:

"The 1920s crashed in like a drove of pursued madmen. They promised to hang the exiled Kaiser before Christmas, and the King of Greece was bitten to death by his pet monkey. They carried the body of the Unknown Soldier to a sumptuous rest under the Arc de Triomphe, and disabled poilus were begging along the line of the solemn procession. They sounded twelve colossal sirens to announce to the population of Paris that a man named Georges Carpentier had just been knocked down in far away New Jersey, and a President of France was picked up on the railroad track at dawn, clad only in a pair of silken, sky-blue pajamas. The 1920s marched on, past night clubs and breadlines."

A keen critic of men and affairs, and no man ever did a better job of making the best of changed fortunes.

U. S. to Protect Trade In Japan-Russia Clash

By James T. Williams, Jr.

SECRETARY SWANSON repeats the recent announcement made by the Navy Department that after spending next summer in the Atlantic the United States fleet will return to the Pacific before the end of 1934.

The fleet faces two other possibilities, well understood by the Navy Department, but about which its officials are not now "talking for publication."

One is the possibility that events in the Far East may prevent the fleet from leaving the Pacific next spring. The other is that events in the Far East may compel the return of the fleet to the Pacific soon after its arrival in the Atlantic.

Far Eastern developments upon which the future movements of the fleet must, in a measure, depend have to do with the relations between Russia and Japan.

At the moment these relations appear to be far from encouraging. As Mr. Litvinoff, the Russian Commissar for Foreign Affairs, arrived in Washington seeking recognition from the United States for his government Tokio received a sharp note from Moscow.

Russia warns Japan in this communication to keep hands off Russian territory in the Far East. Simultaneously, Russian officials in Tokio announced that if Japanese airplanes repeat their alleged flight over Russian territory they will be fired upon.

Armed Neutrality Our Policy

THESE are emphatic exchanges for governments to indulge in. They signify deep popular feeling concerning the situation along the Russian border of Manchuria on the part of both the Russian and Japanese peoples.

If Russia and Japan go to war the United States will promptly resort to her traditional policy of armed neutrality. This would require the presence of the United States fleet in the Pacific—possibly in the Far Pacific—to enforce American neutrality and uphold the American doctrine of "the freedom of the seas."

This doctrine has been well defined by Senator Borah as "the right of neutral nations to carry their commerce as freely in time of war as in time of peace, except when they carry actual munitions of war or when they seek to break a blockade."

As a neutral, therefore, the United States, should Russia and Japan go to war, will insist upon her right to continue her normal trade and other relations with China.

If Russo-American relations have been resumed Russia, as well as Japan, would be a large purchaser in the American market of all sorts of supplies.

Russia would not require delivery of American shipments via Europe. A Japanese blockade of Vladivostok would prevent delivery of American shipments to Russia there.

Russia would seek to obtain supplies from the United States through China—probably through southern China, where Russian influence is strongest.

Public Sentiment Would Object

TO prevent American shipments from reaching Russia via China Japan would doubtless invoke "the Kirkwall practice" followed by England during the Great War, "ration" China and attempt to compel all American merchant vessels bound for Chinese ports to call at a Japanese port to be searched for contraband.

Public sentiment forced the American government to protest this English practice during the Great War. And the government at Washington that would permit Japan to repeat this practice could not long retain the support of public sentiment in any part of the United States.

There are many mutual advantages to be obtained from the resumption of normal relations between the United States and Russia.

One of the disadvantages may turn out to be the maintenance of American neutrality in the Far Pacific should Russia and Japan go from angry words to war.
